Strange Busy World.
Florida's Big Gain.
Two Good Sailors.
Portugal's Warning.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NEWS ITEMS of many different kinds in our strange and busy world.

The recent Japanese typhoon destroyed 11,000 houses, doing $50,000,000 damage, causing many deaths.

ON LONG ISLAND, H. S. Black, one of New York's most important and active business men, chairman, president or director in more than a dozen great corporations, sent a bullet through his head. Too much strain, too much trying, too much "spreading out." The big man has his worries.

EMINENTLY RESPECTABLE houses of New Yorkers were raided on Long Island. Each concealed a secret radio sending broadcasting set, illegally installed. The "respectabilities" were arrested, accused of sending information and warnings to rum runners on the water. There were many such stations along the New Jersey shore during the war, sending information to the Germans, according to the Italian ambassador, Count de Cellere.

ZARO AGHA, ancient Turk alleged to be 156 years old, enjoys New York, according to his press agent. The old man is a valuable asset and the press agent should be cautious about diet and other things. England possessed in Thomas Parr the oldest of men, according to authentic documents.

Born in 1483, he died in 1635. He married at 120, worked well at 130. The English king, interested, sent for him. Parr came to London, was entertained and died. Long life is a matter of diet, fresh air and regular life.

FLORIDA, LIKE a boy with growing pains, has known troubles. The worst was the inrush of real estate schemers followed by crowds, buying stupidly. That was a greater calamity than any dozen assorted fruit flies. You can kill fruit flies. You can't kill stupidity.

HOWEVER, NOTHING can interfere with the immediate growth or gigantic ultimate prosperity of such a state as Florida, destined to be the permanent home of millions, and the winter sun parlor of many other millions.

E. D. LAMBRIGHT, editor of the Tampa Morning Tribune, wishes the world to know that in percentage of population increase, Florida comes second to California only. Florida's percentage of gain is three times that of the 27 states thus far enumerated. For one that lost money in the recent slump, hundreds will make Florida fortunes in years to come.

TWO ANNAPOLIS midshipmen will be dismissed, 15 others severely punished because two young women, disguised in Annapolis blouses, were allowed to dine in the Naval Academy's mess hall. It was wicked to let the two young women see the mysteries of the mess hall. But the two young men now to be dismissed might have made navy men. The Secretary of the Navy might read over again the lustre of young Nelson, greatest fighting sailor of all time.

WHEN CAPTAIN of a British ship that was coasting up and down our shores, during the revolution, he saw a girl in Canada, fell desperately in love, abandoned vessel, worst of all crimes. His friends carried him back to the ship by force, kidnaping him to save his reputation and honor. Sometimes energy wasted in a foolish direction means energy to be used later, usefully.

WHEN WOLFE asked for a chance to capture Quebec, he strutted up and down boasting so much that his superior was tempted to dismiss him. But he did climb the heights of Abraham and take Quebec, dying of wounds on the battlefield.

"There is a cure for exuberance, none for barrenness."

That should be remembered by critics of youthful foolishness.

ASSURANCES OF protection given to Jews in Rumania by the recently returned and presumably reformed King Carol, amount to little.

At Bukowina, 3,000 armed farmers announce their intention to "finish with the Shumites and authorities." They turn against the government, declaring that it tried to protect the Jews.

IF THOSE farmers would read the history of Portugal and contrast it with the histories of England and of Holland, they would know what happens to nations that persecute and drive out Jews, and to nations that treat them justly; they would know what will probably happen to Rumania. Wait until Russia comes, as it will, into the hands of an aggressive conqueror.

STEEL HEAD ADMITS SUM

Bethlehem President Gives Figure in Court Battle Against Merger Plan

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 21.—(AP.)—Eugene G. Grace received a bonus of $1,623,753 in 1929 as president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, he testified today in the suit to enjoin sale of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company to Bethlehem.

The bonus was in addition to the stipulated $12,000 annual salary to which he testified last week.

THREE-DAY FIGHT

Revelation of Grace's compensation for last year followed a hard-fought three-day legal battle.

Attorneys for the Cyrus S. Eaton interests opposed to the merger of the Youngstown and Bethlehem companies, sought the testimony in support of their contention that the Bethlehem company paid Grace unwarranted amounts, and that these amounts were fraudulently concealed from the stockholders of the Youngstown company when they ratified the merger last April.

An objection by defense attorneys to the question about Grace's bonus was considered over the week-end by Judge David G. Jenkins and overruled shortly after court opened today.

BONUS ARRANGEMENT

Grace testified that since 1925 he has received a bonus of 3.319 per cent of the net earnings after fixed charges, less an amount equal to the annual preferred dividend, but before depreciation. The earnings of Bethlehem were $49,000,000 in 1929, making his bonus $1,623,753.

He explained that if earnings were low he was entitled only to

3 CHILDREN FOUND SLAIN IN POOL

Parents Detained as Bodies Reveal Cuts and Buises; Last Seen With Father

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., July 21.—Bodies of the three children of Taylor Hott, unemployed laborer, were found in the shallow waters of a quarry hole near here today.

Hott and his wife were detained by police after they had identified the bodies as those of their children, Gertrude 7, Calvin 6, and Boyd 5.

WALK WITH FATHER

According to Martinsburg police, Mrs. Hott told them her husband had taken the children out for a walk yesterday afternoon. When he returned without them he explained he had met a member of the Kidwell family residing in the mountain region of Berkeley county, who had taken them to him home.

Police began combing the mountain region for trace of the Kidwell family. They said they doubted that such a family existed.

Four boys who went to the quarry hole to swim found the body of the girl, partly submerged. They summoned neighbors who recovered the bodies of the two boys.

FOUND NEAR HOME

The place where the bodies were found is along the state highway between Martinsburg and Charles Town, and about one-eighth mile from the Hott home.

Examination of the bodies at the coroner's office revealed that the children had been beaten as well as strangled. A deep stab wound was found in the girl's left temple and her heda was crushed as though struck with a blunt instrument.

In the raid on the Italian-American Club the police used acetylene torches to force an entrance through an iron door.

How's Business?

Neither prohibition nor the weather has anything on that question as a current topic of conversation. Much idle speculation concerning it is due to lack of facts. Burglar Overcome By Heat on N. Y. 'Job'

He and two pals were sauntering through Fulton street, unable to sleep, and somebody suggested breaking into Herman Jaskson's jewelry store.

With a heavy timber they rammed the front door and smashed a showcase. A patrolman who heard the noise came on the run and found Gallagher on the floor, overcome by heat and by a slight glass cut on his arm. He had two watches and some beads in his pocket, the patrolman said. His companions escaped.

PASTOR FLAYS BLUE LAWS

That the Blue Laws are discriminatory and favor the rich and those who enjoy special privileges was the declaration of the Rev. Warren C. Herrick, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Mt. Lebanon, in a sermon yesterday in which he preached on the practical side of obedience to the Fourth Commandment.

He pointed out that aggressive action of religious bodies to close municipal swimming pools and other innocent recreations on

ALL OF NATION HEAT-STRICKEN

International News Service.

While a nation gasped for breath today, relief from a three-day period of intense heat was predicted for tonight or tomorrow.

From coast to coast the country was swept by withering weather, the Rocky Mountain region alone escaping.

At Washington the State and War departments and a number of smaller bureaus still housed in the war-built temporary buildings closed at noon to relieve clerks.

Four persons were dead in Chicago, where the mercury centered near the 100 mark, three died in New York with temperatures above 90 and two were killed by record heat in Milwaukee. Seven persons lost their lives while swimming in the New York City area.

Columbus, O., led the heat-stricken cities with an unofficial reading of 112 degrees. Toledo reported 107 and in Nebraska and Iowa temperatures above 100 were registered.

Browning fields in the grain belt have started an advance in the price of wheat and corn.

The mercury was climbing toward yesterday's mark of 99, bringing death and severe suffering, especially in the congested districts, with these results:

1—Six deaths over the week-end, four from drowning.

2—Public Works Director Edward G. Lang ordered hose sprinkling discontinued in parks and high levels of the city, to avoid reduction in pressure.

3—Repair of the Crafton "booster" pump of the South Pittsburgh Water Company was expected to end a water shortage in several South Hills districts.

CONFER ON WATER

Lang said:

"There is no danger of water shortage, except that the excessive use of sprinklers reduces the pressure in the high levels of the city, notably Squirrel Hill, and in some cases prevents water reaching the second floors of dwellings. If the people will co-operate with us until we have rain, the water supply will be as good as at any time in the last 15 years."

SQUIRREL HILL DRY

The situation in Squirrel Hill is intensified by the fact that normally a water shortage exists in that district in the summer, Director Lang stated, due to low pressure. An appropriation has been made for two "booster" stations and for a pipe line on Beacon street to Shady avenue. These improvements will obviate the summer ban of sprinkling of lawns and gardens.

Heavy use of water in higher districts of the South Hills, due to the heat and drought, proved a severe drain on the supply of the South Pittsburgh Water Company. This, with the Crafton "booster" pump out of repair, caused cessation of service at peak evening hours. The Crafton pump has been repaired and com-

Bishop Cannon, 66, Weds Secretly in London

LONDON, July 21.—(AP.)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was married at Christ Church, Mayfair, last Tuesday afternoon to Mrs. Helen Hawley McCallum, a widow, of 210 East Sixty-eighth street, New York, it was made known today.

The Rev. Dr. Ferram was the officiating clergyman. None but a few intimate friends knew of the wedding at the time. Bishop Cannon and his bride now are en route to Brazil by way of Madeira.

Bishop Cannon's bride, reported to have been his secretary for about a year, is said to be between 40 and 45.

Bishop Cannon, ardent dry worker and political leader of Virginia, is 66. He recently sailed for abroad after completion of the Senate investigation into lobbying activities.

On the stand for several days, Bishop Cannon refused to answer questions regarding activities against Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee, in the last presidential election, in which a $65,000 contribution of E. C. Jameson, New York insurance man, was involved.

Bishop Cannon also was acquitted at the same time of charges alleging conduct unbecoming a dignitary of the church by the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

He also faced charges at the conference that he had dealt in stocks with a New York "bucket shop," but was not brought to trial by the conference and was continued as chairman of the Board of Social Service.

The bishop was born at Salisbury, Mo., in 1864, and his marriage in London was his second. His first wife was Lura Virginia Bennett, of Virginia, whom he married in 1888, when he entered the ministry. She died about two years ago.

'Will Play If It Kills Me,' Tilden Says of Injury

By FREDERIC C. ABBOTT,
International News Service.

PARIS, July 21.—"It is really nothing. I'll play in the Davis Cup finals if it kills me!"

Grimacing with pain as masseurs worked feverishly over the sprained ankle he had suffered in practice on the Roland Garros courts today, in preparation for the forthcoming Davis Cup challenge matches, William T. Tilden, America's grand old man of tennis, made this statement to International News Service soon after he was injured. He added:

"For Heaven's sake, don't say anything about this injury. People will think I am preparing an alibi."

Tilden, however, needed no alibi. He fell sprawling full length, on the court.

Later he explained:

"I am really playing in the Davis Cup matches against my own better judgment. Joseph W. Wear, chairman of the cup committee, and Capt. Fitz Eugene Dixon, of the American Davis Cup team, urged me to play, and the syndicate for which I am writing was willing to release me from my contract, beginning Wednesday. Therefore, because of my personal friendship for Wear and Dixon, I will do my best when I get out on the courts.

"But now this ankle has gone bad! I wonder whether I will be able to play at all. But I will play, I'll play if it kills me!"

NAVAL TREATY DECLARED 'SAD DISILLUSIONMENT'

FAILS TO CUT ARMS, SAYS WAGNER

Foes of Pact in Senate Concentrate Upon Fight To Compel Reservations

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Declaring the London naval treaty a sad disillusionment because it failed to reduce armaments, Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, this afternoon urged its ratification to prevent growth of ill-will and the seeds of war throughout the world.

The New Yorker opened the closing debate on the treaty with administration leaders expecting its ratification by Wednesday. A dozen or more reservations must be acted upon before the final vote, but the administration predicted all but one would be rejected.

The reservation acceptable to the administration would base ratification upon the condition no secret agreements exist between Great Britain, Japan and the United States.

FIGHT FOR RESERVATIONS

Wagner, while expressing keen disappointment over the outcome of the London conference, said it would be better to ratify than to reject the pact. Meanwhile, those hostile to the treaty concentrated their fight upon forcing acceptance of qualifying reservations.

The treaty opponents are hopeful of securing acceptance of these, all introduced with an intent to fortify the United States against British and Japanese demands when the three nations meet again in 1935 to reduce or limit their navies.

A separate resolution, introduced by Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Massachusetts, and placing the Senate on record as favoring construction of an American navy up to the maximum limits of the treaty, may be adopted before the final vote is taken. Walsh has insisted the resolution be voted on before the treaty is ratified.

Although administration leaders have not yet agreed to permit this vote, they have indorsed Walsh's resolution. Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, one of the American delegates to London, told the Senate he was certain the administration planned to build every warship allowed America under the treaty.

TO SILENCE RUMORS

Reed made this statement to silence rumors that the United States had a secret understanding with Japan that three of the 18 big 8-inch gun cruisers, allowed the United States, would not be built. Reed said this rumor was false and that he expected his declaration that America would build all 18 cruisers would be cabled to Japan.

Several reservations would provide for building all these ships. Other reservations would deny Japanthe submarine and destroyer parity allotted by the treaty. Still others would give the United States the right to build 8-inch gun cruisers, under the "escalator" or "escape clause" if either Great Britain or Japan increased cruiser strength in any respect.

TRI-STATE AREA HEAT TOLL 9

From many sections of the tri-state district reports of death and suffering from the heat were received. In South Brownsville Wesley B. McAlpine, 74, former postmaster and a veteran river man, died at his home following a collapse. He leaves two sons and a daughter in the Pittsburgh district, Harry, of Ben Avon, and Karl McAlpine, of Monessen, and a daughter, Mrs. George W. Long, of Dormont.

DROWNS IN POOL

Miss Hilda Skamla, 17, drowned in a swimming pool in Johnstown, where she had sought relief from a temperature of 101. Ralph J. Ellis, of Erie; George Edeburn, 19 months old, of Sharon, and Lauren Bower, a farmer, of near Sharon, died from the effects of the heat late Saturday.

Rex Mason, 18, of Glendale, near Moundsville, W. Va., drowned in the Ohio River yesterday, and Charles Gatts, 17, drowned in Fish Creek, near Moundsville, when he waded beyond his depth. Their deaths made eight drownings in the Wheeling district in three days.

106 AT WHEELING

Wheeling experienced the hottest day in nine years, when the mercury touched 106 degrees. Fairmont, W. Va., reported 104 degrees, various sections of Washington county 100, and Franklin, Pa., 98.

Westmoreland County, and especially Greensburg, is suffering from water shortage. Heat records of 22 years' standing were shattered here yesterday when the thermometer officially reached 99¼ degrees.

BABY OVERCOME

At Clarksburg, W. Va., John Alvin Templeman, 5, died of heat prostration. He was the son of the late E. Bryan Templeman, prominent lawyer.

Blair McCune, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. McCune, was drowned while wading in a stream.

SEE NO BREAK IN HEAT WAVE

RECORD HERE 103

The air is unusually dry, according to humidity readings taken at 9 o'clock this morning. This morning's readings showed 49 per cent. The average humidity is 72 per cent.

Records at the Weather Bureau show that the highest temperature ever recorded officially in Pittsburgh was 103 degrees on July 10, 1885 and August 6, 1918.

The death list resulting from the heat wave included a man and two boys, drowned when they sought relief in the rivers, and a woman and an infant. An unidentified man was drowned while swimming in the Ohio River near Avalon, and Albert F. Hedberg, 14, of 129 South Seventh street, Dravosburg, and Edward Tisle, 3, of Dravosburg, were drowned in the Monongahela River near that place.

WOMAN, MAN, BABY DIE

Overcome by the intense heat while standing in the Pennsylvania station at 6:15 o'clock this morning, Frank Vallyn, 40, 3050 Penn avenue, died at the Allegheny General Hospital three hours later, the coroner reported. Official cause of the death was given as cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Mary Vacciano, 68, of 17 Mayflower street, died in her home a few hours after she was prostrated by the heat. Irene Speicher, 18 months, daughter of Oscar L. Speicher, of 2413 Harrison street, died late Saturday.

Frank Malone, county detective and former city detective, was reported in serious condition in St. Francis Hospital. At 9 p. m. yesterday Malone was overcome by heat in his home at 354 Forty-fourth street, and lay unconscious in the hospital until 4 a. m. today.

Physicians at hospitals said today that F. Durkin, 23, of Purnell street, and Hugh Parker, 61, no home, and Jack Collins, of New York, all of whom suffered heat prostration over the week-end, were slightly improved.

FOUR RESCUED

Two boys and two men were rescued from the Ohio River at Manchester beach, Franklin street, North Side, yesterday, when their skiff overturned. Their craft was capsized, a police report stated, by the river steamer "Betty," the suction drawing the occupants of the skiff beneath the steamer.

City Life Guards John McClelland and Joseph Cody, and John Law, of 1822 Chateau street, rescued the victims. Law is an amateur swimming star. All the victims were able to go to their homes after being given treatment, either at beach or at hospitals. They were Thomas Ross, 38, of Chateau street, and Philip Mozzocco, 19, of 1420 Sheffield street, treated at St. John's Hospital, and Edward Gasper, 12, of Metropolitan street, and Joseph McBernie, 12, of 1804 Beaver avenue.

MANY SLEEP IN PARKS

Thousands of persons sought relief by driving into the parks for picnics. Last night many slept in city parks. In East Park, North Side, Police Inspector Charles Faulkner arrested 35 men for violating a city ordinance. They were sleeping in the park during the day, the inspector said, adding that many of them had been drinking.

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh announced today that until the present heat wave passes all city parks will be thrown open at night for those who care to sleep there. Police have been given instructions, he said, to molest no one in the parks.

Walsh also announced that the 15 river swimming pools, under city jurisdiction, offer a "cooling off" place during the heat wave and extended an invitation to the public to use them. The pools are located on the three rivers here, and since June 21, more than 80,000 persons have used the facilities there, he said. The pools will close September 15.

Yesterday's temperature was 2.4 degrees higher than that of Saturday, and came within two degrees of being the hottest July 20 in the history of the weather bureau.

Fear of a water shortage resulted in a conference late Saturday of Engineer James H. Kenyon, of the Bureau of Water, and Assistant Superintendent of Police Ben R. Marshall. Unless rain relieves the present drought, police will request householders to refrain from using water on their lawns, it was said.

Mercury at 100; Franklin Suffers

FRANKLIN, Pa., July 21.—Setting an all-time record and with no relief in sight, the mercury reached 100 officially here and in Oil City yesterday. This morning the temperature started its upward climb at 82. At least one death, that of Mrs. John Cutcham, of Polk, aged 80, who died in an auto coming home last night from Jackson Center, is attributed to the heat.

2 PLANES' GOAL 1,000 HOURS

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., July 21.—(INS.)—Two cabin monoplanes were flying over the field here today trying for a new endurance refueling record of 1,000 hours. Both planes took to the air almost simultaneously last night.

One of the planes, a red one, piloted by Robert Black and Louis Reicherts, two former Army aviators, was forced down yesterday morning after 13 hours' flying, when the gasoline hose caught in the propeller during refueling. They made a fresh start.

O'BRINE, JACKSON GO UP

Thrusting a pistol through the window the robbers forced the attendant, Steve Runzon, 19, to open the office safe. Finding it empty, they turned to the register, scooped up the cash and fled.

Coolidge Hails Economic, Mental Change in South

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 21.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

The rapidity with which the old South is emerging is not generally appreciated. It has attracted new blood and new capital. From a region of plantations it is becoming also a region of industry and commerce. But its economic development is not so great as its change in thought. It is less local and more national.

There are three important influences that are removing its inertia of mind and body. The public schools have been much improved both in housing and courses of instruction. Their power has become very great. The radio has done for people of mature years what the school house has done for the youth in the way of lifting them out of themselves and giving them new ideas. This is changing the tone and the influence of the local press.

And the system of good roads which is already extensive and rapidly increasing, whereby the automobile has enlarged the circumference of mental vision ranks very high in the progress of the new South. It has made the country accessible not only to itself but to the outside world. We behold a people of high spirit and great natural endowments under the inspiration of a new hope coming into their own.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

ACCUSER READY 'TO TELL ALL' FOR MOONEY

Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—To tell the truth and thereby make himself out a liar, a perjurer and bearer of false witness.

That is the stated purpose that brought John MacDonald back to California today.

He has come across the continent "to right the wrong I have done two innocent men, Mooney and Billings," as he put it.

MacDonald still insisted that his testimony at the trial of Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings in the famous 1916 Preparedness Day parade bombing case, was "all lies."

PLANS TO TELL TRUTH

Interviewed on the train as he neared San Francisco, MacDonald reiterated his oft-stated purpose to tell the truth about his connection with the case, and in so doing to repudiate every essential feature of his sworn testimony given from the witness stand at the trial.

When asked as to details he referred to the affidavit he made in Baltimore before starting to California.

MacDonald is the sick man all reports have indicated. His body is racked with pain and he moves in a way to spare his diminishing energies.

The strength of his purpose to go through with his program is apparent in his demeanor and talk. He has repeatedly stated he would tell the truth to Gov. C. C. Young, even though it may mean he will be jailed for perjury committed at the trial.

ACTUALLY PRISONER

Legally, MacDonald is a free man. But actually he is as closely guarded as any prisoner could be. He is never left alone. His every want is immediately administered to and he is the object of the most solicitous care.

U. S. SEEKS TAX ON DOG RACES

Operators of dog race tracks in this district, with a threat of prosecution on gambling charges over their heads, also face prospect of being compelled to pay heavy tax to the government.

D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue, today said that if the bet tickets were labeled "Admission," as reported, such tickets would be taxable at 10 per cent for all sums over $3.

The tickets used at the tracks are said to have been sold for $5, $10 and $20, ostensibly for admission, but in reality for gaming purposes.

Tickets at Bridgeville and New Kensington are said to have set forth that price charge was for a grandstand seat and a small portion for a purse for the winning dog.

The Bridgeville and New Kensington races are reported to have paid big dividends to promoters. Operators of the Guyasuta Kennel Club races at Blawnox are said to face a heavy debt by reason of District Attorney Andrew T. Park barring gambling.

Hammer Robber Wins Heavy Honors

KANSAS CITY, July 21.—(AP.)—In the wake of the others, comes the burglary endurance contest.

Forming hasty judgment, police gave the championship to Hooker Carter and Robert Highley found straining under the weight of a 200-pound anvil. They had already loaded a 14-inch bellows into a motor car.

GRACE ADMITS BIG BONUS

a bonus of an ½ per cent, but explained that since 1925 earnings had been high enough to permit the 3.319 per cent.

QUIZZED ON LOAN

Luther Day, of Cleveland, chief of the Eaton attorneys, charged in his reply that Grace financed a loan of $800,000 to Pickands, Mather & Co., ore firm, to buy Youngstown company stock prior to the merger ratification. He said:

"Grace's bonus would be increased by the acquiring of Youngstown Sheet and Tube. Youngstown stockholders are entitled to all the facts, conditions and details in regard to this."

Continuing the questioning of the Bethlehem head after the amount of the 1929 bonus had been stated, Attorney Day asked:

"You stated previously that you received $12,000 a year?"

Grace replied in the affirmative.

"Isn't it a fact that you receive a certain compensation every month?"

Grace replied:

"No, not as I understand it."

"Do you receive $12,5000 each month?"

Grace said:

"Not as I understand it."

CORRECTS TESTIMONY

Following a recess, Grace corrected his testimony to say that he does receive a check for $12,500 the first of every month. Of this, he said, $1,000 is for salary and the remaining $11,500 is deducted from his bonus when it is calculated.

After that his testimony concerned negotiations leading up to the merger. He stated his first discussion about a merger with the Youngstown company was with Charles M. Schwab, chairman of Bethlehem.

The first time he talked to any one connected with the Youngstown company, he said, was during a trip to ore reserves of the Northwest in 1926 or 1927 with James A. Campbell, chairman, and H. O. Dalton, director of Youngstown, present.

The talk was general, Grace testified. Day asked:

"When again did you talk to any one about a merger with Sheet and Tube?"

Grace said:

"The first part of January Mr. James A. Campbell came to my apartment at the Plaza Hotel in New York City and had breakfast with me. He asked me if we were interested in a merger and I told him I wouldn't express myself one way or another.

KNEW OF ARRANGEMENT

"I knew that he had some arrangement with Inland (Steel Company), I said that until such time as I knew he had no other irons in the fire, I wouldn't express myself.

"Mr. Campbell felt that he was not entirely free from Inland. I told him that under those conditions I did not want to express myself in any way. I told him that if he was subsequently free from other negotiations I would talk concerning the merger."

Next he testified to a meeting with Campbell and Dalton on January 16. He said the meeting lasted nearly two hours and that only the advantages of a merger were discussed.

Pittsburgh Broom Salesman in Crash

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 21.—(INS.)—Nickoloi Pasckart, 50, a broom peddler, of 539 Robert street, Pittsburgh, was believed to have been seriously hurt when his auto crashed into a truck at Delmont, on William Penn Highway, eight miles north of here today. County detectives brought Pasckart to the hospital here. The truck was owned by R. D. McCall, of Clarksburg, Pa.

ONE KILLED, 87 HURT IN CAIRO RIOTING

Soldiers Use Rifles to Quell Egyptian Students Storming Principal Streets

CAIRO, Egypt, July 21.—(AP.)—One rioter was killed, 87 injured, 27 seriously, by gunfire and missiles during severe rioting which climaxed the political situation here today.

There was much damage to property while troops, civil police and excited students by thousands struggled for the upper hand along principal streets of Cairo. In one thoroughfare hardly a window remained unbroken in the showers of stones and other objects hurled by the rioters.

The troops were obliged to use their rifles freely. So severe was the encounter that after the police had obtained the upper hand emergency relief squads lined some of the streets treating the injured. More than a score were taken to hospitals.

The rioting crowds, furious when news spread that the followers of former Premier Nahas Pasha had called off their proposed "outlaw" Parliament session, ripped up lamp posts, barricaded a street with every obstruction they could lay hands on and set fire to an escaping gas column which, however, the police extinguished.

Twelve rioters fell in the second volley from the troops. The first round had been fired into the air. This had no effect. The leaders quickly shifted their campaign and as a result succeeded in calming the throngs.

PRIEST URGES POOL CRUSADE

members of the dead man's family, who said he had become mentally deranged over his losses. Bancale shot himself Saturday in a North Side park.

Rev. Frances Oppici, pastor of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, Fernando street, issued a statement calling on public officials to take some action toward ending the number playing.

Bancale was a member of St. Peter's church. His funeral will be held from there tomorrow.

DEMANDS ACTION

Father Oppici said:

"Police authorities, both city and county, should take immediate steps to stop this increasing evil before the situation gets entirely beyond control. Such spending of money brings nothing but disappointment and misery to the poor families. They cannot afford to gamble even a few pennies a day.

"Everyone should realize gambling cannot bring success. Better use of their money would bring more happiness to poor homes. Only the ringleaders make the money. This unfortunate death should spur the police with the realization to what extent this gambling can drive people."

Inspector Albert Beebe, of the First Police District, said today that he has detailed two plainclothesmen, in addition to his regular force, to clean up the Hill and downtown districts of writers, collectors and pay-off men in the numbers racket.

It was learned today that Bancale kept no record of his gambling operations on check book stubs. Members of the family believe he played mostly cash with Hill district numbers pool writers. Payment on Saturday's gambling check for $60.26 has been stopped. The check had not been presented for payment this morning.

DEATH THREAT

A note threatening death to the driver of an automobile found abandoned in a Uniontown street, late last night, was inserted under the windshield of the car. Clearing House pool tickets and receipts were found inside the car.

The note under the windshield wiper said:

"Get out of town or be killed."

The license plates on the car had been issued to Samuel Rost, 501 East End avenue. Rost said today that the car belongs to him, and was being driven by "Buck" Schanal, of Uniontown.

"Schanal works for me as a confectionery salesman," Rost said today. "I have been trying to get in touch with him. I don't know why anybody would be threatening to kill him."

Hoover Kin Get Tiny Chairs From Century-Old Shop

CULPEPER, Va., July 21.—(AP.)—The grandchildren of President and Mrs. Hoover are to have tiny chairs of their own selected by their grandmother from a mountain chair factory in existence for 100 years.

James Osborne Clore could not have known when he started making hand-made furniture in a mountain hollow near Madison in 1830, that a century later the wife of the President of the United States would come to his descendants for gifts.

But two of the little walnut chairs made by the founder's great-grandson, E. B. Clore, soon are to be the playthings of Peggy Hoover and Herbert Hoover III, called Peter, and footstools from the same factory are now part of the furnishings of President and Mrs. Hoover's mountain lodge on the headwaters of the Rapidan River.

The Clores do not make a wide range of furniture, so it did not take Mrs. Hoover long to choose two sturdy chairs for the oldest children of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., aged 4 and 2.

Blue Law

What Outstanding People Think Of It

Each day for awhile the Sun-Telegraph asks opinions of leading citizens on the state's antique Blue Law. A group of opinions is presented below.)

MRS. ENOCH RAUH, director of the Pittsburgh Department of Welfare—The Blue Law being a criminal statute, brands each offender a criminal. To buy gasoline for the automobile so that the members of a family can drive to church, is a crime under the law and one of the absurdities of this antiquated statute. The law, like the sword of Damocles, hangs over the heads of the people of Pennsylvania. A majority of the citizens of the state (including many of the law's most ardent advocates) violate some phase of it each Sunday. Every so often some inspired individual or group decides to invoke the statute literally—and the partiality of the law at once becomes apparent. It is a travesty on justice that those of humble means in each community are denied privileges that the more affluent enjoy without molestation. The thread-worn argument that liberalization of the Sunday interferes with church attendance is "begging the question." In my extended experience in public life I have found invariably that those good people who desire to attend Sunday services allow nothing to interfere with their worship. Repealing a blue law which is, in these days unworkable and unjust would deny to no one the right to pursue his religious aspirations—but at the same time it would enable a vast number of citizens to seek wholesome diversion on the rest-day, Sunday, which is a fundamental need of our advancing civilization.

Mrs. Rauh

L. H. BURNETT, assistant to president, Carnegie Steel Company—I am absolutely opposed to the closed Sunday and favor the repeal of the present Blue Law. The people should have reasonable opportunities for recreation on Sunday and the law should allow sufficient latitude for the proper enjoyment of the day, not as the law now says it should be. I am in favor of the people being out in the sunshine.

L. H. Burnett

HERMAN P. BRANDT, state senator—The popularly known Blue Laws, in the past, have served a great purpose in the formation of American ideals and principles and in establishing what we now enjoy as a distinct American civilization. Through them various nationalities and classes of peoples have been welded into one great class of Americans.

Senator Brandt

Today, due to changes in the industrial and social conditions, there is no longer a need of the majority of these old laws, as they too greatly conflict with simple activities of people according to wholesome demands made by our civilization.

Because of them a hypocritical condition exists in all of our lives and in my estimation this hypocritical element is largely responsible for too careless an attitude toward the law and its enforcement.

I am opposed to a general commercialization of our Sundays, which should be kept holy; but I am interested in modifying these laws so that they fit in more humanely with modern needs.

Active interest shown by the clergy and laity, businessmen and professional men and people of all creeds and walks of life prompted me to take this stand.

NORMAN ALLDERDICE, president of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries—The majority of the people, desiring the modification of the Blue Law, should prevail. The people want recreation on Sunday and the prohibitions of the law should be rescinded to meet the popular demand. I favor a change so that sports and amusements may be allowed on Sunday by law. This will be a public benefaction for the masses.

Mr. Allerdice

JAMES J. COYNE, state senator—I believe that Sunday sports and amusements, which are crimes under the Blue Laws, should be legalized.

Senator Coyne

50 MILLIONS PROPERTY DAMAGE

Hordes Made Homeless as 40,000 Dwellings Sweep Into Sea; Hundreds Hurt

By JAMES R. YOUNG.
International News Service

TOKIO, July 21. — More than 400 dead, hundreds injured, over 1,000 persons missing and property damage in excess of $50,000,000.

This, according to the latest check-up made today, was the frightful toll of disaster left in the wake of the violent typhoon which swept southern Japan and Korea Friday.

With disrupted communication facilities gradually being restored, the extent of the desolation caused by the sudden storm began to be fully realized. Famine and disease may result in an even greater toll of death in the affected regions.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS

Thousands of persons are homeless. Official estimates say 40,000 houses were washed away and demolished or so badly flooded as to render them unfit for habitation. In addition, shops, schools and public buildings were destroyed when the typhoon swept in from the sea and left appalling desolation in its wake.

Agricultural communities were hard hit by the storm. Approximately 50,000 acres of rice land, producing the staple commodity for the surrounding district, were laid waste.

SWEEPS OVER ISLAND

The typhoon, sweeping in from the Pacific, crossed the Loochoo Islands, Kyushiu Island and the inland sea and thence into Korea, where it spent its full fury. Torrential rains accompanying the typhoon aggravated the suffering of the victims.

Tremendous damage was done in harbor ports, with approximately 750 vessels, including 125 in the harbor of Nagasaki alone, sunk or washed out to sea.

VARE DEAL RUMORED IN EAST

Philadelphia Boss to Back Ex-Governor in November, Political Circles Hear

PHILADELPHIA, July 21. — (AP.) — An independent state ticket to be headed by Gifford Pinchot as the candidate for governor was expected to be pre-empted "as a precautionary measure" this week.

Friends of Pinchot, who on the face of the returns from the May primary, was nominated as the Republican gubernatorial candidate by a plurality of approximately 20,000 over Francis Shunk Brown, have advised the former governor that it would be unwise to delay the pre-emption of an independent ticket until after the hearing before the State Supreme Court on August 19 of the Luzerne County perforated ballot case.

NOMINATION IN DOUBT

With the legality of some 60,000 paper ballots cast in Luzerne County questioned by counsel for Brown, the nomination will be in doubt until the decision of the Supreme Court. Pinchot polled a plurality of approximately 26,000 in Luzerne and, should the Supreme Court decide that the ballots are void, Brown would be the Republican nominee by about 6,000. No question has been raised on ballots cast in districts where voting machines were used.

A decision in favor of Brown probably would be followed by a move on the part of Pinchot's friends to open all ballot boxes in Philadelphia for a recount. Charges and counter-charges of fraud have been made in a number of other counties, notably Philadelphia and Lackawanna. Nearly 200 ballot boxes in Philadelphia have been opened and recounted on Pinchot petitions, and additional petitions are being prepared for presentation to the court. Most of the ballots recounted have shown slight gains for Pinchot.

VARE DEAL RUMORED

A ruling by the Supreme Court that the Luzerne ballots are legal would make the proposed Independent party unnecessary and Pinchot would conduct his campaign under the Republican standard.

Meanwhile, unconfirmed reports are in circulation concerning an alleged deal between Pinchot and William S. Vare, leader of the Republican organization, under which Vare's leadership would be strengthened by promises of patronage in return for pledges of support at the election in November.

As the situation now stands, political observers believe Mr. Vare would have difficulty in delivering to Mr. Pinchot the full support of the organization. Powerful factors have announced their opposition to the former governor under any circumstances and already a number of ward and division leaders have been openly enrolled in the Liberal party, which has considered naming as its candidate for Governor John M. Hemphill, Democratic gubernatorial nominee. Mr. Hemphill and his mates on the Democratic ticket are running on a "wet" platform. Pinchot is known as a "bone dry."

PANIC ON TRAIN INJURES 25

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP.)—Smoke from a blown out fuse that stifled several hundred passengers homeward bound from the beaches in an elevated train last night caused a panic in which more than 25 women were trampled and cut.

The smell of smoke in the hot and darkened cars started a cry of fire. The passengers milled about breaking windows and rushing toward the doors.

Mystery Kidnapers Free Finnish Leader

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 21.—(AP.)—With the mystery surrounding his abduction still uncleared, Degner Hakkila, Social Democrat, was home again today, released by his kidnapers.

Hakkila, former vice chairman of the cabinet which recently dissolved the Diet, was en route in his automobile to his summer home when kidnaped by a number of unidentified men. The abduction was considered in some circles as indicating inclusion of the Socal Democrats with the Communists in the anti-Communist agitation.

2 SHOT DOWN BY GANGSTERS

NEW YORK, July 21.—(INS.)—Two mysterious shooting occurred today—one in Manhattan, the other in Brooklyn.

Louis Amberg, an ex-convict known as "Pretty," was shot by gangsters as he rode with a friend in an automobile. He is in a hospital in a critical condition, but declined to describe the shooting or name his assailant.

James di Sapo, 42, the other victim, was riddled with six bullets by a gang in an automobile, who shot him as he stood at a street corner in Brooklyn. He was taken to a hospital, where it was said his chances for recovery were slight.

FAN AND RIDE COOL HOOVER

WASHINGTON, July 21. — (AP.)—Like most other residents of the capital, President Hoover spent Sunday seeking relief from the intense heat under an electric fan.

The Chief Executive and Mrs. Hoover remained at the White House until late in the day, when they took an hour's automobile ride about the city, mostly in Rock Creek Park.

DERBY FLIERS AT BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 21.—(AP.)—Lee Gehlbach, of Detroit, flying a low-wing Commandaire, led the 18 entries of the All-American flying derby, racing around the United States, into Buffalo today, landing at the municipal airport at 9:13 a. m., Pittsburgh time, with an elapsed time from Detroit of 1 hour 6 minutes.

The official ship of the derby was caught in a sudden gust of wind and nosed over in front of the administration building as it landed at 8:05 a. m.

Robert T. Quinby, of Moline, Ill., flying a Mono special, was the second to land, with an elapsed time of 1 hour and 9 minutes. Two minutes later Herman Hamer, of Chicago, in a Laird biplane, dropped to the field.

The racers were due in New York this evening for an overnight stop.

Cool Fares Leave Cabless Cabby Hot Indeed

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP.)—Three young fellows approached Robert Deutsch, cab driver, yesterday and complained of the heat, saying:

"Drive us hither and thither in your cab, that we may get the cool breezes. Keep in the cool places and don't drive near hot dog stands or dance halls where we might be prostrated by hot tunes."

So Deutsch drove them along the lake shore, past ice plants, past bubbling fountains and ice cream dispensaries.

After four hours the young fellows said they were cooled off and would Mr. Deutsch please hand over (at the point of a pistol) the $9 in his pocket and also give them his cab?

The young fellows drove away, leaving Deutsch very hot.

FLEES DIXMONT, SHOOTS 3

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., July 21.—Three persons were shot when Eugene Vilella, who escaped from Dixmont Saturday, fired a shotgun into a car containing his wife, his daughter, Paul Redding, C. F. Pollock and M. Tushim, at Anita, where a celebration was being held at 3 o'clock this morning.

Redding and Tushim and Mrs. Vilella were all slightly wounded. Their wounds were dressed in the Punxsutawney Hospital.

Vilella, who had been an inmate of Dixmont, said he had been receiving letters about his wife recently and Saturday walked unmolested from the institution, boarded a street car, went to Pittsburgh and took the night train to Punxsutawney. From there he took a taxicab to his home in Anita.

His wife was away and he patiently awaited her return with a double-barreled shotgun in his hands.

When the auto containing his wife and the others drove up to the house, Vilella opened fire. He was arrested by Corporal Brooks of the state police and is being held for felonious shooting.

Indian Princess Knew All About 'Chuting, Until—

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP.) — Princess Red Feather, a comely Indian maiden who also answers to the name "Teddy," made a parachute jump yesterday under sudden circumstances.

It was her own idea in the first place. She told Maj. R. W. Schroeder, manager of Curtiss flying field, that she was a parachute jumper of long experience. She had jumped, she said, all over Texas.

Pilot Jimmy Van Cise took her up. He started to tell her all about how to act—jump, count five, pull the cord, etc., but decided not to because the Princess was such a grand jumper that for him to tell her anything would be like carrying coals to Pittsburgh.

Up about 2,000 feet the pilot opened the door of the cabin and pointed suggestively into the atmospheric void. The princess stood in the doorway, poised. Then she decided she would not jump. Meanwhile, she pulled the rip cord, and the parachute began filling up, being blown around and endangering control of the plane. Pilot Van Cise saw that drastic action was needed.

He reached out his foot and gave the Princess a sudden and determined shove. In a few minutes she waited right side up to land. Maj. Schroeder suggested that she confine further traveling to birch bark canoes.

PASTOR FLAYS BLUE LAWS

Sunday is a public exercise of authority. The Christian Sabbath he said is founded in the law of liberty and Sabbath observance is a matter for the individual conscience.

DEPLORES FORCE

"The Sunday observance laws unfortunately put a weapon into the hands of organized religion. And the use of force is incompatible with the Christian spirit. Christianity has no traffic with force. The truth depends not on the laws of might. There is no sentiment of the use of force enunciated in the sermon on the Mount."

Dormont residents numbering 2,111 made use of the municipal swimming pool yesterday. Disregarding this sentiment for Blue Law moderation petitions still were being circulated in the borough today to church members and ministers according to the Rev Benjamin Franklin Crawford president of the South Hills Ministerial Association asking Council to close the pool.

PETITIONS OUT

The Rev Crawford said:

"We are still circulating our petitions and expect to file them with borough Council at the next meeting. Although there is no meeting scheduled until October it is possible that President Chester Winters will call a special session in the near future to hear further arguments pro and con."

The pool is open only to Dormont residents on Sunday.

SUNDAY 'GOLF' BRINGS FINES

Two proprietors of Tom Thumb golf courses in the East End were fined this morning in East Liberty police court for operating on Sunday.

Emmanuel Rose 620 Haverhill street threatened to appeal Magistrate Charles Papale's fine of $25 or 30 days in jail claiming that the golf was free and he was relying on sale of pop to pay his way.

A F Kauffman 1649 Chislett street paid a fine of $25 after telling Papale that the 15 or 20 persons on his course at Penn and Negley avenues were friends and relatives. Both Rose and Kauffmann had been warned to close up earlier in the day, it is said.

District Attorney Andrew T Park had announced last week that he would not interfere with Tom Thumb golf courses. The games were running, it is said, in several parts of the city without interruption.

OHIO 'FORGETS' SUNDAY LAW

STEUBENVILLE O July 21 —Residents of Steubenville purchased their milk, cigars, gasoline and what-not yesterday the same as they have been doing on week days. No effort was made to enforce the old Sunday Blue Laws.

Theaters however, were closed, and probably will remain closed until the appeal of George Ellis, movie operator, found guilty last week, is decided. Ellis, in his appeal, claims Judge J. F. Paisley erred in directing a verdict of guilty.

DETROIT RECALL VOTE TUESDAY

DETROIT, July 21.—(AP)—America's fourth city will find out Tuesday whether it has changed its mind since it elected Charles Bowles mayor last November. The question of removing him from office will be submitted to the 468,000 registered voters after two weeks of increasingly bitter controversy.

The question on the ballots is:

"Shall Charles Bowles be called from the office of mayor of the city of Detroit?"

The voting is simply a "yes" and "no" proposition. On the ballot are some 400 words, equally divided between the charges made against the mayor and a statement written by him.

If the majority of the votes cast favor recalling Bowles, a special election to name his successor will be held within 30 days. Meanwhile he would remain mayor and he automatically would become a candidate for re-election.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, and is waiting to tell you about this new medicine. Read the experience of Mrs. Dolly Rizor, 323 Wayne Street, Washington, near Pittsburgh, as she told it to the Konjola Man recently. Mrs. Rizor said:

"I suffered with stomach trouble for twenty years or more and try as I would I was not able to find anything to help me. My food lay undigested in my stomach and caused gas and bloating. I was subject to shortness of breath and smothering spells. I had severe pains in the back of my head and was very nervous.

"Although I have but just concluded a two weeks' treatment of Konjola I feel like a new person. The gas and bloating have gone and I am no longer nervous. I sleep well and have a good appetite, and am free from pains in my back and head. I advise anyone suffering from the troubles I did to give Konjola a trial."

The files of Konjola are filled with just such happy endorsements. After all, life teaches no finer lesson than to profit by the experiences of others. Why not try Konjola today?

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

'Scrambled Baby' Puzzle Again Up For Solution

CHICAGO, July 21.—(INS.)—Chicago's case of scrambled babies became more serious today with science preparing to marshal all its forces in an effort to ascertain whether George F. Bamberger is not really Charles Z. Watkins and vice versa.

Meanwhile two sets of parents were hoping that a special board of physicians appointed by the city health commissioner would solve the problem by an intimate study of the blood of the two infants.

A similar test done by blood grouping proved unsatisfactory as both sets of parents and both children were found to have blood in the same group.

O'Neill said the new air express would clip nearly two weeks from New York to Buenos Aires shipments, halve the transit time to Rio De Janeiro and save up to 25 days between New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other cities east of the Mississippi and ports in the southern West Indies and Northern Brazil. Rush shipments between the United States and Buenos Aires and Rio De Janeiro would, he said, require but six and one-half and five and one-half days respectively.

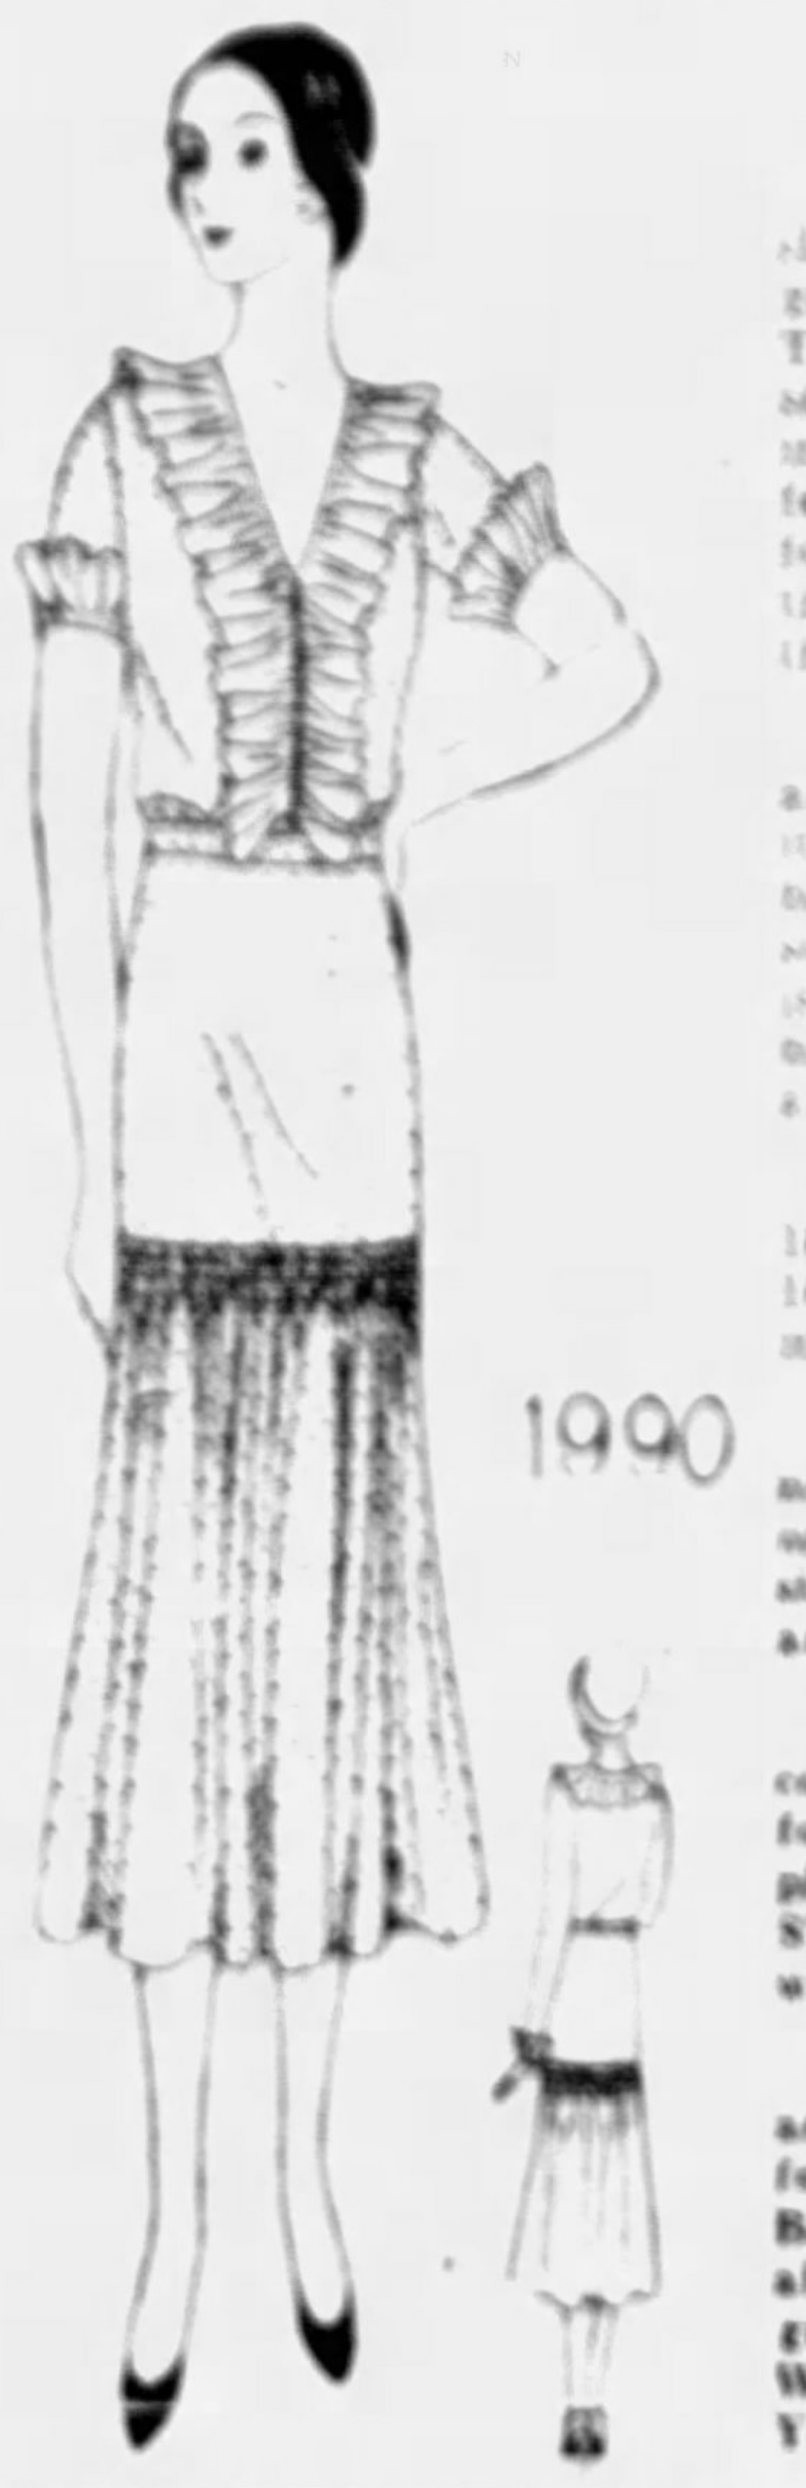
By ANNE ADAMS



The ruffling around neck and sleeves distinguishes this frock and gives it a charming, summery air. The skirt flare attaches itself with several rows of gathering, affording grace and fullness. If you prefer long sleeves, the ruffling may form the cuff. Tiny buttons cover the joining of the ruffling down the center of the bodice.

Pattern 1990 is perfectly adorable made of dotted swiss or dimity, although georgette, flat crepe, batiste or voile would be equally suitable. On warm days nothing is more delightful than white with black dots, or sheer black dotted and trimmed with white.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 5¼ yards of 36-inch material.

N. Y. SOCIALISTS FORM SLATE

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 21.—(AP.)—Attorney Louis Waldman of Brooklyn was nominated for governor by the Socialist Party of New York state, holding its annual convention here. For lieutenant governor the Socialists nominated Mrs. Charles H. Roth, of Buffalo, a school teacher and mother of two children; for attorney general, William Karlin, of New York City; for comptroller, William Hillsdorf, Rochester, a trades union representative.

Norman Thomas, the party's candidate for president in 1928, in declining the nomination for governor, said he thought it would be bad for the Socialist party if he headed a ticket again this year, in view of his defeats in 1928, when he ran for president, and in 1929, when he ran for mayor of New York City.

John Dewey, of Columbia University, prominently mentioned as a likely choice for governor, is in Nova Scotia, en route to Europe, and could not be in the state for the campaign, and he was therefore not mentioned.

PRIEST RESISTS DEPORTATION

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 21.—(AP.)—Citing that deportation to the Soviet republic will mean his death before a firing squad, the Rev. Gregory Onyschenko, a priest of the Ukranian church, is desperately combatting the move.

District immigration officials today said the case was to be investigated by officials at Fort Worth, Tex.

The Rev. Mr. Onyschenko asserts he was a soldier in the Ukranian army and opposed Soviet occupation of the region. Because of this he is liable to execution, and has lost his citizenship.

Now leader of the Ukranian church near Harrah, Okla., the priest was admitted to the United States to attend school in New Jersey. The order for his deportation was signed July 7. He is charged with remaining in the United States after he left the New Jersey school.

LIPTON YACHT PUTS TO SEA

PORTSMOUTH, England, July 21.—(AP.)—Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V, weatherbound overnight off Spithead, put to sea Sunday convoyed by the steam yacht Erin.

The weather continued rough and indications were the yacht would have a bad passage down the channel. Late weather reports indicated the Shamrock was facing head winds and heavy seas.

Capt. Ned Heard hoped to reach the Azores in seven days and complete the journey to New York within one month.

On September 13 the Shamrock will compete in the international yacht races off Newport, R. I., when Sir Thomas will make his fifth attempt to recapture for England the America's cup.

CIVITA VECCHIA, Italy, July 21.—(AP.)—Guglielmo Marconi became a father for the fourth time yesterday. His second wife, the former Countess Cristina Bezzi-Scali, gave birth to a daughter, her first child.

It was announced Queen Helena of Italy would be godmother to the child at baptism.

Blackheads; Pores —how Awful!

Now don't worry over large pores, unsightly blackheads, wrinkles and perspiration that makes the skin shiny and oily. Out in Hollywood they have the recipe for an amazing lotion that quickly corrects these flaws and makes the skin beautiful. It succeeds even when the finest special soaps and creams have failed.

The very minute you pat it on the face and neck it gets down deep into the skin and cleans out the dirt that solidifies in the pores and causes blackheads. Gently it tightens up the skin, erases wrinkles and closes the pores.

Soon, very soon, this lotion makes the skin smooth, good-looking and thereafter keeps it youthfully fresh. You'll notice, too, that oiliness has disappeared and perspiration doesn't bother you any more.

Get 3 ounces of Orchard White from any druggist, mix it with the juice of 2 lemons. This gives you a full quarter-pint of the finest preparation you have ever used. Try it.

Note: In the summer this lotion keeps the skin soft, free from freckles and guards against that leathery look caused by wind and sun.

Cooking Class Finds Gelatin Substitute

HONOLULU.—Trough the cooking class of a Honolulu high school the discovery has been made that excellent gelatin substitute can be made from a Japanese seaweed called "tengusa," which is found in large quantities on the Asiatic Coast and can be easily imported into Hawaii.

This class was experimenting with "kanten," which is made from the seaweed, and found that it hardened much more rapidly than gelatin.

Young Pair Wed Up to Necks In Pool

NEW YORK, July 21.—(INS.)—Standing up to their necks in water, a young New York couple was married in the pool of a nearby resort by a minister who read the ceremony from a float.

Doughboys' 'Beating' Taxi Men Recalled

PARIS.—While soldiers of the American Expeditionary force were stationed at the barracks in Paris there were strict orders that all men must be in the barracks by midnight.

It became a regular occurrence to see three or more soldiers dash from a taxicab and through the gates.

This was the signal to the sentinels to step aside and let these fellows through, then close up and not let the taxicab driver through to get his money.

DUNLAP LAUDS 176TH IN TALK AT CAMP

Pittsburgh Soldiers Set For Training After Quiet Sunday at Tobyhanna

TOBYHANNA, Pa., July 21.—The Pittsburgh soldiers welcomed the extra hour of sleep which the Sunday schedule provides, as all Sunday calls are one hour later than week days.

Religious services were held at the band stand at 10 o'clock conducted by the regimental chaplain Capt. D. P. MacQuarrie. Catholic soldiers attended mass at St. Ann's Church in Tobyhanna.

Applause greeted Col. W. R. Dunlap's address to the troops prior to the religious services. The address covered the conduct of the men both in the camp area and outside.

CITES REGIMENT'S RECORD

The colonel called attention to the long and honorable record of the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery and its predecessors dating from 1831 and including participation in all the wars of the United States during that time, including the Mexican War, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War and the World War.

He said Pittsburgh's old National Guard regiment has always been a credit to the city, the state and the nation and expressed his pride at being its commander.

In the afternoon all battalion and battery commanders visited the gun park and inspected the guns and ordnance material furnished by the federal government for field training. Intensive training will get under way Tuesday.

GREET MARYLAND BUDDIES

The Pittsburghers were glad to learn that soldiers of the One Hundred and Tenth Field Artillery of the Maryland National Guard were to be their buddies in camp again this year. A number of the Pittsburghers greeted the Marylanders on their arrival in camp. Arrangements have been made for a baseball game between teams representing the regiments for Tuesday afternoon.

A number of the vacationists at the many mountain resorts in the Poconos were on hand for the band concert by Lieut. "Izzy" Cervone's One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery Band last night.

GRETNA MEN FEEL HEAT

MT. GRETNA, Pa., July 21.—(AP)—A temperature of 95 degrees greeted some 4,000 Pennsylvania National Guardsmen on their first full day in camp Sunday. Attendance at services was the only activity required of the men.

At the Colebrook reservation the Rev. Harry N. Bassler, retiring as chaplain in the National Guard after 35 years of service, preached his farewell sermon to the One Hundred Fourth Cavalry. In an address to the men Col. E. J. Stackpole, Jr., urged them to uphold the record of the guard.

INSTRUCTORS ARRIVE

Six instructors from the United States Army arrived to begin the basic training today.

At the infantry reservation a Catholic chaplain, Capt. L. N. Wolfe, of Philadelphia, celebrated mass before a specially-built altar. Later, nonsectarian services were held. Lieut. Col. Charles Schnall, of Wayne, conducted services for the officers. In addressing the officers, Maj. Gen. William G. Price, Jr., expressed the hope that they would apply themselves seriously to continue the record the Twenty-eighth Division made in the World War.

DEATHS FEWER AT CROSSINGS

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—A decrease in railroad grade crossing accidents for the first three months of 1930 as compared to the same period last year was reported by the American Railway Association.

The report said accidents during the 1930 period resulted in 484 fatalities, while deaths during the period of 1929 numbered 562. The total number of accidents was 1,291, a reduction of 139 from the previous year, and injuries received in the accidents were estimated at 1,523 as against 1,598.

In the month of March, 1930, the association said, there were 164 fatalities at highway grade crossings. Last year this figure was 159. The number of accidents for this month was listed at 401 for March, 1930, and 436 for March, 1929.

Brookhart Scores Federal Reserve

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 21.—A denunciation of the Federal Reserve banking system and the way it affects agriculture was voiced in a lecture here by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, (Rep.) of Iowa.

Brookhart said the campaigns of the two major political parties in the last few years have been pseudo battles waged merely to further the interests of the financial centers of the country.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor.

"FASCINATING RHYTHM," "'S Wonderful," "Sweet and Low Down" and "That Wonderful Feeling"—the four numbers outside of "Rhapsody in Blue" that have made George Gershwin famous—will be played by the American composer tonight when he appears on the General Motors Family Party, WCAE at 9:30. The only American opera ever written in the jazz idiom, Gershwin's "135th Street," is one of the numbers to be played.

George Gershwin

Discussing plans of the War Department for the further development of American inland waterways, Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, will be heard on WCAE at 8 o'clock in the D. A. R. broadcast from Washington.

F. Everett, of Edgewood, writes that Tom Gerun is on GBBM, 770 kilocycles, every morning at 2:15.

Because his last name's too long to spell and too difficult to pronounce, Dick Freibertshauser is known to the KQV staff as "Dick F."

There's a possibility that KQV will have more programs of the Quality Group before fall.

* * *

Two office boys at WTAM convulsed artists the other day by their antics. Propelling a heavy truck loaded with chairs, the youths gravely bent their shoulders to the task mournfully singing "The Volga Boatman."

TODAY'S TID BIT:

The story of Cinderella and her slipper was brought up to date recently at WLW. Henry Thies and his wife visited Milwaukee where, to their knowledge, they are not known. When they left the hotel at Milwaukee Mrs. Theis forgot a slipper. With nothing but the name Thies to guide him, the hotel clerk figured correctly that it must be Theis of WLW and forwarded the shoe to Cincinnati in care of the station.

HOOVER PLANS TARIFF STUDY

WASHINGTON, July 21—(Universal)—President Hoover intends to plunge at once into a profound study of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill with the view of exercising to the limit his powers of revision under the flexible clause, it was believed here today.

This is the reason ascribed for his decision not to name the new members of the Tariff Commission at this time, it was said in political circles.

Under the flexible clause the President is empowered to raise or depress rates as much as 50 per cent. The uninterrupted round of criticism that has followed the newly-signed tariff has caused the President to decide on a closer and more leisurely examination of its commitments so that he may be in a position to make adjustments where necessary.

HOOVER TO HEAD WEST BY AUG. 10

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP.)—President Hoover expects to make public this week or early next week the itinerary and date for starting upon his western trip.

With the Senate nearing the end of its session, White House aides are busy laying definite plans for the jaunt and it is believed the Chief Executive will be able to leave by August 10, to be gone probably until the first week in September.

Mr. Hoover expects to spend about a week in Glacier Park, stopping at two medicine chalets on Two Medicine Lake. Trout of the Cutthroat and Rainbow species, weighing up to 2½ pounds, abound in the lake.

Leaving Glacier, the party will move southward to Yellowstone park, probably by motor. The President's further plans are indefinite, depending on how long he can absent himself from the capital.

Roosevelt before he calls an extra session of the legislature to provide for a general investigation, he has indicated in a letter to legislative majority leaders.

The Governor informed the leaders, in answer to their recent letter, that any matters pertaining to irregularities in the offices of city magistrates was within the jurisdiction of the appellate division.

Gov. Roosevelt emphasized that his reply should not be construed as a refusal to call a special session of the Legislature, but rather as a plea for an exhaustion of all other procedure prescribed by law before legislative pressure was brought to bear.

Identity of Fliers In Crash Mystery

FRANKLIN, Pa., July 21.—Efforts to learn the identity of a pilot and his passenger, shaken up in a crash of their plane two miles from Emlenton, have availed nothing. The men said they were on their way to Detroit, and would make arrangements to take care of the damaged plane later.

TWO AIR LINE MERGERS NEAR

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP.)—The New York World says negotiations are in an advanced state for merger into two dominant groups of four of America's leading air lines.

Merger of the Transcontinental Air Transport's "Lindbergh Line," with Western Air Express is one of the projected deals. The other is consolidation of forces by the Pan-American Airways, Inc., and the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires line. The last two lines have been struggling for control of South American air commerce for several months. Their merger would link approximately 30,000 miles of air mail lines.

PILOT AND GIRL DIE IN CRASH

AMARILLO, Tex., July 21.—(AP.)—Clarence Thuett, airplane pilot, of Vega, Tex., and Miss Marietta Hall, 15, of Adrian, Tex., a passenger, were killed when Thuett's ship banked steeply, went into a nose-dive and crashed.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 21.—(AP.)—Lieut. William Patteson, U. S. Army pilot from Roosevelt Field, escaped with cuts of his face when the plane he was taking off in crashed at the Mid-Valley Airport. He was treated at a hospital.

The WILSONS' Social Secretary
Wrote Her Fiancé the Inside Story of What Happened in Paris

Only two persons—Woodrow Wilson's wife and their social secretary—knew what Wilson endured in Paris as he fought Clemenceau, Orlando and Lloyd George, with the world's fate at stake.

Each night the secretary, Edith Benham, wrote her fiancé, Admiral Helm, telling what the President that day had confided about the actors in that drama behind guarded doors. Intrigue . . . spies . . . secret treaties . . . the things that broke his heart.

AMUSEMENT GOSSIP FROM HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS AND OUR OWN THEATERS

Actress, Loaned, Unable To Return, Another Takes Her Place

By HARRISON CARROLL.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 21.—A sudden switch in cast at M. G. M. finds Kay Johnson replacing Lucille Powers as the feminine lead in "Billy the Kid."

With the picture almost completed as far as Miss Powers' work was concerned the studio loaned her to Warners, only to discover that they had placed themselves in a perplexing situation when they decided to add several sequences and make a few retakes.

Kay Johnson

Miss Powers was in the midst of production on the Warner lot and could not be spared hence the substitution. By putting Miss Johnson in the role some five or six days must be spent in retaking the scenes in which the former leading woman has appeared.

The company was away on location but luckily Miss Powers did not appear in any of these scenes. Opposite Miss Johnson is Johnny Mack Brown who is playing the title role of Billy the Kid. King Vidor is directing.

COMFORTING GIFT

Current with the printed report that Charles Kenyon, divorced husband of Jane Winton preferred to spend his evenings at home rather than attending cafes prompted the scenario department at Warners to pay a call on their fellow writer.

Headed by Joseph Jackson the members of the staff crashed into his office. After a lengthy speech by Jackson Kenyon was presented with a pair of house slippers to make the long winter evenings before the fireside more comfortable.

When Cleopatra sent her emissaries out over the known world to collect perfumes for her bath she had nothing on Hollywood. M-G-M has secured the services of Alexander Toluboff who, for years, actually laid out towns for colonization for the Russian government, as the art director on "New Moon."

Grace Moore

Toluboff is designing exact replicas of the colorful vilages of Turkestan, the locale picked for the musical play which will co-feature Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore.

BILLY'S SIDELINE

The property is located in the heart of Hollywood and Bill is building the course into one of the most tricky and elaborate of the hundreds that now grace the city in order to catch the movie trade.

Besides the links, which will be attended by uniformed assistants, a large pavilion is being constructed where guests may obtain refreshments.

The opening day will find many stars present to wish the director success on his venture and incidentally to play as Hollywood is taking its "putting" seriously these days.

One of the fashionable restaurants on the boulevard has installed several coats in the checkroom for the hot weather siege, and the customer who arrives in shirt sleeves is given one before he is allowed to go into the dining room. If he declines the offered courtesy he is not served.

SPECIAL EQUIPMENT

A special radio booth has been installed in one of the sound stages on the R K O lot for Amos and Andy.

"Amos" Gosden

While the two radio stars are filming "Check and Double-check" they broadcast their daily routines over this equipment. Paul Whiteman was another star who had a sound stage equipped for broadcasting when he was making his picture for Universal.

* * *

Out of the 11 all-American players imported by Warners for the big game in "Maybe Its Love" only William Banker, halfback from Tulane, remains.

Banker, who shows promise of being a good movie actor has been given a term contract and a good part in "Barber John's Boy."

This is the picture that kept Lucille Powers from returning to M G M. Opposite her is Philip Holmes who sustained a fractured cheek bone a few days ago when his car was overturned in a wreck. However the injury is not serious enough to cause him to be replaced in the picture and the company is shooting other scenes awaiting his recovery.

A RUSH ORDER

They are telling a story of a prominent producer who telephoned an agent and said:

"What we need in our scenario department are several geniuses. Round up several tonight so that I can interview them tomorrow."

"CHEER UP AND SMILE" RADIO COMEDY IN HARRIS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Cheer Up and Smile," photoplay in the Harris is a conspiracy on the part of Howard J. Green, who made the adaptation, and Richard Connell, author of the original story abetted by a troupe of actors, to cause you to comply with the command of the title. Although it is not riotously funny one does smile most of the time.

Arthur Lake, suspended from college for 30 days because of an initiation prank, becomes a trap drummer in an orchestra. Fired when Pierre, owner of the place where he works, discovers his wife flirting with him, he is almost immediately rehired. In the interim he has sung over the radio very nervously because robbers were staging a hold-up and needed someone to sing as cover for their job. His halting song goes over big and he becomes a radio favorite. Then the gal he had left back home comes upon the scene and there are further complications of a merry if not convincing nature.

Besides Arthur Lake the cast includes Dixie Lee, as the girl, Ogla Baclanova as the flirtatious wife of Pierre, who is played well by Charles Judels, "Whispering" Jack Smith and others.

Care's Orchestra For River Dancers

Tommy Care and his 10 Virginians will play for dancing on the steamer Greater Pittsburgh Tuesday. Wednesday night an old-fashioned dance will be directed by Johnny Jones. Elmer Bachman will demonstrate high diving. Prior to the boat ride the radio stars and city officials will attend a private dinner aboard the steamer.

Show Boat Opening Listed for Tonight

City officials and others will be guests of Capt. J. W. Menke tonight at the opening of the local engagement of his floating theater, the Golden Rod show boat, Montrose Hotel landing, near Aspinwall. The opening play, "Tilty Ann," will be presented by the company. During the engagement only night shows will be given, beginning at 8:45.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

That if you drink water while drinking champagne you will get tighter, and if, on the morning after a champagne drunk, you drink any aqua, you get cockeyed all over again.

That peanuts weren't eaten in Great Britain, but were used to fatten hogs, until U. S. candy manufacturers began shipping them into England in salted or candy form. Haw!

That Kansans talk like Vermonters, which is easily explained by the fact that the New Englanders colonized Kansas in the 50s.

That scientists now say Adam and Eve were Chinese.

That China has more cities of over a million pop. than the U. S.—Canton, Shanghai, Peiping, Ching-Tu and many cities that you couldn't pronounce.

That the Mississippi River water, which is mostly mud by the time it reaches New Orleans, is so filtered and chemicalized that the city has one of the country's purest drinking water supplies.

That in Aberdeen, Scotland, recently during a street collection amounting to several thousand dollars the collection plates revealed 800 foreign coins, over 200 washers, 34 buttons, tokens, nails and safety pins. (Which justifies all those jokes!)

That an Australian engineer has invented a piano which generates and distributes heat while it is being played.

That the nuisance, the chain-letter, is an imitation of the letters worn around the neck (in silver cases) by superstitious Africans. They are called "Great Magic" letters (witch-doctor stuff).

That they are making rainfall (heavy drizzles) in Holland by dropping hunks of ice on clouds from an airplane.

That since prohibition more than 1,300 persons have been killed in the effort to enforce the law and over 600,000 persons have been arrested or fined for violating the damb thing.

That when a ship was launched in olden days, a slave was sacrificed so that the gods would bless the new vessel. From that "cheery" custom comes the modern method of breaking a bottle against the side of a ship.

That the screw of an Atlantic liner revolves about 630,000 times between Liverpool and New York.

That in England tubes (subways) they have hit upon a new gag to lessen the noise of wheels—experimenting with wooden ones.

That the first wireless phones were used on Catalina Island.

That you can get a Mexican divorce in 45 days without going there. (Kathryn Ray, frinstance.)

That "Wolves" is Broadway slang for booking agents.

That "a creep" is slanguage for an L. D. G. (low down guy).

That when a girl at Long Beach said to her girl friend: "Harry wants me to give him something to remember me by," the girl friend cattily replied: "Why don't you let him have one of your bathing suits to put in the back of his watch?" (Services Friday at her late home.)

That owls have four toes on each foot.

That Page 14 of the current Beautician contains the only sensible interview ever written about beautiful women. The beauties, according to the sexpert, being G. Garbo, G. Glad, Katherine Burke, L. Damita and E. Laye.

That George Jean Nathan is doing the Black Forest and German Beer towns with Eugene O'Neill, and of the German Beer towns, Nathan writes: "The world holds no better imitation of heaven!"

And that Nathan adds: "France is empty of Americans. Consequently it is more agreeable than ever."

That a man tagged Edward F. Whynper, first man to climb the Matterhorn, broke his neck ascending steps to a speaker's platform.

That there is a honey of a story in the taxi driver who parks in front of the Manger Hotel. He is married to a "Vanities" dolly—owns two cars and Yurrops it every season in style.

That a former cartoonist, at one time as famous as Rube Goldberg and Ripley, is now analyzing handwritings for a living.

That if you do not want passersby to see through your window screen (but if you want to see the passersby) then paint the outside of the screen white and the inside of the screen black.

That King George V owns the building at 200 Fifth Ave.

And that a woman who talks in her sleep is not nearly so irritating as one who merely keeps smiling.

5,000,000 IDLE IN EUROPE

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP.)—The total number of unemployed persons in Europe, excluding Soviet Russia, from which no figures are available, is currently estimated by official compilation as just above 5,000,000.

R. M. Stephenson, Commerce Department agent, commented that while the totals made unemployment "Europe's most pressing concern" at present, it was probable general adoption of government relief measures and greater preoccupation of governments with welfare work than in pre-war years combined to exaggerate the appearance of unemployment. He declared:

"It can be pointed out that, while unemployment is greater now than in the pre-war period, so also is employment."

France had by far the least unemployment, while English and German figures of the workless rose to around 2,000,000 in each case.

"It Controls the Nerves"

"I am a saleslady in a store. My nerves got the best of me and I never had good finger nails because I could not stop biting them off. My appetite was poor and I was always tired. One of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I know that it controls the nerves because I have no desire to bite my nails now, and they are long and well kept. My appetite is enormous and I feel like a new person. I have recommended your medicine to many girls with the same good results."—Ethel Fleetwood, 3023 Bandin Street, New Orleans, Louisiana.

REVOLT BALKED IN PORTUGAL

LISBON, July 21.—(AP.)—The Portuguese government has deported to the Azóres 27 soldiers and civilians accused of participation in two conspiracies against the dictatorship within the past fortnight.

The situation was reported quiet all over Portugal, though a slight public unrest was apparent in the capital.

The Democrats, who came to power in the revolution of 1926, but lost it subsequently to the dictatorship, are said to have marshalled all their forces for the revolutionary attempt.

The police raided the houses of the principal conspirators. Hundreds of civilians and soldiers were taken prisoner, and truckloads of documents were seized.

RHINE FREEDOM CELEBRATED

MAYENCE, Germany, July 21.—(AP.)—Solemn thanksgiving services for the release of the Rhineland from French control were held here Sunday, with President Von Hindenburg participating.

The president attended the services at the principal Protestant church here, and joined heartily in the anthem, "Now Thank We All Our God." Similiar services were held at the Catholic cathedral.

President Hindenburg read a long address afterward at a meeting in the city hall, extending greetings to the population of the Saar region, whose steadfastness under the "foreign yoke," he said, deserved the nation's gratitude. The reunion of the districts to the German fatherland he declared to be the best guarantee of European peace.

PRIEST SHOOTS CHICKEN THIEF

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 21.—(AP.)—Arthur Hunt, 46, was shot and seriously wounded by the Rev. Justin Smith, 49, of St. Agnes' Catholic Church, who told police he caught the man robbing the church's chicken coop. Hunt recently completed a prison sentence for chicken stealing.

The priest said the church sold the chickens' eggs, and that about $100 worth of fowls had been stolen recently. No charge was placed against him.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

Where the William Penn Hotel now stands there was once a cemetery. . . . When a railroader says "big nose" he's talking about a Mallet locomotive. . . . And when he barks, "Cut the string," he means, "Uncouple the cars". . . . The government inspector who comes to town to check up on local aviation rides the railroads. . . . And Dentist Red Perlman, who was one of Pitt's best linemen 10 years ago, could step in tomorrow and hold his own. . . .

Pittsburghers chuckle when Gen. Goethals, who built the Panama Canal, is recalled. Official Pittsburgh was excitedly perturbed when the bothersome landslides occurred along Bigelow boulevard some 10 years ago. Gen. Goethals agreed to come here, for $500 per day, and solve the slide problem. For two days he sized up the situation silently. Then somebody asked the solution. The general collected his pay, packed his bag and advised: "Let 'er slide."

Newspapermen, too, chuckle when the visit of Thomas Edison's son is remembered. It was about the time when Mr. Edison's questionnaire to prospective employes was all over page one. A reporter sought out the younger Edison and confessed that he wanted the inventor's son himself to submit to that questionnaire, just for fun. "Young man," said Edison, "I wrote those questions."

AN HE WROTE IT!

We do not wish to be disrespectful to Secretary Mellon, but the fact remains that he was cut short, more or less, by a colored redcap on his recent visit to town. The story goes like this: Mr. Sykes, the Sun-Telegraph reporter, was in the trainshed of the Pennsylvania Railroad awaiting the arrival of the Mellon train. Mr. Sykes confided to a redcap that a big tip was in prospect on the incoming train and he told of Mr. Mellon's expectant arrival. The redcap told Mr. Sykes that he wasn't excited by the prospect of toting the Mellon baggage because when one figured his tips at the end of the day they were always pretty much the same, rich men or poor men.

To Patrolman John Reilly goes credit for arresting the first Austin baby automobile. When the patrolman saw one illegally parked in the Boulevard of the Allies he had it towed to a garage in Center avenue. The attendants there were more or less nonplussed and, having no place to park it temporarily, placed it atop a desk in the office.

I'LL SHOW 'EM WHERE TO PARK !

Incidentally, they are, of course, already perpetrating wisecracks at the baby's expense. One is: "Don't step on it; it may be Lon Chaney's."

Evangelist Blames Flappers for Vice

Declaring that "flappers" were directly responsible for most of the vice of the country, the Rev. R. R. (Bob) Jones last night opened the Tarentum Camp Meetings at a joint service of the churches of the Tarentum valley. Services will be held all this week, with Evangelist Jones in charge.

Raquel's Dad Orders Lily To Leave Town

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Raquel Rojos, a fiery beauty in revolt against her drab home in Hermosa, on the Mexican border, learns from her mother that Bill Johnson, the richest man in town, is building a house in which to install as his bride a lady known as Lily. Raquel, confident of her charms, flirts with Bill and wins a proposal of marriage. She does not love him, but she wants to free herself from the dominance of her dissolute father, Pancho. Then she decides she can't go through with it and flees on a train headed for Phoenix, Ariz. Her thoughts turn back to the ease with which she captured Bill Johnson's heart. She recalls the weeping face of Anne Schlemmer, who really loved him, and the bitter enmity of Lily, a cabaret singer, who thought Bill was going to marry her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V.

A great hunk of a cattleman half-way up in the rattling day coach had noticed Raquel. He was ogling her. His moon eyes, in the shadow of his sombrero, were searching and avid for the beauty of her.

Raquel did not flinch under his fatuous gaze. She held his eyes firm, flashing him a message of cold repulsion. His face reddened. His eyes wavered.

"Coward," she thought. And turned her head away.

Pancho, her father, was a coward. A heavy-fisted craven. How fear had drained the flush of the fiery tequila from his face the night she threw herself upon him and cried to him that he must go away, quickly, while there was time. She relived the scene, back there in Hermosa.

Lily had turned traitor. Lily was going to give him up to the law. And hadn't she, Raquel, always told him and hadn't Lucy, her mother, also told him he would come to no good end, scheming always with low peons?

Pancho had cursed and cringed and clamped about the shack in a panic of fear and rage.

Then, as abruptly as Raquel herself had jumped from the crumbling adobe wall beyond the Eldorado, Pancho shot out of the Rojos shack.

Long Vigil
Raquel Sees Men Leave For Town

It was as she hopped. Pancho entered an adobe hut with barred windows at the far end of the lane. They would be inside, those black-browed, evil-smelling companions of his, drinking tequila and boasting of their crimes. Crimes that were and crimes that were to be.

"I'll wait," she told herself. She crouched down behind a vine at a corner of the hut.

How long her vigil had lasted she could not guess. She only knew that from the hips down, her legs were numb. Her body ached with the tension of cramped muscles. She dared not move. A rustle even might bring one of the band down on her. And these men would be in no mood for parley. Skulkthere—they would strike first, discover afterward. Just to breathe was a knife in her breast. She must do something. Another minute of this agony was an unthinkable horror.

The door in the middle of the hut scraped along the hard dirt floor. Someone was drawing it inward. A man slouched to where the path leading to the hut met the lane. His head moved slowly, left to right, describing almost a complete circle. He whistled softly, and shambled down the lane in direction of the town.

Inn Deserted
Raquel Follows Men to The Eldorado

A few more minutes and two men from the cabin repeated his performance. Then two more. Then one, locking the door after him. Six in all. Something significant was about to happen.

Raquel followed the last man at a safe distance. As she anticipated, the way led straight to the Eldorado. It was getting late. Through the open door she could see Keno Joe's place was deserted save for the members of the band, the rotund Joe himself, and Lily.

No, there were two others. A stranger, tall and slender, sitting at a table with Jud Thomkins, reputed owner of rich silver mines in Zacatecas. The stranger's table was near the door. His back was toward Raquel. She could not see his face.

Raquel heard Pancho, her father, call Lily to join him and his companions. Drinks all around. Once. Twice. Three times.

"How about some of that cognac, Joe?" Pancho was feeling expansive. A luxury, cognac. A rich man's indulgence. Kept under lock and key beneath the roof.

Joe nodded his round bald head. He went to fetch the cognac.

No sooner had his short fat body disappeared up the stairs than the scene in the room underwent a swift change. As if a magician's wand had been waved over it.

Lily Warned
Band Orders Her To Leave

"Everybody back. Quiet now. Nobody'll get hurt if they obey orders."

Raquel saw the glint of steel. Lily was struggling to pull away a dark hand clamped over her mouth. They were binding her. A dirty red bandana handkerchief replaced the hand over her mouth. Another knotted her hands behind her. Her straw-colored hair, rumpled in the struggle, stuck out fantastically in thin wisps and curls.

The two men at the table near the door had risen and stepped back against the wall. Raquel guessed they were unarmed. But whether they were or not, they must have known this was no occasion for argument.

Lily Trembles
Afraid as Band Kidnaps Her

"Easy now, Lily," Pancho warned. "We just kind of decided, me and my friends here, that this town of Hermosa is not any too good for you. Thought you might like a change of air. We aim to help you get it. We'll take you across the border tonight and see you get on a train in the morning. You're headin' south, Lily. Best not to stop till you get to Torreon. Or Mexico City."

Lily's knees were giving way under her. Two of the band supported her toward the door.

"And Lily," Pancho called

BUILDING NEW ART COLONY

By PENELOPE REDD

Hitherto artists in Pittsburgh have found painting space where and how they could without any of the romantic embellishments which remove the artist's labor from the workaday world.

Penelope Redd

Occasionally, the blither spirits have sought out houses huddled in forgotten courts and islanded by surrounding skyscrapers, but always have they been rou'ed by encroaching construction.

Now Pittsburgh artists are to benefit by an initial experiment at remodeling a group of six houses on Market street near Third avenue.

Theodore Eichholz, who is working on the project, will use the existing shell and adapt the plans to convert the irregularities into the unexpected and the piquant.

One of the buildings has a spiral staircase and all manner of sliding walls; another lends itself to a galleried effect; in a third, prosiac mildew has made a patina which may become the motif of a decorative theme.

The exterior will be of brick laid up in old patterns, while mullioned windows, turrets, weathered timbers, and all the other elements essential to such a scheme will complete the ensemble.

If Pittsburgh artists respond, it is said other groups of old buildings will be similarly treated for studios.

The body of Nufar Hudnick, 40, of No. 2 Mine, Castle Shannon, was found suspended from a tree in a lot near Poplar and North streets, Castle Channon.

MYSTERY GAME FOR PICNICKERS

Excitement and busy search are expected to reign at West View Park Wednesday as 15,000 persons comb the park in search of persons holding duplicates of their tickets, making them eligible for the special Sun-Telegraph Mysterious Numbers contest prizes, according to Wilfred S. Kuhl, general chairman of the picnic committee for the Business Men's Association of the East North Side.

Howard Teufel

Among the tickets to be passed out will be certain ones which will have duplicates. Those who find persons with pasteboards whose numbers are duplications of their own will be given special prizes by the Sun-Telegraph when they present the pair of tickets at the clearing house in the dancing pavilion.

A list of honorary judges for the athletic events of the Business Men's Association of the East North Side picnic has been announced by Howard Teufel, athletic chairman.

Leading the list is County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, who, Teufel says, has promised to attend the picnic.

Others are: County Commissioners Charles C. McGovern and E. V. Babcock, State Representative Morris Einstein, Councilmen Robert Garland, Charles Anderson, Harry A. Little, Charles A. Waldschmidt, George J. Kambach, W. Y. English, John S. Herron, R. J. Alderdice, C. B. Connelley, M. J. Muldowney.

DR. COAKLEY DENOUNCES VIOLATORS

Lawlessness Epidemic, Priest Says, Urging Recourse to Ballot to Bring Reform

Deploring contempt for civil law the Rev. Dr. Thomas F. Coakley, in Sacred Heart Church yesterday called on legislators to be prudent in passing laws and citizens to be obedient to all laws. He said:

One of the striking characteristics of this age is its lawlessness. Disrespect for law has become, an epidemic. The laws governing a decent restraint in speech, in print and in dress are violated with a degree of flagrancy unknown to any former generation.

JAILS FULL, ROADS BLOODY

"Our jails are filled to overflowing; our highways are shambles, reddened with the blood shed by careless, drunken, homicidal drivers of automobiles. Our streets are the battleground of gangsters; no department of human life seems immune from the most violent and persistent law breaking.

"Against this orgy of contempt for all law, it is high time for us to lift up our voices and to proclaim the sacredness of those enactments that emanate from the legitimate public authority. Civil laws, the laws of the city, state and nation, demand obedience in conscience, under pain of sin, because they arise from the civil power which God has clothed with his sacred delegated authority.

"That a law is not to our liking, or that it is not a perfect law, does not exonerate us from obeying it. All law is a restraint upon our liberty, and we must all sacrifice something for the common good. That is the very definition of a law; it is an ordinance enacted by the supreme legitimate public authority for the common good of the citizens of the commonwealth. Whether the law is wise or not need not concern us. Prudence is the virtue that lawmakers must practice; obedience is the virtue the citizens must practice. If you do not like the law, be patient until the next election time, when you will have an opportunity to vote for representatives who will reflect your wishes. But until then you must obey, and you have no recourse. You elected those representatives who made the laws, and good sense as well as good sportsmanship requires that you obey.

DUTY TO OBEY

"So in our conversations, in our contacts with others, in our public relations, in every situation that we come face to face with the law and its operation, it is the solemn and imperious duty of every one of us to obey it loyally and unflinchingly and ungrudgingly. Moreover, it is the duty of parents not only to give an example of respect for law, but to daily teach to their children reverence for the laws of the land, all of them. Not to do so is to fail in a bounden duty, for Holy Scripture tells us:

"Let every soul be subject to higher powers; for there is no power but from God; and those that are, are ordained of God. Therefore he that resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God. And they that resist, purchase to themselves damnation." (Rom. 13—1-2).

Glendale, Crafton Police Held as Rum Runners

John Kranko, Glendale police chief, and Gregg E. Manning, Crafton motorcycle patrolman, were held for court by a United States commissioner today on charges of possessing and transporting liquor.

This is the story they told at the hearing:

They did, at a house in Chestnut street, Carnegie. As they were returning to the banquet, with five gallons of moonshine and two pints of bonded whisky, prohibition agents hailed them.

They were released on $500 bail.

RIOTING MARKS MEXICAN VOTE

EL PASO, Tex., July 21.—(AP.)—Virtually martial law was maintained in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, today to prevent a recurrence of the sanguinary rioting which accompanied the state election in Juarez yesterday.

A man was slain, five were stabbed and a policeman was injured before order was restored. A mob of 700, in which women were conspicuous, engaged in hand-to-hand fighting in one Juarez precinct.

Charged with demonstrating against the administration, 23 members of the Socialistic League of Resistance were incarcerated.

Order was restored when National Revolutionary party officials, who compose the dominant Juarez administration, took over the polls. E. Rivera, Juarez chief of police, immediately ordered off the street all persons who had been drinking, also that all found carrying arms be arrested.

Election of Andres Ortiz, prominent engineer of Chihuahua City as governor, was conceded by followers in Juarez of Manuel Prieto, rival candidate. They insisted, however, that their right to vote was denied and plan a protest to the Federal government claiming unfairness and coercion by police.

Robbers Speed Past Police Of Two Towns, Abandon Stolen Taxi in Bellevue

Detectives today were searching for two Negroes who stole a taxicab in Beaver Falls and abandoned it in Bellevue after police had put it out of commission with several volleys of shots. The thugs were frustrated in an attempt to hold up a motorist at Freedom, when employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad at the Conway yards went to his assistance, police said.

The bandits ran the gauntlet of Freedom police under Chief P. A. Anderson, Motorcycle Patrolmen Thomas Whitmore and Howard Doughty, of Sewickley, and Patrolman Michael McPherson, of Bellevue. McPherson, using a sawed-off shotgun, disabled the cab.

MAN SLUGGED, ROBBED

Police also were searching for two Negroes, who slugged Benjamin Scottoni, 44, of 231 Simpson avenue, Wilkins Township, near East Pittsburgh, and robbed him of $30 early today.

Scottoni had put his automobile in his garage for the night and was about to enter his home when accosted by the thugs, one of whom hit him above the right eye with a blackjack, he told police.

A gang of automobile thieves, known as the "Flying Squadron," accused by police of robbing numerous automobiles and stealing cars here during the past few months, is the object of a city-wide search.

Two robberies of parked cars were reported to the Detective Bureau yesterday, one by S. M. Long, a shoe salesman, who parked his car near a downtown hotel, and the other by B. M. Matson, of 149 Hazelwood avenue, who said golf clubs valued at $34 were taken from his car, parked in front of his home.

HELD AS ASSAILANT

Jacob Emph, 25, of 580 Farnsworth street, Clairton, is being held today in the county jail, accused of being one of two men who early Sunday attacked E. M. Zennesvylle, of 33 Claus avenue, Carrick, and attempted to rob him in Bethel Township. Constables of Bethel Township are searching for the second suspect.

Zennesvylle told police he met Emph and a friend in Broughton and that the three went for a ride. They visited an alleged speakeasy and afterward continued their ride. It was near the Longview bridge that the attempted holdup occurred, he said. Zennesvylle told police he was hit on the head with a hammer and knocked unconscious.

Constable Ben W. Smith and John Maffung, of Bethel Township, passed the machine at the time of the alleged holdup. Both Emph and his companion attempted to flee, they said, but Emph was halted by several shots.

DISPERSE 2,000 INDIA RIOTERS

BOMBAY, July 21.—(INS.)—While V. J. Patel, acting president of the Indian National Congress, hinted at a conditional compromise today with the British government, a mob of 2,000 natives at Jubbulport clashed with police in an attempt to prevent removal of liquor from a government warehouse.

Fifteen rioters were shot and 12 policemen injured after baton charges had failed. Police fired eight rounds of buckshot to disperse the demonstrators. The mob had rushed a motor lorry as it attempted to leave the warehouse, loaded with liquor.

Patel, pointing out in his speech to a large gathering here that India has no quarrel with Englishmen or England in itself, said:

> "I am ready to come to terms once the British government extends the definite promise our demands will be met. If this promise is given, I am prepared for a compromise."

COURT STRIKES OUT EVIDENCE ON VOLPE

Judges Hold Testimony on Tax Receipt Cannot Be Used in Vote Fraud Case

In an opinion handed down today in the Wilmerding election fraud case, Judges Samuel H. Gardner and Frank P. Patterson ruled out testimony covering an alleged forged tax receipt used by Mrs. Margaret McKim in the November election. It was held this did not constitute proper rebuttal evidence.

The purpose of the evidence offered before Thomas J. Prager, the master, was to contradict testimony of James Volpe, councilmanic candidate, that he had not procured a large number of tax receipts prior to the election.

Final disposition on the point was held up by Prager until the jurists made a ruling.

In their opinion the judges held that while the evidence might constitute a denial of Volpe's testimony, it was not rebuttal because it did not deny any part of the original petition.

Previously it had been testified that Volpe boasted he had gone to the court house and purchased tax receipts totaling $700. In Volpe's testimony he said that he had purchased receipts only to the amount of $70, but all had been secured in a legal manner by acting as agent for others in Wilmerding borough.

DINERS ROUTED BY FIRE

Twenty-five diners were driven from an East End restaurant when flames damaged three frame buildings early yesterday. The fire originated in the one-story frame building of the Pittsburgh Bottling Company, 6011 Broad street, and caused damage estimated at $12,000, according to Battalion Chief Ralph Longmore.

A pedestrian discovered the blaze and turned in alarm. Chief Longmore sounded a second alarm immediately after arriving on the scene. The fire spread to the two-story frame building of Robert Shearn's used car shop at 6013 Broad street, and to the Star Laundry, at 6015 Broad street, before it was brought under control.

Flames also caught the rear of the Gammon restaurant, 208 North Highland avenue, causing slight damage and routing the 25 diners. The restaurant was filled with smoke. It was two hours before firemen extinguished the blaze.

TREE PERCHERS IN 2ND WEEK

Brushton's tree sitters, bound to remain perched in the tops of two trees until school begins, today began their second week above the earth. They were Lawrence Gravely, 11, and his cousin, Sam King, 14, occupying a lust locust tree, and James, 14, and his brother, Robert Gravely, 9, in a cherry tree in the Gravely back yard at 631 Sickles street.

Yesterday was a trying day for the sitters. When night came and the sky gave indication of rain, they asked for umbrellas, then settled down to sleep, tied to their wooden platforms.

After breakfast this morning they announced they felt fit, and were confident the hot sun today would not drive them from their perches. At breakfast time they had been aloft 136 hours.

Three Homestead boys, Ray [illegible], 13, Paul Roper, 13, and Peter Kolan, 10, who ascended trees in West street, Homestead Saturday with the intention of making a new perching record, were chased from their roost by police after six hours.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question—The Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray, rector of "The Little Church Around the Corner," scene of many famous marriages, denounces companionate marriage as simply legal concubinage of other days. Do you agree with him?

Miss King

MISS AGNES KING, stenographer, East End — Yes, I agree with him. I don't approve of companionate marriages at all and I think all he says about them is no more than right.

J. E. CHRISTIAN, draftsman, Hazelwood —No, I approve of companionate marriages and am greatly in favor of them. I don't see why they should be any less strong than others.

J. E. Christian

Miss Pierce

MISS MARCELLA PIERCE, clerk, North side —Certainly I agree. I think companionate marriages are decidedly not right. They seem to be carrying modern ideas too far.

SMITH W. GEALY, architect, Squirrel Hill—I agree with Dr. Ray. Companionate marriage is taken too lightly and is not lasting, therefore happiness soon disappears and the result is frequently a separation.

Smith W. Gealy

Miss Mangan

MISS GRACE MANGAN, clerk, Brookline— Well of course, the success of companionate marriage depends on the individuals who try it, but I don't believe in it. There's something not just straight about that kind of an arrangement.

J. W. KRAH, department manager, Mt. Oliver — Marriage should be sacred and not treated so frivolously as people treat companionate marriages. They don't accord with the commands of the Bible anyway.

'TIGER' IRONICAL AT VERSAILLES

On the day the peace treaty was signed at Versailles, Lloyd George was sitting beside Clemenceau in the great Salle des Glaces, where the ceremony took place, when he said with eyes wandering round the magnificent room:

"Didn't something very important happen here once before?"

Very dryly and without turning a hair the "Tiger" replied:

"Yes, it was something rather important. The German empire was proclaimed here in 1871."

It was Clemenceau, too, who cynically said to Paderewski, then premier of Poland, during the peace conference:

"M. Paderewski, you were the greatest pianist in the world and you have chosen to descend to our level. What a pity!"—Kansas City Star.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY TAKING OUT CHALFANT BOROUGH FIRE TRUCK TO PUT OUT FIRE AS THEIR HUSBANDS STAY AT WORK

WOMEN TO TURN FIREFIGHTERS

The women of Chalfant Borough, lying on the hills northwest of East Pittsburgh, are tired of seeing fires in their neighborhood and not seeing the fire engines whiz by.

So they have formed the Chalfant Volunteer Firemen's Auxiliary, and within a few days, will order white uniforms and white shiny hats—all they need to make them real firefighters.

For they have the company, and intend, while their husbands are at work, to squelch all fires that need squelched. Miss Mary Fedoris is to be the driver of the fire wagon; her mother, Mrs. Mary Fedoris, is assistant chief.

And Mrs. Sara Long is the chief. They decided this at a meeting in the municipal building of the borough.

Miss Fedoris explained that the steep hills make it difficult for other companies to come to their aid during the day when the community is normally without fire protection. They intend to do the protecting, she said, and incidentally try to have the fire insurance rates of the borough reduced.

LINGLE SUSPECT BEING GRILLED

CHICAGO, July 21.—(INS.)—Somewhere in Chicago today state's attorney's investigators were grilling Frankie Foster, Aiello-Moran gang lieutenant, in a frantic effort to learn who last owned the snb-nosed revolver which killed Alfred "Jake" Lingle, racketeering reporter.

Foster, returned from Los Angeles under indictment for the murder of Lingle, was questioned in secret, with the authorities trying to get from him definite information regarding the weapon. Foster has admitted owning it, but he insists it was taken from him by a Chicago policeman, who arrested him last winter.

Although the authorities are convinced that the blond killer who murdered Lingle in a crowded subway, June 9, was not Foster, prosecutors indicated he would be held for trial without bail should he fail to give assistance. Foster and Ted Newberry, also a reputed gangster, have been identified as the pair who purchased 12 revolvers, including the Lingle murder weapon from a Chicago sporting goods store.

Meanwhile the formal investigation of the Lingle murder was proceeding slowly. The Cook County grand jury is expected to open its inquiry into the reporter's death tomorrow.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Mme. John Fitz-Randolph Entertains 50 Guests At Buffet Supper

Social activities are like little whirlwinds, whirling dizzily one minute and the next simply vanished. Last week was quite active in social circles in Sewickley with innumerable small luncheons and other informal affairs going on, two or three a day. But July is half over now, and affairs of a social nature are getting fewer and fewer.

Nearly everyone is planning now for the more formal affairs of the fall, the debuts and weddings that will make this winter a festive and brilliant one. However there are always travelers during the summer and there is one small party that I can tell you of this morning.

On Friday evening after a musicale in the parish hall of the Church of the Ascension, Mme. John Fitz-Randolph, of Ellsworth terrace, entertained about 50 guests in her home at a small buffet supper.

AMOS 'N' ANDY IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, July 19.—(INS.)—Freeman Gosden and Charles J. Correll, known to radio listeners as Amos 'n' Andy, were here today to appear in and elevate the talking pictures.

They were the center of attraction at a leading Beverly Hills hotel. Members of one group were indulging in the national pastime of discussing Amos 'n' Andy and using the dialect of those brunet gentlemen.

Newspaper interviewers meeting the two celebrated entertainers found them, without sun-tan complexions, excellent conversationalists, who spoke of early struggles and did not deny they were here "because thar's gold in them Hollywood hills."

Five years ago they "took the air" as the Harmony Boys. Everybody knows the rest of the story that has led Amon 'n' Andy to the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

POPE BLESSES U. S. TOURISTS

ROME, July 21.—(INS.)—Hundreds of American tourists, with the marchers in a procession in honor of Carmine Madonna, were treated to an impromptu view of Pope Pius XI today and received his blessing from a Vatican window overlooking Rusticucci square.

Those watching the long line of devout passing along the street, mumbling processional prayers, suddenly spied a small white figure with a red mantle and soft skull cap framed in a window of a private Vatican apartment.

The Pontiff, apparently just returned from his customary garden promenade, lifted his hand in papal blessing as the crowd knelt in the streets. Immediately afterward, he was given a rousing ovation while a band in the vicinity struck up a jubilant tune.

The adult classes of the Mt. Lebanon Baptist church have combined for July and August, holding the regular morning service in the building now under construction on Alabama avenue. A schedule of teachers has been arranged for these special meetings.

ROCKEFELLER'S TRUST GROWS

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP.)—A report filed in Supreme Court disclosed that the $3,640,311 trust fund established by John D. Rockefeller in 1917 for his daughter, Mrs. Alta Rockefeller Prentice, has a present market value of $18,262,237.

The report, filed by Sidney C. Crane, as referee, to take the accounting of the Equitable Trust Company, as trustee, said also that Mrs. Prentice had received $6,693,220 as income from the fund.

The trust consisted of 356,350 shares of Standard Oil Company of Indiana, quoted at 57¼ Saturday on the New York Curb Exchange.

The increase was due in large measure to stock split-ups, which in one case amounted to 150 per cent.

Convention Data Given In 'News'

The address delivered by Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, at the Denver biennial is printed in full in the July issue of the General Federation News, which is just out. Through this medium is granted the stay-at-homes an opportunity of learning what was done and said at the convention. In her address Mrs. Sipple laid the responsibility for community welfare upon the individual working through the club.

A second article in the magazine is concerned with the medical scholarship and the girl who holds it at the Philadelphia Women's Medical College. This scholarship, it is interesting to remember, came into existence during the later days of the administration of Mrs. Thomas G. Winter and had its nucleus in the unused part of a fund contributed for a unit of overseas workers during the war.

The biennial as epitomized in its resolutions is told of at length and much else concerning the convention is detailed with considerable interest. Dr. Arthur E. Bestor, president of Chautauqua Institution, contributes an article on Chautauqua and the Woman's Club and the usual departments complete an issue that is of interest to club women everywhere.

SHEER FABRICS WIN SARTORIAL FAVORS AT BIG RACING EVENTS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, July 21.—The race for sartorial supremacy is always the most attractive event at any big race meet and the delightful clothes worn at such important events as that very pleasant fixture known as the "Prix de Diane," which is held every year at Chantilly. A race meet offers abundant opportunity to study clothes designed for the great out-of-doors and so a constant parade is on view comprising suits of the strictly tailored variety, ensembles of various types and costumed with a distinctly garden party air. The most successful frocks of course, are always those models that are dressy without being too fluttery, and practical looking without being too severe. Therefore one sees many chiffons and georgettes, both monotoned as well as printed in the form of suits rather than dresses that are reminiscent of foamy clouds. The outfit that looks well as a fashionable race track will look well at almost any daytime event, unless of course it be an exceedingly formal affair.

* * *

TO GIVE YOU a fair idea of what is what at the fashionable racing events here, we are sending you a sketch of a Prement model worn at the Chantilly races on the occasion of the Prix de Diane, a meeting that invariably attracts a multitude of smartly dressed visitors. This particular model is a jacket and skirt of printed georgette, small scattered figures in red, gray and black on a white ground. The separate overblouse of red georgette is belted at the natural waistline. The suit is immaculately tailored with a wealth of intricate detail. This most attractive ensemble was completed by a wide brimmed straw of transparent red crin.

* * *

THAT VERY ATTRACTIVE Frenchwoman who is now the wife of the Aga Khan is usually dressed by Worth in clothes that are chic and essentially "wearable." The other sketch depicts her latest ensemble just completed by Worth. It is of dark brown faille with a fitted shoulder yoke of turquoise blue crepe de Chine. Eyelet embroidery borders the tothed edge of the yoke. There is a narrow sash tying in front. The skirt has a shallow peplum placed halfway down and the lower part of the skirt is pleated at regular intervals. Between each cluster of pleats the skirt edge dips in a point. There is an elbow length cape tying with a scarf, which in this drawing, is carried in the hand.

FIND MASTODON TOOTH IN FISH

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—(INS.)—A mastodon tooth, weighing 1½ pounds, was found in the stomach of an 87½-pound catfish caught in the Ohio River, near West Franklin, in Posey County, Ind.

This story was vouched for today by Prof. Norman M. Grier, of Evansville College, to whom the tooth was submitted for identification. The huge catfish was delivered to the L. A. Damron fish market here where Dan Kaiser, an employe, began skinning and carving it up.

As Kaiser cut the monster cat open he discovered a heavy fold of skin in the stomach region. Moved by curiosity he cut open the fold and the mastodon tooth was revealed. Part of the wall of the stomach had grown around the tooth in such a manner that the entire tooth was inclosed.

Prof. Grier said the fish might have picked up its strange meal anywhere in this vicinity, as the mastodon remains are not uncommon in the Ohio Valley.

Veteran Mail Pilot Enters Will in Log

OMAHA, Neb.—(AP.)—Jack Knight, veteran mail flier, has his will entered in his log. Once in flying from Cleveland to Bellefonte, Pa., he thought he would be forced down and killed. He wrote: "Nov. 21, 1920—Cleveland to Bellefonte—Fog—Wrote my will."

Roosevelt Guide Springs Snappy Comeback

"Has anyone seen old Bill Sewell of Island Falls? If he's in the crowd, bring him up."

And Bill was brought up, while notables from all parts of New England were thrust aside.

"Bill, I'm glad to see you," greeted Teddy. "But I never expected a smart fellow like you would be wasting time listening to political speeches."

"And I never figured a smart feller like you would waste time makin' 'em," grinned Bill as the two shook hands.

FEDERAL TESTS GIVEN 'CHUTES

WASHINGTON.—(AP.)—To the many phases of aviation under its supervision, the government has added the parachute and parachute rigger.

Parachutes now must have certificates of approval, based on 23 drop tests.

Tests include proof of promptness of opening when the 'chute is folded and when suspension lines are twisted, as well as strength experiments and trials in which the rate of descent is measured.

Licenses are prescribed for parachute riggers who must pass examinations on their ability to pack, repair and inspect 'chutes. Riggers must be at least 18 years old.

FRANCE HONORS FIRST EDITOR

PARIS—(INS.)—Preparations are now being made for the celebration of the tercentenary of the birth of journalism in France. Dr. Theophraste Renaudot, who published the first French newspaper, The Gazette, on May 30, 1631, laid down rules which are still those of honest journalism.

In one of his early numbers this editor wrote to his readers and contributors that he did not wish them to send in news that was not absolutely true. "I intend," he said, "that the Gazette shall have no other passion than the passion for truth."

Renaudot had many powerful collaborators, such as Louis XIII and Cardinal Richelieu, but he died in extreme poverty.

TEST PERFUME ON MODELS

PARIS.—(Universal.)—Jean Patou, famous Parisian dressmaker, has a new perfume theory. He said:

"That is why I create a perfume as I creat a dress. I mix it; I test it; but the test is touching it to the skin of one of my mannikins, and that they are beautiful anyone will admit."

The minute the perfume is touched to the skin, it is smelled by experts and its future predicted.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Wall Birds Puzzled About Boy Friends

The dateless trio. That's how Fay, Bea and Belle describe themselves. And they want to know how come.

They're young. They're not hard on the eyes. They have plenty of good clothes. And they're hungry for whoopee and romance. But never a man comes their way. Or if he does, he doesn't linger.

"What's wrong with us?" they wail. "Of course we don't meet men much in our business life . . . But even when we go to a party we're just wall birds! We're getting tired of it! There must be something we can do. Please help us out.

"Dear Sally:

"Maybe you'll think we're a bunch of simpletons, but our trouble is really serious to us and so we are coming to you for help. Please will you advise us?

"We are three girls, all 20 years old. We're business girls. We're not bad looking at all. In fact a good many people have told all of us that we're pretty. We all dress well and groom ourselves carefully.

ONLY WALL BIRDS.

"Now the trouble is that we don't seem to be attractive. When we go to a party or a dance, we're just wall birds and never seem to make a hit. Not even so much as to have fellows ask us to dance. We are not wonderful dancers, to tell the truth, but we're not poor dancers either and if we had a chance to practice a little we'd improve. Practice makes perfect.

"Will you please tell us what's wrong with us? It is very monotonous just going out together, even if we are great chums, especially in this jazz age. And we'd like a chance to enjoy ourselves and maybe meet our Mister Right and fall in love. We shiver at the idea of being Old Maids. We want to live, Sally! We'd like homes and dear little children of our own. We look at girls we meet with fellows and we wonder what it is about them that wins, where we fail. They don't look a bit nicer and they haven't a bit nicer clothes than we have. But they get beaus and we don't. Wedding bells ring for them.

WHAT ATTRACTS MEN.

"Can you tell us, Sally? What attracts men, anyway? We're good-tempered. Full of life and longing for fun. But nobody seems to care. I can't think there's another such dateless trio on earth as we are.

"And how do these girls meet fellows? And where? We meet a few in our line of business, but most of them are just salesmen who rush in one minute and out the next.

"Please won't you help us? Why don't we attract men? What's wrong with us?

"FAY, BEA AND BELLE."

Yes, and men need you to complete their lives. But what are you offering that will make any man think you're the answer to a bachelor's prayer?

I'm asking that seriously because it really strikes at the root of your problem. Like most girls, you think that if you're pretty and well-dressed and willing to be amused, men should break their necks trying to grab you off! You're wrong. When a man becomes interested in a woman he seeks an answer to his own personal problem. He calls it "love" but his real reason for choosing that particular woman is some hunger or some dream within himself—and he thinks she is the answer. She may not seem an "answer" to anyone else. She may seem a perfect washout. But the man sees in her that which he wants to see and she gives him something which no other woman can give.

The woman who attracts has something to give. She soothes or she tantalizes or she rests or she inspires or she's just an understanding pal—but whatever her gift, she seems like an answer to her particular man. And even though she be homely and dowdily dressed, that man will seek her out.

But other women who may be much prettier, much better dressed, mean nothing at all to any man, for they offer nothing. They are so tangled up with their own selves—so prickly with their own frustrations—that they unconsciously repel men. They need the man, but they can't make him need them. For he feels that they have nothing to give him . . . no stimulation—no enlargement of his own life.

After all, finding Romance and holding a Job, both boil down to the same thing — you must have something to offer.

A job won't seek you out because you want it—

Neither will a man.

You must have something the job needs—

You must have something the man needs—

Then they'll both come a-running.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Treatment for sun-ray creases about the eyes: anoint with a heavy cream, sending the finger tips around in small circles. Place the first finger on the eyelid, travel very gently out beyond the eye, then come back underneath, and start again. The movement toward the nose irons the little pleatings flat and helps to erase them.

The complexion needs oil in the winter time to protect it from harsh winds and chilly blasts, and it needs it in the summer to protect the delicate surface from the sun's rays. Freckles of the milder type are kept in abeyance by use of cold cream before going out of doors and immediately after exposure to Mister Sun's burning kisses.

Do not economize on manicuring instruments. The nail file should be flexible with a fine grain that files quickly and evenly. Needle point scissors must be sharpened at least once a year if they are to do their work properly. When using the orange wood stick on stained nail eaves wrap it with cotton and dip in peroxide.

Brunettes have hardier, more weatherproof complexions than blondes, though they seldom have cheeks as colorful. Blondes are like delicate tea roses that fade early, the facial surface being of finer texture usually, with more delicate under-tissues.

Note the high-kickers on the stage. They have trim ankles. The muscles there are tight and taut, well-toned, elastic. Unless the ankle bulk is caused by thick bones, it can be reduced and made to take on slender lines. Lift up on the toes and down again. Toe dancing develops the calves of the legs.

With bouyant health, a sound nervous system, a digestion that works like a clock, a woman should awaken in the morning feeling as if she can carry the world on her shoulders. A before-breakfast headache signifies that the pick-up processes of sleep have not been complete, that body repairs are not sufficient, or that the intestinal tract is sluggish. Headache accompanies nearly all intestinal disorders.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

after her. "It'd be plumb foolish of you to come back any time whatsoever. Some of us around here knows who it is you're shieldin' that shot Pascal Peres in the back. So you'd better not show up here again!"

An impulse to step inside, to give the fillip of her presence to this exciting play seized Raquel. She gave way to it.

She stood, straight and slim, the vividness of her thrown into startling relief by the dusky curtain of night outside the door. A half smile gave an upward curve to the crimson bow of her lips through which her teeth, closed tightly, shone blue-white. A spray of purple bougainvillea from the vine under which she waited was caught in the black swirl of her hair. She might have been a bacchante, piquante, eager for the feast.

The "escort" had brought Lily to the door. Raquel moved aside that they might pass. Lily's rolling, protruding eyes were arrested by the apparition of youth and beauty and smiling approbation which confronted her. A groan escaped from under the dirty red bandana. Her ripe body stiffened.

"I'll tell Bill Johnson you were in such a hurry to leave you couldn't stop to bid him goodbye," Raquel lilted after the trio. "Good luck, Lily, my fat trussed hen."

"Who is she?" it said. "She's beautiful. Beautiful as a dream. But hard-boiled. And how!"

Raquel walked slowly, swaying with the lithe grace of a young sapling, toward the group of evil-looking men standing with her father at the table.

"Well done, Pancho," she said. "Come on. The play is over. Time we went home."

The men were pocketing, holstering their guns. Keno Joe came wheezing down the stairs with the cognac.

"Where's Lily?" Joe wanted to know.

Girls Need Life Among Strangers to Appreciate Home, Says Fay King

SHE THINKS SHE'S VERY GROWN UP AND BEGINS TO THINK OF LIVING HER OWN LIFE
AT SIXTEEN THE WORLD SEEMS VERY WONDERFUL!

FAY KING

By FAY KING

Parents have reason to despair when young daughters no longer appreciate a good home and resent all loving advice from their elders.

The youngsters are not wholly to blame, either. At sixteen they begin to feel quite grown up, and they begin like growing birds to long to try their wings out in the world.

What they need most is a little taste of being away from home among strangers, a good dose of neglect and loneliness and homesickness.

It is true parents send their children off on trips to visit Aunt Kate and Uncle Jim. But that is just like being home.

A few weeks among strangers who don't care would bring them back appreciating that love one never finds anywhere but home!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Offers Mary Fortune to Give Up Noel

I took the letter which Mary thrust into my hand as if it were any ordinary epistle, but my mental motor was racing with the query as to whether this letter was the one of which Katherine had told me, the one, which delivered to Mary at the same time Noel received a similar one, had so markedly upset both young people.

"You're sure I ought to read this, Mary," I said as I held the folded paper in my hands with my eyes carefully averted from it.

"It's written to me," she retorted, a bit defiantly, "and though I suppose the old goat didn't mean me to show it around, I have the right to do anything I want to with it. I wish I could put it in the paper and just show him up for the old hyena he is."

A little premonition as to the writer of the letter I held swept over me at her words, and as I opened it I knew that my presentiment was right. I knew that copperplate chirography, for I had seen it many times.

"Philip Veritzen!" I ejaculated.

"The same, and I hope he's choking to death somewhere," Mary returned vindictively, but I did not reprove her, for I felt a secret sympathy with the rancor behind her wish. And it was with rapidly mounting anger that I read the screed she had given me.

"There was no heading save the date of a few days before, and the salutation was that of the most formal business letter, ending "My dear Miss Harrison:"

"Punctilious old lad, isn't he?" Mary grinned sardonically as I looked up involuntarily. "I suppose if he called me Mary he'd be afraid I'd sue him for breach of promise or something."

I smiled mechanically but my eyes were busy with the astonishing text of the letter.

"Before I left New York," the letter began, "I exhausted all appeals to your better nature, and gave up all hope of inducing you to give up the fantastic idea you have of marrying my son. My appeals to my son also failed, and I left the city, as you know. But you do not know that I never intended to return.

"I have since reconsidered that determination. I do not propose to have my future life changed because of the ridiculous whim of a foolish boy, and the determination of a—wilful girl."

I held the letter closer to my eyes. Before the last three words other words had been begun and crossed out. But they were still faintly decipherable. Phillip Veritzen had started to write "an unscrupulous woman," and then had changed the phrase. But I was sure that he had left the words purposely instead of rewriting the sheet.

Mary pulled down the letter and pointed to the words.

"Oh! I got the full flavor of it all right," she said bitterly. "Isn't he the sweetest old thing?"

"I haven't words to express my anger at him, Mary," I said, and meant it.

"You won't even have a syllable by the time you get through," she prophesied as I took up the letter again.

"I am now appealing to your ambition, which, I believe from careful observation of you, is the mainspring of your being. There is no use in mincing words. If you will agree to break your engagement with my son, Noel, so decisively that he never will seek to renew it, I shall put to your credit one hundred thousand dollars, and I shall also renew my old promise to make of you the most famous Veritzen dramatic star. But you must make Noel believe that you are throwing him over because you have ceased to care for him, and because you care for someone else."

I caught my breath as I read this precious paragraph, and Mary laughed again, a sound far more bitter than a sob.

"Splendid opinion he has of me, hasn't he?" she commented.

"His opinion of you should not matter to you, or to anyone who loves you," I told her soberly, and went back to my reading.

"I believe that this offer will appeal to you," the letter went on. "But if by any chance you should be as fantastically emotional as my son, let me show you the contrast between what my son will receive if he obeys me or if he marries you.

"I am a far richer man than you dream. If Noel comes back to me on my terms, he will be my sole heir. At once I shall settle a princely income upon him. His days of worry will be over. His future will be assured as I have news—but enough of that. Look on the other side of the picture. If he marries you, he has nothing but privation ahead of him. He does not know that I can control his mother's patrimony for a much longer period than he thinks now. I also have enough influence to see that his 'career'—save the mark! in New York is zero for the future.

"Think all these things over and prepare to answer me when I shall next communicate with you."

Household Hints

Avoid all extremes of heat when washing silks.

Paint the scratches of dark furniture with iodine before polishing with furniture polish and the scratches will hardly be noticeable.

So many people have army cots in reserve when company comes and usually the member of the family elected to adorn said cot objects strenuously because the covers never stay down at the foot. If two small screws with hooped ends are screwed on the side of the wooden legs of the cot and tapes sewn on the blankets, sheets, etc., at a proper distance to slip through the loops, all will be well for the night.

The Marry-Go-Round

Love's Memory Book

I am writing this on one of those torrid days when the only man that matters in a woman's life is the ICEMAN.

* * *

On such a day as this, you lie out in the porch swing and reflect on the futility of ambition, the stupidity of women who wear beach pajamas, the uncertainty of men, and the fragility of love!

* * *

Particularly the fragility of summer romances! Like "the good" and poplar trees and morning glories—they die so young! Love, like anything else planted in summer, just doesn't seem to take root.

* * *

Autumn and winter and even spring loves appear to be of a far more hardy variety. Yet, what would a woman's life be, without the glamorous memory of a few summer romances? Nothing seems quite so sweet or thrilling under a winter moon.

* * *

The mistake that the average girl makes, is in trying to keep a summer love alive, after it has begun to droop and wither and fall to pieces.

* * *

The only thing you can do is to be philosophical, pick up the pieces and lay them away in the Book of Memory, and say "That's THAT!"

* * *

Nearly every middle-aged woman's heart is a memory-book, packed with the dead roses of summer's romances. They sweeten her life with a faint reminiscent fragrance, long after the frost of time and the chill of disillusionment have settled upon her.

* * *

It is her MEMORIES that keep many a woman charming and sweet and glowing far past the age when other women have begun to get hard lines around the mouth and eyes, and to show their age in spite of all their facials and dieting.

* * *

A man is different. He doesn't seem to NEED memories. Nothing is so dead to him as a dead love. It's like last year's almanac or yesterday's newspaper. He can't even remember what there was IN it!

* * *

He just lets his dead loves lie where they fall, and rushes off to plant a lot of new ones. His heart is like one of these flower-beds set out by a landscape gardner, continually blossoming—but always with something new or different.

* * *

His summer loves are so slight that they never weigh on his mind or his conscience for more than an hour at a time; and there is seldom a perennial among them.

* * *

If one of them should last over into the autumn, he would wonder if he ought not to see a psychoanalyst and cure the "complex."

* * *

To a man, every little summer love affair is just an adventure; to a woman, it is a sort of keepsake. And she can squeeze more sweetness and thrills out of one light, passing romance than a man can out of half a dozen passionate heart affairs.

* * *

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Take Stock of Distress Symptoms After Eating

There are certain complaints which are common to most of the human race. We give advice, but constant repetiton is necessary. Time and time again society must be impressed with the importance of overcoming these conditions, in order that good health may be enjoyed.

DR. COPELAND

Constipation is one such condition. More symptoms are the result of this trouble than perhaps of any other disease. In addition, the symptoms are often so obscure they hardly seem traceable to this cause.

Poor intestinal elimination, if permitted to go on, results eventually in general poisoning, "auto-intoxication." There will be headache, bad breath, loss of appetite, sleeplessness and general discomfort. There are many other symptoms equally disagreeable.

The first thing to do about constipation is to sit down and take stock of all the symptoms from which you suffer. Nine times out of ten it will be found that there is acidity after eating, bad taste in the mouth, feeling of fullness after eating and poor elimination. There may be pain in the joints, backache, dark spots before the eyes, lack of energy, and so forth.

In the treatment of constipation the diet is most important. Avoid all fried foods, as well as excessive quantities of starch and sugar.

Add to the diet bran, coarse cereals and breads, roughage such as celery, raw cabbage and salads. Stewed fruits, well-cooked vegetables, plenty of water to drink—all these will help a lot.

Exercise is important in correcting constipation. I do not mean simply an occasional lackadaisical walk, but exercise that will give the blood circulation. Swimming, rowing, brisk walking, gymnasium exercises, "health" exercises are all beneficial.

To hasten and increase elimination the use of mineral oil is wise. This may be taken plain or with agaragar.

This use of the oil is not to produce the effects of castor oil. It merely acts by its presence, lubricating the intestinal wall and in this way encouraging the discharge of waste.

Answers to Health Queries

E. H. H. Q.—What causes deep circles under the eyes? My health is otherwise good.

A.—These blemishes may be due to lack of sleep, worry, intestinal upsets, etc. Try to find the underlying cause and the proper treatment will suggest itself.

* * *

A. E. R. Q.—What is the cause of eczema and what treatment would you suggest?

A.—The trouble may be due to a number of causes—improper diet and poor elimination are among the important factors when looking for a cause. Keep the bowels open and the system clear.

* * *

M. W. Q.—What will take away the mucus in my throat?

A.—You are probably troubled with nasal catarrh, with dropping into the throat. In its cure first attention must be given to correcting the underlying catarrhal condition.

* * *

MISS O. A. Q.—How can I reduce?

2.—What should a girl weigh who is 15½ years old and 5 ft. 2 in. tall?

3.—What can be done for constipation?

2.—For her age and height she should weigh about 112 pounds.

3.—The diet should be corrected. Most important of all, foods unduly rich in fats and starches should be avoided.

* * *

A. F. Q.—I am a boy of 16, height, 5 foot, 6 inches and weigh 160 pounds. What kind of a diet do I require.

2. How can I reduce my waistline? What are some good general exercises?

3. Would a mile of track work taken about 2½ hours after a meal every day be harmful in any way?

A.—You should cut down on sweets and starches and take systematic daily exercise.

2. By proper diet and exercise. Join a gymnasium for some systematic exercise.

3. No, this should be beneficial. It will take off surplus weight and at the same time benefit the system in general.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Details of Table Etiquette

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. With what are olives taken on to the individual plate?
2. Are they always eaten with the fingers?
3. How are pickles eaten?
4. Are French fried potatoes always eaten with the knife and fork?
5. Isn't the hostess always the one who begins the meal?
6. How is candle salad eaten?
7. When the knife is in use, is it laid with the handle on the cloth?
8. Could a luncheon cloth be used at night for four people?

M. B.

1. In silver and in silverplate we find the convenient serving piece for this. It is an olive spoon, a spoon with a rather short handle usually, and with a deep bowl that is pierced.
2. Yes—they are "nibbled" as they are held in the fingers. The pit should not be put in the mouth, that is, entirely put in the mouth, and then we need not make the unattractive gesture of ejecting it from the mouth. It should always be held in the fingers, and then, when we have finished with the olive, we place the pit on the plate.
3. If they are served with a course they are eaten with the knife and fork, as are the other items of the course. If they are served picnic fashion, they must be eaten picnic fashion, in the fingers.
4. Yes, they should be. Or with the fork. Not ever the fingers.
5. Yes.
6. With the salad knife and fork, preferably, or with the fork alone, if preferred.
7. Never should it be. After we have started to eat a course, we should, in that course, never place the handle of the knife on the cloth. Both the handle and the blade should rest on the rim of the plate.
8. Yes.

Anniversary Presents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—Is it proper for a husband to buy his wife a present on their twenty-second wedding anniversary?

2.—If so, is candy acceptable?

A READER.

1.—Proper, indeed, and thoughtful, and to be expected. I hope that he doesn't forget!

2.—Yes, but candy ALSO. The real gift, commemorative of this sacred day and its 22 anniversaries, should be of a consequential and important nature, something that takes a great deal of sweet thought and tender planning.

3.—Yes. And all of the things that I have said about the husband's present to his wife should be shown in her present to him.

When the Bride's Parents Are Deceased

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it proper for an aunt to have her niece as a maid of honor?
2. When the parents of both bride and groom are deceased, who is to send the wedding invitations?
3. With whom should the bride walk to the altar when both her father and brother are deceased?
4. What would you suggest for a maid of honor to wear when the bride is wearing a white ensemble trimmed in ermine?

PEG.

1. Yes.
2. The one nearest in relationship to the bride. For instance, a married sister and her husband; or a married brother and his wife; an uncle and aunt; a married cousin and her husband.
3. If she has a brother, it is perfect form for her to walk with him, or an uncle, a cousin, or a gentleman who has long been a friend of the family. Or, if she prefers, she may walk alone.
4. A similar costume of an interesting shade.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, July 22

The sidereal operations for this day point to a fair degree of activity and interest, with the prospect of some change, with affairs safely managed by industry and sound judgment. The mind should be well equipped for all emergencies, having highly constructive as well as solidly practical insight into affairs. The purely personal affiliations and occurrences may give concern, and may develop some disturbing as well as spectacular elements.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and interesting year, with the faculties alert and the energies under fine impetus for success and hard work. There may be change and new plans and agreements, but the personal affairs may develop an angle of mischief with some unusual or sensational experiences.

A child born on this day should be splendidly endowed mentally and by stability of character for fine success in many avenues, but may encounter small anxieties in employment. Its personal affairs may have some irregular or sensational angles.

MAJORS EVEN IN SPEED OF GAMES

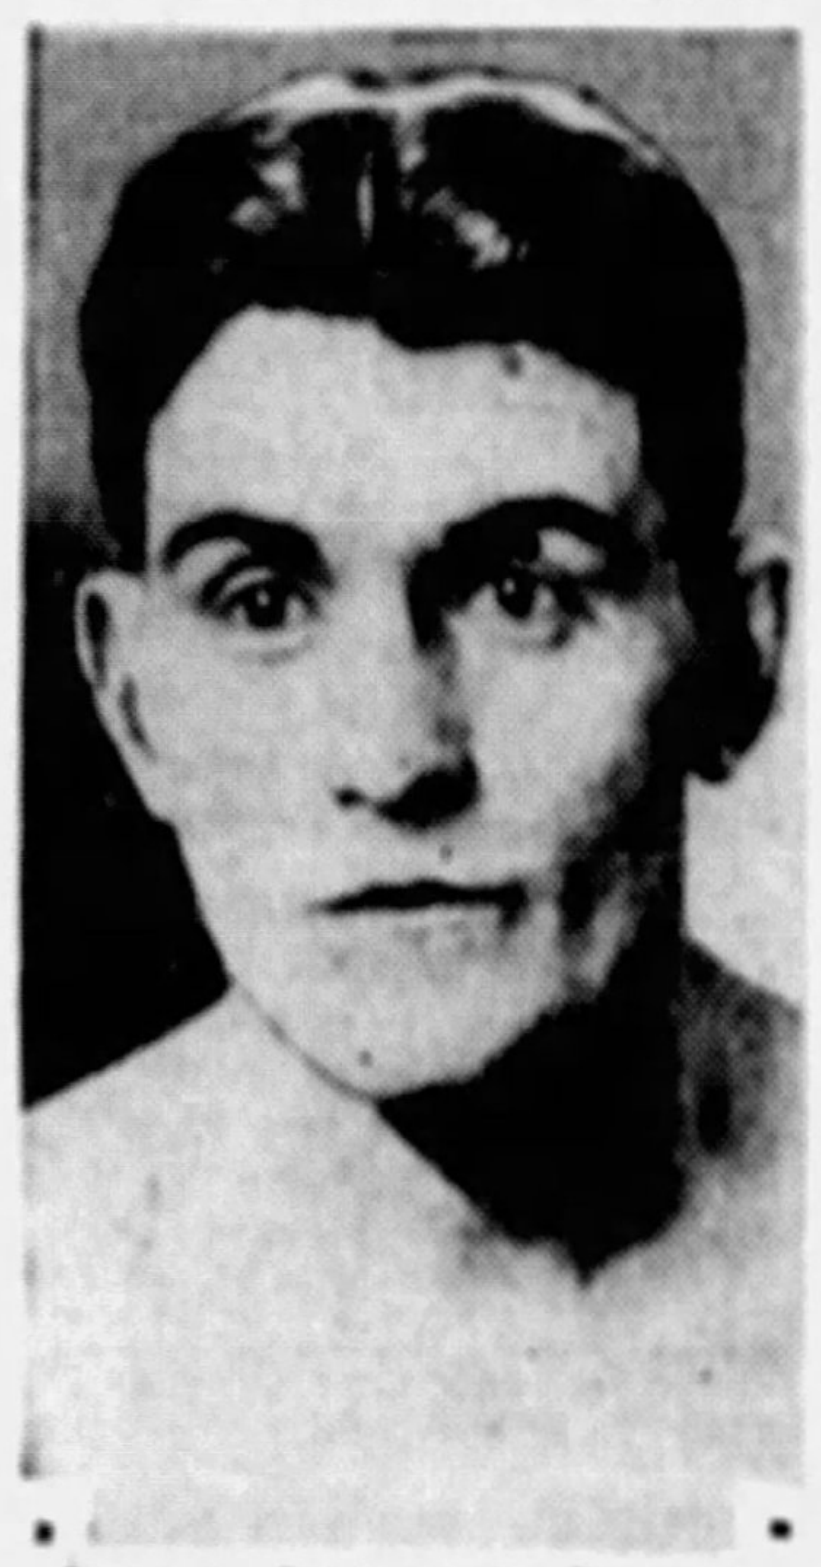
The rapier vs. the mailed fist.

In the main bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, tonight, Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, and Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, put on their fourth exhibition of this version of the Manly Art of Boxing.



Photos by Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

Fighting faces of Jackie Rodgers (top) and Johnny Dunn, local featherweight favorites, who clash for the fourth time tonight. Dunn is the boxer, Rodgers the puncher. It takes this sort of a combination to make our best fights.

Of the three previous meetings, Dunn has won the first two and lost the third. A great outburst of indignation by the fans marked the awarding of the decision to Rodgers in their third clash, at Motor Square Garden during the recent indoor season. In justice to Rodgers, it must be said he really won that scrap, public opinion to the contrary notwithstanding.

When Dunn walked off with the honors in their first two battles, Rodgers was just an in-and-out performer lacking the punching qualities he later acquired. In their third setto, Dunn was called upon to foil the heavy hitting power that had enabled Rodgers to roll up an impressive string of knockout victories. That third duel was a classic. Most of the time they were standing in mid-ring, fighting toe to toe, and had the fans up cheering.

Dunn is much the better boxer of the two, but he lacks the punch that the fans admire in Rodgers. Johnny is tall and rangy and possesses a good left hand and a clever defense. Rodgers is short and solidly built and depends on a crushing right to the body and head to finish his foes.

The fans are likely to see an entirely different sort of a battle tonight than they witnessed when the pair last met. On that occasion, Dunn was handicapped by a bad left hand and imbued with a desire to show the patrons of the sport that he can fight as well as box and depended a lot on his own right. Having demonstrated that, although fragile in appearance, he can mix with a more rugged opponent, it is not at all unlikely that he will change about and return to boxing tonight. Although Archie Bell and Dunn himself have shown us that the best way to box Rodgers is to stay in close and punch with him, Johnny may elect to take advantage of his height and reach and try to keep Jackie off hitting balance by stabbing him repeatedly with his long left and take no unnecessary chances with his right.

However the battle is fought, it has all the earmarks of another treat. A boxer opposed to a slugger almost invariably makes for the most interesting sort of a bout, and here we have the makings.

Both Rodgers and Dunn turned in a victory in their last appearances in the ring. Rodgers defeated Johnny McCoy, veteran, of Buffalo, at the Meyers Bowl when the latter substituted on short notice for Johnny Datto, of Cleveland, several weeks ago, while Dunn scored a neat triumph over Henry Lenard, Chicago southpaw veteran, who has fought the best of them. This bout was fought in Wheeling, with Lenard substituting for Tony Leone, of Dover, O., who had been knocked out by Lenard a week before in Chicago. In beating McCoy, Rodgers took the measure of a cagy warrior who previously had scored two victories over him.

Alex Fox, former Pitt captain, who recently resigned as football coach at Oil City (Pa.) High School, to take over the reins at Martins Ferry (O.) High, is stepping into a spot that is accustomed to turning out good teams and players and will have the wholehearted support of the townsfolk, according to J. F. Mullaney, one of the chief boosters and sportsmen of the town. The receipts from football at the school last season grossed $14,000, which is a lot of money in any city or language.

Some idea of the caliber of football played at Martins Ferry High may be gained from the list of players who have made good on college elevens after graduating from that school. Included in it are Edwards, formerly of W. & J., now coach at Linsly Institute; Thomas, formerly at W. & J., now coach at Adena, O.; Paden, W. & J.; Ralph Vince, formerly of W. & J., now coach at John Carroll University in Cleveland; Aiken, formerly of W. & J., now coach at Scott High in Toledo; Craver, Josephs, Sebulsky and Drobeck, West Virginia University; Herman and Hinkle, Marietta; Taylor, Judy and Vargo, Ohio State; Fest and Evans, Kentucky State; Cy Letzelter, formerly at Carnegie Tech, now at West Point; Griffiths, Western Maryland; J. Vince, John Carroll, and Renkin, formerly at Waynesburg, now coach at New Boston, O.

Fox will have 12 letter men back to start with and will have two 175-pounders, a back and a tackle, who are headed for Pitt next year.

Mention of Letzelter calls to mind the fact that he will be a strong contender for a regular berth in the Army backfield this fall. He is a sophomore and with his broad experience should fit well into

Fight Fans Keyed Up For Rodgers-Dunn Go

The Meyers Bowl boxing show is the only fistic attraction in the Pittsburgh district tonight, none of the other Western Pennsylvania arenas having shows listed.

However, other attractive bills are carded throughout the country, including an exhibition by Primo Carnera at Steubenville, O., and the Benny Bass-Tony Canzoneri non-title return battle in Philadelphia.

The fans are keyed up for the Rodgers-Dunn fourth meeting, which will be at 126 pounds, give or take a pound, at 3 p. m. Both men knocked off training yesterday, reporting themselves in the pink for the fray.

Tug Phillips, of Erie, and Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, lightweights, appear in the eight-round semi-final; Tommy Ward, of the South Side, and Bud Ciccerone, of Braddock, and formerly of Scranton, are in the second bout, and Joe Midway, of New Castle, and Jimmy (Snowflakes) Wright, of Cleveland, in the six-round opener at 8:45.

DE LUCA VS. BECKER

The eight-round semi-final at Hickey Park Thursday night between Cowboy De Luca and Al Becker, former amateur stars, now campaigning as professional middleweights, is likely to prove more interesting than the main bout, between Ike McFowler and Frankie Wine, heavies. Both De Luca and Becker are youngsters who show considerable promise and their bout should be a lively one, to say the least.

PHILLY VETERAN YIELDS; CUTS WRITING

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—(AP)—William T. Tilden, hero of many Davis Cup tennis matches, again will be a member of the United States team in the challenge round against France. This was announced last night by Joseph W. Wear, chairman of the United States Davis Cup committee.

Despite the Philadelphia veteran's announcement that he would not become a member of the American team because of his contract with a news syndicate to "cover" the matches, Wear had stated many times that he felt certain Tilden eventually would yield to the wishes of himself and other members of the Davis Cup committee.

CHANGES WRITING PLANS

As chairman of the committee, Wear said he had given Tilden permission to write tennis articles on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday prior to the opening of the challenge round, but that on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, when the matches are in progress, he would do no writing. This arrangement, Wear stated, would in no way break the player-writer rule.

Others selected to represent America in the challenge round are George Lott, Chicago; Wilmer Allison, Fort Worth, Tex., and John Van Ryn, of Princeton. No announcement as to the probable lineup of the team was made, but it appears almost certain that Tilden and Lott will carry the singles burden, while Van Ryn and Allison will be paired in the doubles. Wear said the definite selection would be left to Fitz-Eugene Dixon, non-playing captain of the team, and that it probably would not be announced until 24 hours before the start of the matches.

BIG BILL NOT PLEASED

PARIS, July 21.—(AP.)—William T. Tilden II told the Associated Press today that "against my wishes and better judgment I have accepted an invitation to play for the United States in the Davis Cup challenge round."

The American tennis star explained that the rule regarding syndicate writing by amateur contestants had been waived to a certain extent and that he would be permitted to write tennis articles for a news syndicate for the three days ending with Wednesday, July 28, but inasmuch as amateur rules forbid players in actual competition from writing articles, Tilden will not report the challenge round matches on the ensuing Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

He said he had taken a place in the challenge round at the special request of Joseph W. Wear, chairman of the United States Davis Cup committee.

The decision of the American Davis Cup committee to play Tilden in the challenge round was received with satisfaction bordering on delight by French tennis officials and fans.

The French were pleased because they felt certain Cochet would defeat Tilden. They argued that Borotra gave Tilden such a hard battle in England that he now is conceded an even chance to defeat the veteran American.

The delight of the Frenchmen came from the fact that Tilden is certain to pack the Roland Garros

Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—Victorious in five of their eight battles staged so far on the jaunt, the Pirates today were ready for the Phillies. Four contests with the Quakers are slated for three days here, a doubleheader being on the card for Wednesday.

Manager Ens said this morning he would rely on either Remy Kremer or Heinie Meine to stop the hard-hitting Phillies. Both of these righthanders have had sufficient rest since their engagements in Boston last week.

BENGE ON SLAB

In nearly every way the Pirates are in better condition than they were upon the occasion of their first eastern trip. Skipper Ens is beginning to get out of the woods so far as his pitchers are concerned, but he will have plenty of sharpshooters available as the next seven days are scheduled to bring nine diamond fights.

After finishing up here Wednesday, the Pirates will invade Manhattan for four days, five scraps being carded with McGraw's Giants. The series will wind up Sunday with a doubleheader.

The fine play of the Buccos in Boston was a source of delight. After losing two of the three games played in Brooklyn, the Buccos did themselves proud as they fought it out with the Braves. Before the series started, the Tribe had the Freebooters licked on the season's play, seven games to three, but the Buccos had some revenge in the shape of four triumphs in five games.

HURLERS CONSISTENT

More than one Buccaneer expressed regret that they did not make a clean sweep in Boston. They dropped the first game of the set after being ahead in the ninth inning. But a majority of the team was quite satisfied. The turn of fortunes in the opening game may have tended to quicken the pace of the club in the other fights.

Ens has four pitchers going along at a consistent clip in Kremer, French, Brame and Spencer. The latter is not regarded as a regular starter, but he is getting a lot of attention from the manager. Kremer and French are pitching great ball, while Brame shows signs of regaining his early season form.

The players have been bothered to no small extent by the heat, it was exceptionally hot during most of the games in Boston. The Pittsburgh Athletes were hoping for a break in the weather here.

Pete Bowen Loses In Stockholm Race

STOCKHOLM, July 21.—(AP.)—Steve Anderson, crack hurdler from the University of Washington, turned in the only American victory in an international track and field meet here yesterday. Anderson won the 120-yard high hurdles in 14 7-10 seconds with E. Weenstroem, of Sweden, second in 15 2-10 seconds.

George Bullwinkle, of the College of the City of New York, collapsed 10 yards from the finish line in the 800-meter run, which was won by B. Kraft, of Sweden. The time was 1 minute 55 seconds.

H. Koernig, of Germany, beat Pete Bowen, University of Pittsburgh sprint man, in the 100-meter dash in 10 4-10 seconds.

Nick Altrock Says:

ST. LOUIS, July 21. — Well, folks, I have to laugh at the old Maxim silencer, but no matter who had the lease on the league pent house July 4, it makes no difference today. Not in this dog fight. The teams are bunched right now like eggs in a shad roe and it wouldn't surprise me while the Robins and Cubs are fighting it out if the Cincis snuck up from ambush and won the pennant right from under their nostrils. And over in our American loop, too, the race is just about as settled as a bill for instalment jewelry.

SUN-TELEGRAPH EVENT ENDS THIS WEEK

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Superintendent of Parks James Moore and Director McCahill, local members of the Public Parks Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, have consented to make personal presentation of the prizes to winners and runners-up in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph [illegible] of the Pittsburgh Public Parks tennis championships [illegible] to close amid fine [illegible] at Frick Park Saturday [illegible] tournament [illegible] ress on the [illegible] throughout [illegible] of tremendous [illegible] only with [illegible] themselves [illegible] tennis off[illegible]

LAUDS TOURNEY

"The success of the public parks championships during its first week was most gratifying to us whose interest it is to promote park activities and to bring the people of Pittsburgh into the open for health and recreation," was the sentiment of Superintendent Moore after completion of the individual park tourneys at Schenley, Highland, Olympia, Frick, Riverview and West parks. "The players themselves turned out in remarkably large numbers and they brought with them numerous groups of followers, besides many casual spectators, all of whom we welcome to the parks and urge to use the facilities provided for tennis, golf, swimming, picnics and general recreative pursuits. I am pleased that the efforts of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to co-operate with us in furthering the usefulness of Pittsburgh's parks have met with such whole-hearted response and shall certainly be present to aid in the awarding of trophies after the final matches on our fine new courts at Frick Park."

Public Parks Commissioner McCahill voiced deep gratification over the manner in which the public courts event has been conducted to date.

"I sincerely congratulate the Pittsburgh public parks tournament committee on the speed and tact with which the preliminary park events were handled. It was a very considerable task to take care of play in as many as six parks, and the fact that it all went through without delay or wrangling is something that cannot be boasted of by a great many large open tournaments. The men charged with the task of running off the contests in the various parks must have given conscientious attention to their duties, and on behalf of the Public Parks Committee of the U. S. L. T. A. I thank them for their contribution to cause of municipal tennis."

M'CAHILL PLEASED

"It has pleased me beyond measure to see that Frank Broida and Irvin Goodman, two boys who laid the foundations of their tennis on my old asphalt court up on Bartlett street, have been successful in reaching the inter-park elimination series as representatives respectively of Frick and Schenley parks. I know that they are both sound players and that they will acquit themselves creditably in the eliminations, but I fully realize that the boys from the other parks are clever players, too, and that the new champion will be compelled to play through a field worthy of a tournament of the scope and the importance of the Pittsburgh public parks championships."

With the individual park frays now things of the past, the tourney committee turns its attention to details of the inter-park series. The three best-conditioned rectangles of the half-dozen excellent courts at Frick will be reserved for the jousting Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Special attention will be lavished upon them to whip them into perfect shape for the vital fracases. There will be no alibis based on poor surface squawks after the eliminations.

COMMITTEE MEETS

The committee is carded to decide today upon the time of play for the inter-park debates. It is probable that the preliminary round affairs Thursday and the semi-finals Friday will be staged during late afternoon and early evening, while on Saturday the final tilts will be begun early in the afternoon.

Meanwhile the draw for positions in the men's and women's brackets will likewise be made. Two players will be seeded in each division, the selections to be determined immediately prior to the draw. Seedings and pairings will be published in tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, ample opportunity thus being allowed contestants to arrange their affairs to provide for prompt attendance at scheduled hours.

ROBINS, CUBS DEFEATED

By COPELAND C. BURG,
International News Service

NEW YORK, July 21.—One of the irritating things about being ahead of anything, whether its the bill collector or merely an opponent in ping-pong, is the necessity of staying that way, and for that reason the Brooklyn Robins were all out of sorts today.

In fact, only a neighborly gesture by the New York Giants kept the flock at the front in the National League grind, the men of Manhattan bumping off the heat-dazed Cubs while the Robins fluttered into a tailspin before the St. Louis Cardinals. Brooklyn and St. Louis meet this afternoon in a doubleheader and a twin win for the faltering Robins would be as welcome as rain.

CLARK ROUTED

William Watson Clark, who last time out pitched a one-hit beauty, went to the porcelains in the second inning, and Moss and Thurston, who succeeded him, were just as bad, so the pressing Cardinals gathered it in, 15 to 6. Watkins and Frisch got homers for the winners.

Hack Wilson hit his twenty-sixth homer, which was important only up to the time Leach, Lindstrom, Terry and Ott got going. Bush and a chorus of other Chicago hurlers were not clicking and the Giants won, 13 to 5.

Lou Gehrig pounded his twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh homers and Babe Ruth his thirty-fourth, but Eddie Morgan's home run for Cleveland in the ninth with one on was the blow that counted most, winning for the Indians, 9 to 8.

GROVE STOPS TIGERS

The Senators at last may be off on that long-heralded slide. They fell, 8 to 6, before the St. Louis Brownies. Joe Judge batted for Al Crowder, Washington hurler, in the ninth and got a homer.

Circuiters by Meusel, Heilmann and Gooch won for the Reds in the opener with the Braves, 8 to 5, but Wally Berger's single and two triples and some fancy pitching by Old Man Zachary accounted the tea tilter to Boston, 13 to 1.

Boston bit deeper of bedrock as the White Sox took a twin bill. Ted Lyons registered his fourteenth win of the year, 16 to 4, in the starter and McKain got credit for the second triumph, 5 to 4, Caraway embracing the showers in the seventh.

WHIPPANY RIDERS COP

RUMSON, N. J., July 21.—(AP.)—Whippany River's polo team, of Morristown, N. J., gained its first victory in the national junior polo championship yesterday by defeating Old Oaks, led by the former Princeton champion, Arthur Borde, of Rumson. The score was 12-11.

Angelos, Local Floor Stars, Mother, Dad

Mrs. Harry Angelo, of Moon Run, known to followers of basketball as Viola Cantwell, former star of the McKees Rocks Tumblers, and last year with the undefeated Goldenson Vanities, became the mother of a baby boy yesterday afternoon. It is the Angelos' first child. The father also is a floor star.

The mother hails from a family of basketball stars, her two sisters, Leona and Eva, having played for the Vanities last season. The father is a brother of Bobby Angelo, former Grove City College star, who is coaching at Stowe Township High School. Bobby also played with the Goldensons in the Allegheny County League.

Marcum Leads Arlington Jockeys

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP.)—Jockey J. Marcum brought in four winners during the third week of the Arlington Park meeting to displace Earl Steffen from top ranking.

Marcum had 14 victorious rides, while Steffen, who had two winners, had a total of 13. A. Richard was third with 11 winners.

Alexander Wrenches Knee on Mound

DALLAS, Tex., July 21.—One of the game's adversities beset Grover Cleveland Alexander's attempted comeback with the Dallas Texas League Baseball Club yesterday.

Old Pete slipped in the pitcher's box and wrenched his knee after he had thrown six balls in the thirteenth inning of the game with Wichita Falls, league leaders.

He went in as a relief hurler in the deadlocked game in the thirteenth inning and was forced to retire.

Fans, however, suspected something more incapacitating than a sprained knee had caused the former National League idol to wobble off the field after he had walked one man and thrown two balls to the next.

"They are wrong," Manager Atz said tonight. "If Alex hadn't been in tip-top shape I would never have started him."

Larkspur May Pass Fox as Coin Winner

CHICAGO, July 21.—(INS.)—Blue Larkspur, winner of the $35,000 Arlington Cup Saturday at Arlington Park, today appeared bound to race on past Gallant Fox and become the second highest money winning horse of all time.

Victory in the $35,000 added Arlington to be run next Saturday will put him ahead of Gallant Fox and within the shadow of Zev's record of $313,000.

GRANT VICTOR IN CLAY COURT FINALE

KANSAS CITY, July 21.—(AP.)—Dixie's youthful ranking tennis player and the defending doubles team from the Atlantic seaboard triumphed yesterday in the finals of the twenty-first annual national clay courts tennis tournament.

Bryan Grant, Jr., 19, Atlanta, Ga., defeated W. F. (Junior) Coen, another 19-year-old star from Kansas City, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Frederic Mercur and J. Gilbert Hall, Harrisburg, Pa., and Orange, N. J., proved themselves the rightful possessors of the crown they won last year at Indianapolis, eliminating the Missouri Valley ranking pair, Wray Brown and Harris Coggeshall, St. Louis and Des Moines, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-2.

The singles match was a tense, fiercely contested affair with Grant's usual steady game eventually breaking down the greater variety of the Kansas City boy's strokes. Coen ran Grant from one corner of the court to the other, from the net to the base line, but generally found the midget Georgian there to return.

Coen, however, succeeded in getting Grant out of position oftener than did any of the opponents Grant bowled over in his march to the final.

Macfarlane Cops Metro Open Crown

ELMSFORD, N. Y., July 21.—(AP.)—A garrison finish enabled Willie Macfarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., to beat Johnny Farrell, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., by two strokes in their 36-hole playoff for the Metropolitan open golf championship yesterday.

Trailing by a stroke at the end of 33 holes, Macfarlane drew level at the thirty-fourth, took a one-stroke lead at the thirty-fifth and added another stroke to his advantage at the home hole. He covered the 36 holes in 142 to 144 for Farrell. At the conclusion of the regular 72-holes of championship play, Farrell and Macfarlane wound up in a tie at 280.

the combination. He weighs 194 pounds and figures to make his mark in the games with Yale, Harvard, Illinois and Notre Dame that feature the Cadets' schedule. Incidentally, Letzelter and Alex Fox both were members of the All-East team that defeated the All-West team of college stars, 20-0, in the post-season charity game of 1928 at San Francisco.

Sport Vignettes

Young Jack Thompson, the welterweight champion, received a $20,000 guarantee for his recent defeat by Young Corbett, the southpaw, at San Francisco, and the show drew only $32,000 as against almost twice as much for a bout between Corbett and Jackie Fields when the latter was champion last February . . . . Waite Hoyt, who was wallowing around for the Yankees at the start of the season, has regained his winning form pitching regularly for the Detroit Tigers. He says he needed the work . . . . Once again the talk of a third major league is in the air, with the renewal of the squabble about the draft, but that's about as far as it will go.

A pet argument in baseball is whether the National or the American League plays the faster games. Both major circuits claim the honor, but a statistician reports that they average up about the same. He recently took the figures for a week in which each league played 31 games and discovered that the National League averaged 2 hours, 16 minutes per game and the American League 2 hours, 26 minutes, but the difference was due to the fact that the National loop that week happened to turn in several exceptionally fast games that brought its average well down . . . . Bill Killefer, manager of the St. Louis Browns, who are drawing all of 600 people to some of their home games, explains the trade of Manush and Crowder to the Washington Senators in exchange for Goose Goslin by intimating that both players who went away to strengthen Washington's pennant chances could have played better ball for the Browns if they had felt so inclined.

Remember when Ludy Langer was considered quite a swimmer and Olympic hero? Well, his marks at the peak of his career don't stand up with those of Helene Madison, the Seattle schoolgirl sensation . . . . The wolves are yelping for the scalps of Donie Bush and Roger Peckinpaugh, respectively managers of the Chicago White Sox and Cleveland Indians . . . . In case you don't know, the first name of Al Singer, the new lightweight champion, really is Abe.

BRITISH-AMERICAN MEET

The British team that will invade Chicago to meet an all-America track team on August 27 seems to be gathering unexpected strength as the meet approaches. Quite a few new athletes who never have been heard of before are making some great records in the provinces. They will make a fine addition to an already strong group.

Knute Rockne

For instance, in Australia there is a sprinter named Carlton, who has been credited with 9 3-5 seconds recently. Also two quarter-milers, Bascombe and Golding, who are running the distance in about 48 seconds.

In New Zealand, a chap named Lay threw the javelin 222 feet. In a recent meet in England with Italy, France, Sweden and Holland, Lord Burghley won the 120-yard high hurdles in 14 5-10 seconds. The Lord used to run the quarter-mile hurdles only. Then there is a new sensation by the name of Hampson, who ran the half-mile on 1 minute 53 1-5 seconds.

It would be quite a feather in Great Britain's cap athletically if it were able to take us into camp and if the American boys aren't in the best of shape this may happen.

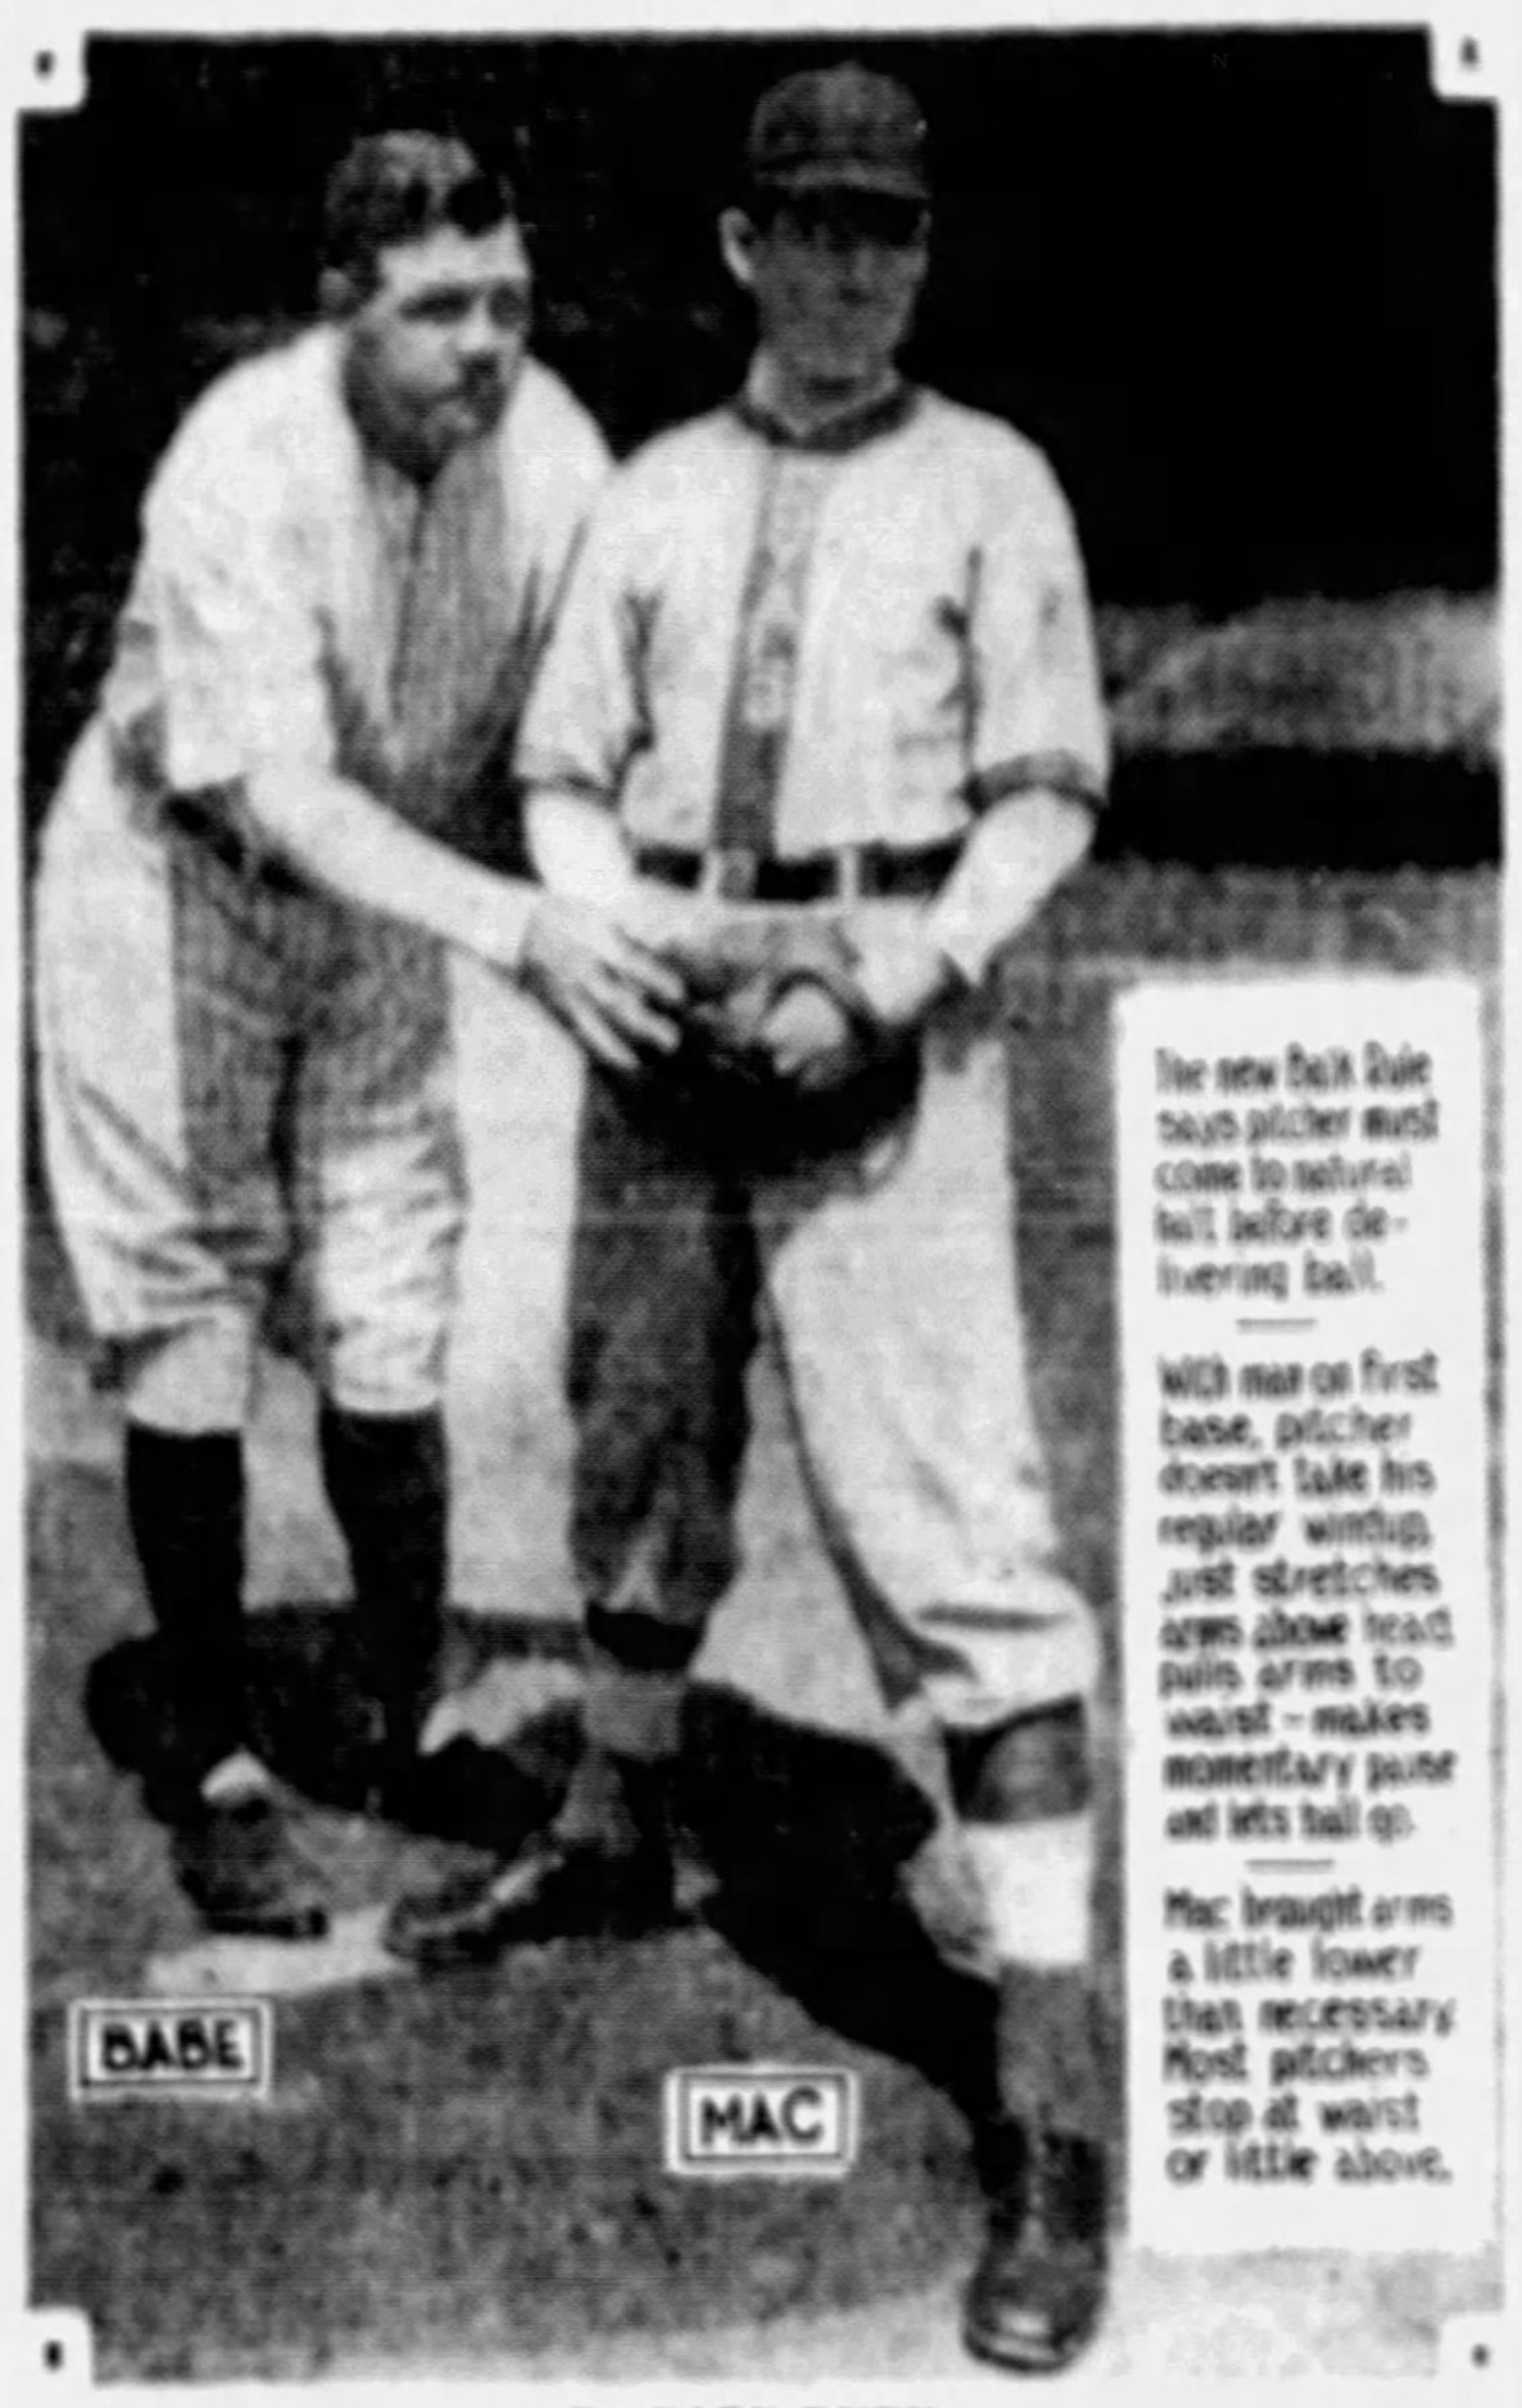
Babe Ruth Explains New Balk Rule



BABE
MAC
With man on first base, pitcher doesn't take his regular windup, just stretches arms above head, pulls arms to waist – makes momentary pause and lets ball go.

By BABE RUTH.

Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

He was curious about one or two things when I saw him.

"Why, is it," he asked, "that with men on bases the pitcher starts his motion, raises his hands high above his head and then pulls his hands down to his waist before pitching the ball?"

"Just what do you mean?" I asked him.

MUST HESITATE BEFORE DELIVERY

In the picture, you can see just what I mean. Mac is ready to deliver the pitch. He has brought his hands down a little lower than necessary. Most pitchers stop at the waist or a little above. You will notice that his foot is on the rubber, the ball is gripped inside his glove, he is in pitching position, yet, at the same time, he is able to see both the batter and the runner.

The balk rule is a tough one these days, and, as a result, it's hard for a pitcher to develop a deceptive motion. Here are the chief things to remember about the balk rule.

In pitching, always remember that you must come to a complete pause before pitching the ball—your motion cannot be continuous.

If you wheel to throw to first base, you must make the throw or else a balk will be called. You can fake a throw to second or third if you wish, but once you make a move toward first you have to make the toss.

KEEP RUNNER HUGGING FIRST

If you think a runner on first is going to steal, don't be afraid to throw over there frequently. You needn't make any real try to catch him—just drive him back to the bag. And never make a pitch so long as you feel the runner is taking too much advantage in lead and start. Keep driving him back until you feel there's a real chance to get in a pitch before he can start.

They can't fine you for throwing the ball to first base, you know—and a lot of times a runner held at first base means the difference between a ball game won and a ball game lost.

U. S. TOPS ITALY

AUTEUIL, France, July 21.—(AP.)—Dividing the last two singles matches, America's youthful Davis Cup tennis team brushed aside Italy yesterday, four matches to one, and gained the challenge round with France.

George Lott, of Chicago, gave America its fourth successive victory in the series when he defeated Georgio De Stefani, ambidextrous Italian, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3, but the final point of the tie went to Italy when Baron Humbert L. De Morpurgo, ace of the Italian team, defeated Wilmer Allison, of Fort Worth, Tex., 7-5, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4. The matches were in the nature of exhibitions, for the United States had clinched the series by winning the doubles Saturday.

The challenge round against France, holder of the cup for three years, will be played Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Although the final singles matches played no part in the net result, they provided the fans with the toughest tennis they had seen since Allison took the court in the first match against De Stefani on Friday. Again only a handful of enthusiasts saw the matches, for rain threatened throughout the day.

The listed world record for the race is 49 4-5 seconds set by the Munch Club at Berlin in 1928. A mark of 48 2-5 seconds by the Canadian National team never has been officially ratified.

By TOM BIRKS.

Plenty of real interest marks the games scheduled this evening on the local sandlots. The West Penn League, with two big games, heads the card and much interest marks their playing.

Homestead Aces will entertain the North Bessemer nine and this game should pack in the fans at West Field. The other battle finds Verona meeting the undefeated Airbrake nine at the Concourse grounds.

Only one game will be played in the Central loop and this will find the Lincoln Civics hooking up with the Cosletts at Schenley High School field. Jock Collete has strengthened the Hill club and the East Enders will probably have a fight on their hands.

In the Commercial and Industrial loop, the Mine Safety aggregation makes the trip to delightful Camp Horne. Playing the Burchfield nine at the Ohio River grounds is a great way to spend an evening and this will be the first time that the East End club has traveled to the camp. Hornes' is out to cop this game, and "Jettings probably will oppose Bobby Beitel on the mound.

Only one game will be played in the Steel City loop. Dom Mazzio has the Observatory Civics for its opposition at Arlington Park.

Two games will be played in the City League. The North Side Civics will travel to Olympia Park to meet Book Shoe. It is quite possible that Art Rooney will be out to avenge that last game in the first half fight. The Civics are not getting pitching, however, and it will take good pitching to stop the hard-hitting bunch of Shoemen.

The other game will find the Stowe Civics meeting J. L. Thomas at Dean Field. The Bloomfielders are becoming quite a thorn in the side of some of the more fancied clubs, and the game should bring out a big crowd.

FOUR SHUTOUTS

Several close games were recorded yesterday. Iroquois beat Mellon, 1 to 0, the North Side Elks tripped Philco, 6-0; Horning bowed to the St. Clair Frogs, 4-0, and J. L. Thomas whipped the Crawfords, 13 to 0, in a quartet of shutouts.

Port Vue was beaten by the Dan Heeps 13-4; the Kokinos Club walloped Brackenridge, 22-2; Banksville topped Carepalucci, 16-6, and the North Siders won from Immaculate, 6-2.

Western Amateur Golf Play Opens

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP.)—An army of golfers drew its steel today to begin the battle of Beverly Country Club, scene of the Western Amateur championship tournament.

Billy Sixty, of Milwaukee, and Art Sweet, of Chicago, were listed to head the parade of 215 aspirants over the 36-hole qualifying route, which will be finished tomorrow. The low 32 will set out in match play duels, with the 36-hole championship final set for Saturday.

Don Moe, of Portland, Ore., the defending champion, was on deck, but was not due to start out until late. Johnny Goodman, who eliminated King Bobby Jones from the National Amateur at Nebble Beach, Cal., last year, felt he had too much golf and decided not to accept the issue. Charles (Chick) Evans, of Chicago, who has won the Western title eight times, had the most impressive practice score, carding a 73 over the par 71 test Saturday.

Cullop May Set Home Run Record

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP.)—If nothing occurs to keep Nick Cullop from playing center field for Minneapolis in the remaining 80 games of the season, one American Association record appears certain to be erased.

In 81 games the Miller veteran has driven out 30 home runs, leaving him just an even dozen shy of the league record of 42 set in 1921 by Bunny Brief, of Kansas City. Cullop's home run-getting has not been spasmodic, except to the extent of getting two in one game on a pair of occasions. He has banged right along, and at his present rate should easily eclipse the nine-year-old mark.

CIRCUIT MEETING OPENS

TOLEDO, July 21.—(AP.)—Fort Miami's stables are jammed to capacity with the elite of the trotting and pacing world in preparation for the reopening of the grand circuit here tonight. It is estimated that between 500 and 600 horses are ready for the bugle. The $2,000 18 class pace will be the feature of the inaugural program.

Meat Consumption Over 7-Year Average

Consumption of all meats—beef, veal, pork, mutton and lamb—in the United States during the first five months of 1930 is compared with the corresponding figures for the past seven years. Figures comprise the Federal-inspected slaughter, plus net imports, less exports and re-exports, and changes in cold storage holdings. Source: U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The domestic consumption of meat during the first five months of 1930 was only 6-10ths of 1% under the similar period of 1929. And 1930 is slightly higher than the average for the seven years from 1923 through 1929. This is not a bad showing for the unit sales of the second largest manufacturing industry in the United States.

Arrival of Dale and Hannigan

CHAPTER 1.

The night Jerry Murdock was killed Robin Dale spent quietly at home. Unless there was a special assignment he usually remained in on Saturday nights with his easy chair and his books. The hands of the clock showed dangerously near to 4 when he laid aside the Bishop Murder Case with a sigh of regret. He had lost himself in it completely for many hours and regretted only that it finally had come to an end. A long-forgotten remnant of highball was on the stand beside his chair. Even his stomach had something for which to be thankful.

At 9 next morning the office called. Bailey was on the desk. Dale reached for the telephone in a sleepy daze.

"'Lo—m m m, this's Dale. What? Say that again, chief—Jerry Murdock killed? At Gordon Stiles' place at Manhattan Beach? Okay, chief. I'll go right over. If Jerry was alive an' knew he got himself killed 'way out there, he'd feel the disgrace something awful. Broadway's play boy getting murdered in the sticks. Pick up Hannigan on the way over? All right—tell him Canal and Broadway in 40 minutes. Goodbye."

To make the long haul from Seventy-second to Manhattan Beach worse, it was snowing when Robin Dale reached the street. Already a thin mantle of white spread over the huge banks of the previous day's heavy snowfall. At Canal and Broadway he picked up Hannigan. (Hannigan was special photographer on the Daily Journal staff.) And then the cab proceeded through Canal, headed for Manhattan Bridge.

"What's the dope, Jack?" Dale asked as soon as the cab was on its way.

"Bailey didn't get much over the phone. A crowd was over to Gordon Stiles' place for the week end, and this morning Jerry Murdock was found dead in his room. At least a dozen people on the party, so there ought to be some interesting developments, considerin' Murdock is mixed up in it. He was due to get it sooner or later."

"I suppose he figured his money'd protect him from everything. Instead of that, it's probably his money that led to this tragedy. But no use trying to unravel the thing until we get the lowdown, so I'm going to knock off about 40 winks between here and the beach."

Thirty minutes later the cab drew up at the Stiles place. The grounds were spacious, covering the entire length of the block, and bordered by a high hedge which was now all clothed in white. Dale and Hannigan entered through an iron gate and approached a large, impressive-looking dwelling. It was built with two wings, one set on either side of a central portion, into which a short flight of brick steps led. The house was constructed of light brown pressed brick and the two wings had each a third story, which was gabled. The central portion was only two floors in height and flat-roofed. There were thus three distinct portions of roof, which were covered with red terra cotta tile. The entire length of the second floor had a roofed balcony or porch. The roof was slightly sloped and also tiled. As he proceeded up the walk, Robin Dale noticed that a heavy vine which ran up the house on the far side of the left wing had been torn forcibly from the wall and was hanging over the second floor balcony.

The two paused for a moment inside the small entrance porch and shook the snowflakes from their coats. A uniformed officer opened the door. They found Capt. Blake and Sergt. Jardin on the second floor in the room where the crime had been committed. It was in the central portion of the house, at the front, with windows on the balcony.

The body of Jerry Murdock had been laid on a lounge and covered. Dr. Wattles, police doctor, had already made his examination and had left. Phelps was searching for fingerprints.

"How do things set, Captain?" Dale asked after the brief greetings.

"Shot through the heart with a .38. Dead since two this morning or thereabouts. And it's evident how the thing was done."

They walked to the window leading to the balcony. There were two pairs of French windows, over which hung heavy velvet drapes. They were now back. Capt. Blake went to one of the drapes and showed Robin Dale a hole.

"Whoever did it came off the balcony while the drapes were down and shot through this, muffling the sound."

They opened the window and stepped out onto the balcony. The two adjoining rooms in the wings also gave on this balcony.

"Who occupied the two rooms?"

Dale went to the balcony rail and gazed to the ground. In the snow, now fast being covered by a fresh fall, was a distinct track of footprints. The peculiar feature was that they led only from the walk across the ground to the house and stopped abruptly under the balcony at the left wing of the house. There was no second track leading away from the house.

They went back into the room. Dale stopped for a few moments at the spot where the murderer must have stood when the shot was fired. He made a minute inspection of the floor, but there was no mark of any kind to be seen. Then he remarked doors leading from each of the two adjoining rooms.

"They were locked, Dale, on this side. Keys still there."

"Who was here last night, Capt. Blake?"

"Pretty fast bunch. You know Gordon Stiles—has a big brokerage office on the Street. His wife was one of the Amberson sisters, who made such a hit in Broadway revues a few years ago. He married Grace, much younger than he is. Diana, the other sister, was here last night, too. Then there was Bert Forrest, a young playwright, who has a play or two on Broadway. Wherever Murdock was you'd always find Richard Quincy, his particular pal. Quincy was disinherited by his family a year or two ago because of his wild escapades—remember?—and he's been living on Murdock ever since. Dolores Quincy, his wife, runs the Dolores Tea Room, on Forty-seventh, just off Fifth avenue. There were a few other couples—hangers-on. By the time we're through I'm afraid it's going to be a pretty nasty mess."

PRESENT PRICES GOOD FOR LONG TERM BUYING

Next Move Probably Up, But Caution Is Urged In Marginal Purchasing

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Nowadays the stock ticker, which gets nationwide attention, contributes significantly to setting the feeling tone for business.

The recovery of the last fortnight accordingly has helped to restore reason in economic thinking and has tended to check excessive pessimism. The economic signposts indicate the next major move in the security markets will be upward, but whether this technical rally proves to be merely another premature spurt remains to be seen.

Traders are cautiously testing out the market to ascertain how genuine the new robustness is. Meantime marginal operators will recognize the need of watching their step, but long term outright investors, on the other hand, should recognize that the parade may pass by, if they wait too long to replenish their portfolio with high grade common stocks at prevailing deflated quotations.

BALANCED BOND DIET

Inasmuch as economic conditions seem especially favorable to the bond market in near term months, the authentic investor can still wisely pursue the policy of having a balanced investment diet, with reserves of cash, short and long term bonds, good preferred stock and selected common stocks. The time is now approaching when the investor should consider changing the ratios in order to increase junior commitments.

Thus far, the recovery in stock prices has been ascribable more to the mechanics of the market place rather than to any significant change in business. The market was oversold, and professional traders, sensing the fact, turned with alacrity to the bull side. The professionals perpetually exploit the mobility of markets, and are ready for activity on either side.

PESSIMISM LESSENED

Sentiment has been helped somewhat by the reports of 55 companies listed on the stock exchange whose earnings for the second quarter were by no means as bad as the dire prophets predicted during the liquidation in May and June. There has been a growing feeling that the stock market has overdiscounted business depression. Business has fallen about to the level of 1924, which experienced a mild depression.

Although commodity prices are now distinctly lower than in 1921, the percentage decline this year was moderate compared with the precipitious fall in the earlier year. In other words, the present decline started from a much lower level.

AUTOS NEED NEW APPEAL

The recession this year springs mainly from the fall in residential building and the decline in the sale of automobiles. The genius of the automobile industry over a period of years has been in forever improving the product, and making consumers dissatisfied with their present cars.

In this year, if cautious, the average motorist has perhaps held on to his car a little longer. The industry needs a radically new appeal in order to whet the buying impulse. A. R. Erskine, head of the Studebaker Company, is to be congratulated on introducing at this time a new talking point for his product in the so-called "free wheeling" feature.

BUILDING HOPES RAISED

Indications of an expansion in residential building help to revive hopes of recovery. The view is getting around that the setback in June was the darkness before the dawn in business. Trade is currently marking time, subject to midsummer dullness.

The conference of statisticians in industry, in summarizing the outlook, pointed out:

"General business activity in June fell off to the lowest point in the current recession, after due allowance for seasonal influences, but recent developments indicate that a firmer foundation for recovery is being established. Industrial production, which usually varies more widely than general trade, has been running below railroad distribution of merchandise and this, in turn, below current consumption during the past six months. Inventories and stocks of finished goods in many lines are low in comparison with current demand. Price reductions have increased consumer purchasing power, and the volume of goods moving in retail channels compares favorably with that of earlier years."

Low interest rates in New York should in time contribute to world-wide revival. One need of the time is an increase in interest in new foreign bonds. The world-wide depression, which is the headache which followed the earlier champagne spree in business and in speculation, was hastened by credit conditions.

MARKET AFTER EARLY DROP TURNS UP

Mutiny Among Bull Ranks Throws Share Prices Into Retreat as Bears Raid

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP).—Mutiny in the ranks of the bull forces threw share prices into retreat in today's stock market, interrupting the irregular advance of the last four weeks, which had retaken about a third of the ground lost between mid-April and late June. By early afternoon, however, the selling appeared to be drying up and the list made moderate recovery.

The [illegible] demands something more [illegible] than the [illegible] of increase of business improvement, but the month of July is normally a barren period in the business year for [illegible]. Profit taking and renewed bear raiding drove share prices generally 1 to 4 points lower. [illegible] was in moderate volume. [illegible] reaction had been foreshadowed on Saturday.

SELLING ABSORBED

Reactionary tendencies in the grain and cotton markets discouraged the bull leaders from offering aggressive resistance to the decline, but brokerage house gossip had it that the pools were extending their holdings by purchases on scale down. The selling was for the most part well absorbed. A reaction of a small technical proportions was to be expected at this stage of an advance and bulls were not concerned.

News appearing over the week-end for the most part only served to delineate more clearly the current quiet in industry. Reports generally indicated, however, that retail trade was holding up relatively well for this time of year. The first of the large railway systems to report for June was Chesapeake and Ohio, which showed a decline in gross operating income of 6.1 per cent from the like month of a year ago, somewhat in excess of the decline for the entire first half year, which was 4.4 per cent.

FIRST HALF REPORTS

Beechnut Packing's first-half report served further to attest the relative stability of food company earnings, showing net of $1.72 a share, against $1.79. The recession in building was reflected in a drop of 11½ per cent in U. S. Realty's first half net. Standard Statistics Company stated that the first 44 companies to report for the first half showed a drop from last year of about 19 per cent.

There was little change in the money market. Call loans were again at 2 per cent officially, but were reported at only 1½ in the outside market, against 1¼ Friday, when eagerness to employ funds over the week-end resulted in an unusual surplus of offerings. Other monetary accommodations were steady.

Several issues rallied by early afternoon, as the market turned extremely dull and selling appeared to have been completed. Losses of 2 points recorded during the morning in such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone and American Can were partially regained.

POOL FAVORITES GAIN

Such pool favorites as Vanadium and Worthington Pump recovered early losses and recorded moderate gains. There was heavy trading in Briggs, as sponsors of the market in this issue endeavored to move it on the basis of its favorable earnings statement published late last week. Oils also turned upward, Standard of New Jersey and Houston recovering losses of the morning.

The rails were mostly heavy. Union Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, and New York Central lost 2 to more than 4. American Rolling Mill, Nash Motors, and Columbian Carbon lost 3 or more. Electric Auto Lite, in which a pool is said to be active, sold off nearly 4, then rallied. Radio lost more than 1.

Less Lake Iron Ore Taken by Furnaces

CLEVELAND, July 21.—Furnaces consumed 4,288,471 tons Lake Superior ore during June against 4,715,379 in May and 5,676,652 in June, 1929, according to report of Lake Superior Iron Ore Association. The report represents 251 furnaces of which 157 were in blast at end of June, a decrease of 14 from the end of May. Ore on hand at furnaces and Lake Erie docks on July 1 amounted to 25,699,749 tons against 23,701,011 tons on hand in corresponding period last year.

National Supply Co. Seeks New Listing

NEW YORK, July 19.—The National Supply Company has applied to the New York Stock Exchange to list 92,493 additional shares of $50 par common stock and 138,278 shares of $100 par 7 per cent cumulative preferred. The additional stock is to enable the company to complete its offer to exchange one-half share of its preferred and one-half share of common for each 3¼ shares of common stock of Spang-Chalfant & Company.

NEW YORK, July 21.—William E. Vogelback, president of the American States Public Service Company says earnings of the company for the six months ended June 30 will exceed by about 8 per cent those of the corresponding period last year, when the company reported a net of $281,831.

Harvard Society Predicts Gain In Business

BOSTON, July 21.—Although late in July business has displayed the sluggishness characteristic of mid-summer after failing in June to attain its normal seasonal volume, the Harvard Economic Society in its current weekly letter states that some of the factors which have contributed to the delay in business recovery, notably commodity price and stock price declines, seem at present to have almost spent their force and no new adverse factors are in sight. It is believed that foundations have been laid for the recovery and that substantial improvement will be in evidence during the present half-year.

CAMPBELL SOUP SALES GAIN

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—John T. Dorrance, president of the Campbell Soup Company, today stated that during the past 12 months 45,000,000 more cans of Campbell's tomato soup were used by the people of America than during any previous year, Dr. Dorrance said.

"Anticipating even greater demand for Campbell's soups, we are planning for larger output of tomato soup this coming season. With continued favorable growing weather, we hope our increased acreage will provide a sufficient supply of tomatoes to meet the demand of the public.

"In the same category as Campbell's soups are the other staple, known grocery products which should continue to be in greater demand in these economy times. This augurs well for the future business of both the wholesale and retail grocer during the coming year."

HUDSON MOTOR NET DROPS

For six months ended June 30 net income was $3,392,012, equal to $2.12 a share against $10,621,512, or $6.55 a share in the first half of 1929.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, July 21.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 14 to 20 points in response to easy Liverpool cables and last night's forecast pointing to showers in parts of the western and central states. July sold 21 points net lower and the active new crop months about 18 to 23. At the end of the first half hour prices showed rallies of 2 to 4 points.

The market rallied 8 or 10 points from the lowest during the middle of the morning. After the new October contract sold about 11 points from the lowest, prices eased. The selling sent the market into new low ground for the day, with July selling 45 points and active new crop months about 27 to 33 points net lower at midday.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 21.—The curb market suffered from a mild attack of profit-taking today. Recessions of more than a point in two or [illegible] stocks, however, were exceptional, for the list showed stubborn resistance to the short selling that accompanied the losses [illegible] in the earlier hours. Trading became very dull on the decline.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded. 00 omitted in sales column of stock list. 000 omitted in sales column of bond list.

Stock Exchange Topics

Heat Wave Causes Slump In Speculative Interest Along Wall Street

Speculative interest was at the lowest ebb in several weeks as reflected in the small turnover recorded during the day. The market apparently found itself in conflict with the high temperatures that have prevailed over the week-end. The effect of the heat was plainly to be seen in the very limited attendance to have been noted in board rooms around Wall Street. Evidently quite a few people who ordinarily make it a point to be close to the scene of operations during the day, decided to remain away from the Street at least until the back of the heat wave is broken.

The trader in Barron's says: "The advance now under way may be fairly said to have its genesis in Wall street and not in business. A fact which clearly distinguishes its real character. The astonishingly slow appreciation of bond prices shows how tenaciously are security buyers clinging to common stocks as investment media. Such an attitude can, of course, engender an atmosphere of optimism especially as autumn and seasonal trade improvement draws near."

Retail organizations thus far have weathered the present business recession without the acute financial distress which accompanied the depression of 1921, despite the adverse effects of current business uncertainties and reduction in total purchasing power on aggregate sales volume and profits. During the initial half of 1930, varying degrees of merchandising success were displayed by the different types of retail organizations. In general, department stores and mail order houses have been unable to equal results of a year ago, while both general and grocery chains have successfully continued the expansion recorded during the past several years.

Net profit of Collins & Aikman Corporation in the second quarter of its fiscal year, based on orders booked, is likely to be about the same as in the first quarter when net profit was $759,061, equal, after preferred dividends, to $1.01 a share on 587,633 shares of common stock. Net for the first half should be around $2 a share, against a net profit of $1,829,406, or $1.90 a share earned in the fiscal year ended March 1, 1930, and $1,905,555, or $1.85 a share on 591,833 shares earned in 1929. Sharp improvement in the showing made this year in the face of adverse business conditions is due to more efficient management and operation and to larger volume of business obtained.

American Agricultural Chemical preferred went to a new high on the current advance on the stock exchange today. There is comparatively little stock offered. The new management is making headway in the matter of economies while maintaining a strong fiscal position. There is about $60 a share in net current assets behind the preferred after allowing for the balance of the funded debt, which is now below $10,000,000.

Among developments with International Combustion Engineering Company lately has been a proposal by Foster Wheeler Corporation to take over the company on the basis of an exchange of stock as well as the working out of a new plan of reorganization by the committee. Definite action is likely to be taken in the near future. It is also reported that the Superheater Company is interested in acquiring certain of Combustion's properties.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

CAR LOADINGS MAY TURN UPWARD

Within the next few weeks, an increasing tendency in car loadings may develop. That opinion is expressed by railroad authorities. Movements from agricultural districts show normal expansion, and with the receipt of funds by farmers shipments into those sections also should grow. There was a reduction in rail traffic in the last six months of 1929, so that comparisons with the preceding year will not be as unsatisfactory as those shown in the weekly figures of the first six months.

OIL PRODUCTION SPEEDED

Records of the petroleum industry indicate how improvement of oil production methods has hastened the recovery of this source of power, heat and light. Some 40 years were needed to produce the first billion barrels of crude oil. More than eight years were spent in producing the second billion, and about five years were needed for the third. The fourth billion barrels was produced in three and a half years. The United States alone produced more than a billion barrels in the 12 months of 1929.

EUROPE LEADS IN MOTORCYCLES

Registrations of motorcycles throughout the world showed an increase of 11.5 per cent during 1929, the total number being 2,625,200 as compared with 2,505,804 in 1928. During each of the five preceding years the average increase had been approximately 16 per cent. Europe again accounted for 84 per cent of the world total and recorded an increase during the year of nearly 19 per cent, which is the same percentage registered during 1928.

RADIO OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

Following the recent period of price cutting and curtailed production in the radio industry, set manufacturers are now in a sounder position than at any time in the past 12 months, a current survey by Standard Statistics says. The survey adds that the outlook for 1931 indicates a resumption of the rapid growth witnessed immediately prior to the current recession in general business.

WESTERN AUTO SUPPLY SALES

June sales of the Western Auto Supply Company totaled $1,273,339, a decrease of 13.2 per cent from sales of $1,466,668 in June last year. Sales for the first half this year were $6,369,838, a decrease of 3.8 per cent from $6,624,315 in the first half of 1929.

GRAND UNION SALES UP

Sales of the Grand Union Company for the six months ended June 30 totaled $18,057,557, an increase of 14.59 per cent over sales of $15,758,769 for the corresponding period last year. There was no increase in the number of units.

Canada Forging Ahead Despite World Slump.

By B. C. FORBES

IN WESTERN CANADA, July 19.—[illegible] men who braved the adventure of spanning the Canadian Rockies by railroad. Their [illegible] audacity makes you gasp. Here you encounter a dozen Switzerlands combined. [illegible] mountain and gorge [illegible] ten thousand foot peaks [illegible] on chains of [illegible] [illegible] thwarted [illegible] daunted these intrepid pioneers [illegible] and therefore [illegible] cushioned [illegible] bed of roses.

My [illegible] off too to the brains [illegible] that have been able [illegible] dends [illegible] Canadian Pacific [illegible] for as you travel [illegible] after hundred miles [illegible] with scarce a sign [illegible] of husbandry you [illegible] how such profits can be [illegible] from such conditions.

WE IN THE STATES are fond of [illegible] the biggest this [illegible] everything on the face of the earth.

Well, America has nothing to match the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's many-sided world-wide ramifications and operations. I can describe it as the world's greatest travel system, railways, steamships, [illegible] telegraphs, express, colonization, industrial development. It circles the globe by land and water. Its chain of hotels alone would constitute a huge enterprise and the C. P. R. has the reputation of doing well everything it undertakes.

I SOUGHT OUT PRESIDENT BEATTY as the ideal authority from whom to get a truthful description of conditions in the Dominion.

Here is his carefully considered statement:

"While Canada has not escaped world conditions evidenced in lessened buying power, resultant slowing up of productive industry and increased unemployment I am of the opinion that this country is less affected in that direction than are most others. There appears sound reason for believing, also, that such industrial and financial depression as we are now experiencing is most likely to be short-lived. Presuming that high pressure industrial production over an extended period is the main basis of the unsettlement, it is reasonable to expect a comparatively early resumption of normal conditions little or no over-production in most Canadian trades, and consequently consumption has less to catch up than is the case elsewhere.

"Much depends upon the coming wheat crop and the manner in which future markets will absorb it. I foresee no reason why it should not move to market this autumn at a normal rate of speed. The outlook is now for a good crop, and if it is satisfactorily moved during the coming fall and winter, Canadian conditions generally should be well reestablished on a plane of progressive prosperity.

"At the present time there is a trend towards lessening unemployment and the diversification of Canadian industry which has been so marked a feature of the past few years' development has by no means been entirely checked by the unsettling conditions of recent months. Railway earnings have suffered and will probably continue to do so until autumn, but I look for a notable betterment in this respect before the end of the year.

"During the past three or four years, Canada has enjoyed great acceleration in the development of natural resources, and this movement has not been seriously checked up to the present time. The general resumption of normal business activity would still further quicken this development and would have an important stimulating effect upon all lines of Canadian trade and industry."

FURTHER SLASH IN OIL OUTPUT

OIL CITY, Pa., July 21.—Effective today crude oil production in Northwestern Pennsylvania exclusive of Bradford and Allegheny fields will be curtailed 50 per cent. A 50 per cent curtailment schedule has been operative in the Bradford field for a month.

Operators declare the present slump in Pennsylvania crude oil prices is attributable to over-production. Curtailment will be based upon April production figures.

More oil is being produced than can be consumed under present market conditions, according to Ralph T. Zook of Kane. Forrest B. Dorn, president of the Forrest Oil Company of Bradford, also president of the Pennsylvania Grade Crude Oil Association, has expressed hope the steps will help to bring better conditions within two months.

Shippers to Get New River Service

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

MORE SHIPPERS in the Pittsburgh district will be able to take advantage of river transportation to reach Southern markets within a short time. The newly formed Mississippi Valley Barge Line is completing arrangements to handle river traffic from Cincinnati to points farther down the river system.

While the service will not reach this city, application has been made to the Interstate Commerce Commission for joint rail and river rates which will make it possible for this district to take advantage of the new form of transportation. The rates have not been made public but it is expected that they will offer substantial differentials under the existing all rail rate so that manufacturers here will be in an improved position to reach Southern markets.

The barge line recently launched one of the largest tow boats to be used on the Ohio River. Additional equipment will be ready within about one month.

To Handle Small Shipments

WHILE THE NEW LINE will handle full barge loads, it plans to make a specialty of less than barge lot shipments. Its equipment has been planned to take care of the needs of the manufacturer whose traffic is too small to justify the operation of a complete river fleet.

For years such large organizations as Jones and Laughlin Steel, Carnegie Steel and Weirton Steel have been taking advantage of low cost river transportation. These companies have enough business to warrant the maintenance of their own barges and tow boats. The opening of the new service will give smaller shippers some of the advantages enjoyed by the larger organizations.

Rail Attitude Changed

SOME OF THE RAILROADS are beginning to realize that opposition to the development of river transportation is futile. A few of the carriers are beginning to appreciate the fact that their wisest course is to co-operate with river transportation and to put joint rail and river rates into effect where the traffic shows a need for service of this type.

It is peculiar to note the railroads have been slower to understand the need for co-operation with river transportation than with other types of competition. The railroads have gone into the bus business and into air transportation. They have developed means of co-operating with these new types of service but it is only very recently that a few carriers have started to recognize that river transportation should have the same type of co-operation.

New Rate System

IT IS BECOMING apparent that the Interstate Commerce Commission is placing more importance in distance as a dominant factor in making freight rates. The commission is finding that the recognition of this policy is the only way to avoid repeated contests between districts over changes in rates. While this change will have both advantages and disadvantages for Pittsburgh, on the whole this district will benefit by the change to mileage as the predominant factor in making freight rates.

The older policy of granting low rates to develop infant industry has been shown to be a mistake in many cases. The help given Southern coal mines in the past was an important factor in developing the surplus capacity which is now making the coal trade unprofitable and which has had much to do with the constant reductions in wages. Had a distance scale of freight rates on coal been maintained in the past, Federal aid would not have been given to coal properties, the development of which should have been delayed until a time far in the future.

PRICES CUT BY BUTLER BROS.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Drastic cuts in wholesale prices on more than 4,000 merchandise items were announced today by Butler Brothers, largest wholesalers of general merchandise in the United States. The new prices are contained in the August catalogue and embrace practically every line handled by the company.

Frank S. Cunningham, president, in announcing the action, said that it was taken in the hope of establishing a new low price level that could be accepted by the public as stable. He added:

It was explained that an approximation of the extent of the price reduction in the Butler catalogue is difficult to arrive at, due to the diversity of merchandise items included and the fluctuating percentages of cuts. The majority of items are reduced 2 to 12 per cent, with many more running up to 20 per cent. In some instances they amount to 50 and 60 per cent, but these are extreme cases.

U. S. REALTY NET OFF SLIGHTLY

NEW YORK, July 21.—U. S. Realty and Improvement Company and subsidiaries for six months ended June 30 report net profit of $3,396,719, after interest, depreciation and federal taxes, against $3,834,976 in the first half of 1929.

Current assets June 30 amounted to $17,880,097, of which $13,951,000 was represented by cash in banks and on call, while current liabilities were $2,093,631.

Unfinished business of its subsidiary, George A. Fuller Company, on June 30 amounted to $32,000,000.

WALL STREET HEARS

That United States Steel's June quarter earnings were around $3 a share, and that the net for the first half will come close to the $7 annual dividend requirement.

That Chicago interests have been large buyers of Grigsby-Grunow of late, basing their operations on improvement in the radio outlook.

That Freeport Texas has attracted considerable buying of late, based on confidence in the new management.

JUNE CIGARET OUTPUT UP

NEW YORK, July 21.—Cigaret production for June was 11,750,524,523, an increase of 910,851,824 over June, 1929, output of 10,839,672,699, and lifting the total for the first six months of the year almost 400,000,000 over that of the corresponding period of 1929, according to official government figures.

An important factor in this increase is the aggressive advertising campaigns of cigaret manufacturers, who have shown their faith in newspaper advertising by increased appropriations at a time when many other manufacturers are reducing their advertising investments.

Stocks of Wheat Estimated Higher

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Stocks of wheat of the 1929 crop in interior mills and elevators on July 1, 1930, are estimated to be 54,031,000 bushels by the Department of Agriculture. On July 1, 1929, stocks are estimated to have been 41,548,000 bushels and on July 1, 1928, at 19,277,000 bushels.

The five-year average, 1924 to 1928, stocks on July 1 were 26,493,000 bushels.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Milk-Maid

This angered her, because it meant that she was not held in the same category as the real picture stars.

However, she composed herself and waited until Gottshelk and some friend had finished talking and the secretary called her.

"We're starting a new series of True Life comedies, Miss Eames. We've got a new writer, scripts are wonderful—gives you some swell stuff."

"A new series? Twenty-four more?"

"But how about the feature picture. You said that I should have my opportunity in something big, Mr. Gottshelk."

"And you shall, but later. We've created a demand for these comedies and your work is fine. I mean it is all right." Gottshelk never praised if he could help it. It often led to demands for more money.

"Later I shall be too old. You promised me—"

"I—I—" Erma hesitated and then, "Very well, Mr. Gottshelk."

She went out again. It had been on the tip of her tongue to tell him she didn't want any contract, that she wouldn't waste another whole year in little comedies and that if she couldn't be featured in a big picture she was through.

But Erma—whose real name was Janet Robinson—wasn't quite silly enough for that. She was all alone in the world. She was living modestly and saving fully nine-tenths of her salary. She hadn't saved enough yet. Some day she would be too old for anything except character work and by that time she wanted to retire to a little cottage and be independent.

Hates Work

Erma had come on from the East with the very little money from the sale of the run-down farm. She knew that she was pretty and that she photographed well. It had not been difficult to get extra work to do and Morgan, director of the comedies for Gottshelk, had seen her and selected her for one of his comedies.

The script had been written for a male comedian. The girl was supposed to be just pretty and dumb. Erma saw opportunities and put over several things that greatly added to the comedy, with the result that she had a comedy written for her.

That was four years ago and she had been in those polite "True Life" comedies ever since. During the past two years old man Gottshelk had promised to star her in a feature. Erma believed that she could make good. They continued to keep her in the little comedies, which wasn't getting her anywhere nearer to real stardom than at the start.

Erma was 26, and she knew it. To others she was just 20. Erma knew that in a few years no makeup and cosmetics could take the place of real youth.

Of course, there was marriage. Being pretty, she had received many offers. But Erma had sized up the crowd. She didn't like the men at all. Many of the popular male stars were just bounders, and they all seemed to be full of politics and trickery, ready to pull anyone down to get up a step.

So she smiled and pretended to be gay and happy, pretended to have her heart in the work of making these new comedies. And she hated them—hated the whole business, the forced gags and situations—everything.

The third comedy of the new series was to have a farm background. They had to make quite a trip to locate a farm that looked like New England.

They had made all of the interiors. When these farm exteriors were made, this one would be finished.

Twice Mr. Gottshelk had had his secretary tell Miss Eames to sign contracts and bring them in. They had been sent to her, ready for her name on the dotted line. Each time she had found some excuse. She was hoping that some opportunity might come up in another company.

Meets Young Man

It was noon when she got to the farm. It interested her. It did look like New England, only the farm was more neat and thrifty. She wandered around the pretty white house while they were getting cameras ready.

At the rear, under an immense shade tree, sat a man of around 30. There was the neatest little table in front of him, a speckless white cloth and impeccable china. A Chinese servant was serving him.

"Oh, excuse me—I'm sorry," Erma said, starting to back away.

He paused and chuckled, then managed to straighten his face. He had hopped up when she spoke.

He swung a bench around and told her to sit down. Peng, the Chinaman, brought her some iced tea.

Every time the young man glanced at Erma he grinned.

This made her nervous. Finally she asked, "Please — what's wrong with me?"

He began to laugh heartily then.

"Milk-maid," he said between laughs, "they all do it—it's a howl. Imagine a real milk-maid wearing sheer hose and high heels and a little silk frock like that and the wide hat."

"Don't be offended, miss."

"All ready, Miss Eames."

She excused herself.

Later the young man came around to a corner of the orchard where they were working. Morgan, the director, introduced her to him. He was Harvey Lawson, owner of the farm.

Things went badly, there were a lot of repeat shots, and Erma hated the story anyway. She was disgusted and discouraged.

"Come up earlier tomorrow and have luncheon with me, Miss Eames," Lawson begged.

"We are coming early, and I'd love to stay to luncheon with you instead of driving back. I'm already in love with this beautiful place."

Lawson Apologizes

Next day they all drove back to the village for luncheon except Erma. She sat out back under the tree and never enjoyed a luncheon so much before. Everything seemed perfection. And it was so beautiful and restful. She had been working hard that morning.

As they talked she glanced over a movie magazine that lay on the bench.

"That's Peng's—he reads a little and he likes to see the pictures. I wonder if yours is there?"

"No, Mr. Lawson, it isn't—now and then they put little thumb-nail size pictures of me in, but comedies don't rate very high, you know, and I'm destined to be in comedies forever."

"It isn't all so easy, is it? I'm sorry. I'll promise not to laugh in the milking scene. Morgan explained it. I had Daisy brought up—she's a nice gentle cow."

"Laugh at me?" Erma asked.

He grinned.

"I've never yet seen a milk-maid on stage or screen try to milk a cow but what I got a big laugh—they never do it right."

"Now, is that so? Why, it's easy."

"Who am I, a mere farmer, to dispute so lovely a lady?—But I've changed my mind—I am going to watch and laugh."

Erma nodded.

She hated to have him laugh at her. She liked his eyes. She liked him a great deal, already.

When they came from luncheon in the village Morgan had a wire from Gottshalk. Duplicate contracts were being mailed for Miss Eames to sign.

"Is that so? I can guess that the first two comedies are hits. Well, I'm sorry, Mr. Morgan, but I'm fed up—I just won't sign the contract and I don't believe I'll make any more comedies—it gets me nowhere—"

Erma Eames walked into the scene. She didn't carry the milk pail gracefully, bail over arm, she swung it carelessly, she grabbed up the milking stool by one of its three legs and went around on the right side of the cow, to Lawson's surprise.

Enjoys Luncheon

"So-o, boss," she said, giving the cow a friendly slap on the flank. She sat down, adjusted the pail between her knees and proceeded to milk—it was real milking. The cow gave down freely and chewed her cud contentedly, ample proof that she was being properly milked.

The white streams sounded musically against the side of the pail and then "chugged" as the quantity grew.

The camera stopped. The milk was handed over to Lawson and a chalky fluid that would stick and look white was substituted. This Erma threw over the abusive tramp in the comedy scene.

"Fine — and all for this picture, Miss Eames," Morgan said.

"All for any other comedy, Morgan. I'm through. I'll run a gift shop or tea room or anything, but I won't make these fool comedies any longer."

"You'll feel better when you get back home," he said, with a laugh.

"Stay to dinner, Miss Eames," Lawson begged. "It will take some hours to apologize. You were born on a farm—don't tell me differently—only a veteran could milk a cow like that, especially Old Daisy."

She is very happy now. Often she helps her husband milk, but she wears khaki knickers and flat-heeled sport shoes.

Across the bottom of this Lawson has written:

"My Milk-maid."

UGH! IT JUST MAKES MY FLESH CREEP TO THINK OF THE MONEY WE'RE SPENDING HERE. 70 CENTS FOR TWO BOILED EGGS. EVERY TIME I GO INTO THAT DINING-ROOM AND LOOK AT THE MENU CARD I LOSE MY APPETITE.
I WOULDN'T LIKE THIS PLACE EVEN IF EVERYTHING WAS FREE.
YOU MEAN THAT THE PEOPLE HERE ARE TOO ARISTOCRATIC? WELL, IF IT WASN'T SO EXPENSIVE I'D STAY HERE FOR WEEKS, MONTHS. THE WOMAN IN THE VERY NEXT APARTMENT IS A COUNTESS, OR SOMETHING LIKE THAT.
IF WE KNEW JUST ONE PERSON HERE.
I STILL THINK WE OUGHT TO GO WHERE WE WERE LAST YEAR.
WE'LL RUN ACROSS SOMEONE WE KNOW SOONER OR LATER. WE COULD HAVE GOT ACQUAINTED THE DAY WE GOT HERE IF WE WANTED TO JUST PUSH OURSELVES FORWARD. I DON'T BELIEVE IN THAT. NOT IN THE BEGINNING ANYHOW.
WE KNOW SO MANY FOLKS AT THAT OTHER PLACE. EVERYONE HERE SEEMS SO BORED AND—
WELL, PEGGY, I DON'T USUALLY BELIEVE IN APING ANYONE BUT MAYBE IT WOULDN'T DO ANY HARM TO SORT OF CULTIVATE AN APPEARANCE OF BEING FED UP ON EVERYTHING. I KNOW THAT WOULD—WELL ANYHOW, BE BETTER THAN THE LOST DOG LOOK WE HAVE WHENEVER WE'RE SITTING ON THE PORCH HERE.

In contrast to impractical and idealistic schemes to eliminate violent crime all over the country, the level-headed and common sense system of Police Chief Rimshaw B. Dunk is hailed from all sides as a good deed in a naughty world. Mr. Dunk has merely dismissed all patrolmen and detectives under him and with the money saved is giving the racketeers a bonus for each murderless week.

Britain and Japan Tie Up U. S. Navy Under London Pact.

Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, rightly denounces the restrictions imposed by the London naval treaty upon the type of cruisers the United States can build as "a piece of colossal effrontery on the part of those who sat with us at the conference table."

Instead of leaving the United States free to build within tonnage limitation agreed upon the type of cruiser our highest naval authorities insist is best suited to our needs the treaty compels us to build AS THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY DICTATES.

The humiliating situation in which Uncle Sam will find himself when this treaty has been jammed through to ratification was thus illustrated by Senator Moses. He said:

"It is, Mr. President, as if you should say to me 'take your own money and buy yourself a dozen 13-inch collars.' To which I might retort that 13-inch collars do not fit me; that I cannot wear them and that I do not want to spend any money for them. But you, sir, insist and I am compelled to buy the 13-inch collars which I cannot wear and for which I have no use."

By the terms of this indefensible treaty the British Admiralty tells the American Congress to take the American people's own money and buy them some six-inch gun cruisers, in spite of the fact that the six-inch gun cruiser is not suited to the defense of American commerce and CANNOT BE USED [illegible] substitute for the eight-inch gun cruiser on such a mission. [illegible] is why our highest naval authorities do not want the [illegible] people to spend any money for the six-inch gun [illegible] which is so well suited to British needs but NOT AT ALL SUITED TO AMERICAN REQUIREMENTS.

But the British government, aided and abetted by the Japanese government, stipulated as the price of a treaty at London that they should build AS THEY PREFERRED but that the United States should build AS THEY PERMITTED.

And the American negotiators PAID THE PRICE.

Dry Spell Accentuates Impurity of River Water

Is it too hot for you? Cheer up. It is hotter in other parts of the country, and is not so hot as it was here, say, on August 6, 1918, when the mercury touched 103.

Taking it by and large, Pittsburgh's climate this summer [illegible]eable. Look at some of our fellow[illegible] come back from seashore and Cana[illegible]burned, mosquito-bitten and ivy-poisoned, and you will have to admit that if it is only comfort you seek, you might do worse than spend your vacation at home.

Worse than the high temperature is the drouth, which has been particularly hard on rural gardens inaccessible to hose.

Thanks to the completion of the locks and dams in the Ohio, navigation has not been impeded by low water, as it formerly was after a long dry spell. The drouth has accentuated, however, the impurity of the river water.

The beautiful clear green tint of the rivers, so much in evidence lately, is said to be due to the acid content of the water, proportionately far greater now than in seasons of rain. The acid, discharged into the rivers by mills and mines, is poisonous, as is proved by the fact that practically all the fish have been killed.

Now, even more than ordinarily, the polluted rivers are unwholesome places in which to bathe. Municipalities alive to the best interests of their people will keep them out of the river by providing clean swimming pools like those the boroughs of Avalon and Dormont have established. They will also follow the example of those boroughs in having the pools open on Sunday.

The economic loss caused by the high acid content of the river water is an item not to be despised. The water is unfit for use in the boilers of engines, because it quickly corrodes the tubes. It is unsuitable for laundry purposes, because it is too hard.

If the plan of the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh for storage reservoirs were now in effect, we would be spared some of the evil, for stored water would be released, the acid diluted, and its power to do harm accordingly reduced.

This is a minor feature of the flood prevention program, but one that should not be overlooked.

Help Director Lang to Keep the Streets Clean

Director of Public Works Lang has come back from Europe with the laudable intention of making Pittsburgh's streets cleaner. He says we can learn something in this respect from France and Germany.

The director will be assisted in his undertaking by thousands of dollars' worth of new street cleaning equipment—four new automobile sweepers that sweep without raising dust, a large flusher, 6,000 feet of hose, and so forth.

But Director Lang says the thing that would be most helpful is the co-operation of the public. He should have it.

There would be immediate and marked improvement in the appearance of Pittsburgh's streets if passersby would refrain from dropping pieces of paper, cigaret boxes and other bits of trash on the pavement. There is certainly no inconvenience in carrying these things for a short distance until one comes to a container in which they may be deposited.

More Suicides Likely If Gambling Is Not Checked

A man killed himself in Pittsburgh Saturday in despair over losses incurred in playing the clearing house lottery, otherwise known as the game of "numbers."

Agents of this lottery operate throughout the city. They are to be found in every neighborhood, in every office building. The police rarely interfere. In addition, other forms of gambling abound, without molestation.

Pittsburgh is likely to have more suicides if the police continue to maintain their present attitude towards the clearing house lottery, slot machines, and the games of chance operated at carnivals and in big public gambling houses.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Detours

"Bugs" Baer

We have followed a thousand wooden fingers and never discovered what they were pointing at. We have followed a million arrows and never met Cupid or an Indian.

It is always five miles to the next stop. But you're foolish if you do.

We have never yet asked directions of a rural gentleman but that he was deaf, stuffed or was a stranger in the place.

Every 16 miles you come to the inn where George Washington slept. He must have been a great man. No tourist has been able to sleep there since.

Every summer we start out for Gooper's Gap, one of the scenic delights of the better class resort advertising. If Mr. Gooper ever had a gap, it must be a family secret. We have still to get there. Every time we strike a detour it gets convulsions.

The most entrancing spot in the scheme of things, this working side of paradise, is a point where five roads meet for no reason at all.

There you find 65 sign posts that have all the directional intelligence of an asparagus patch after a windstorm.

So far as information is concerned, you might as well touch off a package of Chinese shooting crackers and follow the one that explodes the furthest.

Each post has its own idea about the zodiac, the firmament and the atlas. Each one has its individual conception of the master points of topography and you can start off for the palisades and wind up chinning a stalagmite in the mammoth cave of Kentucky.

The most beautiful spot in the East is Harper's Ferry, where John Brown would have done much better if he had allowed his wife to pick out his neckties. We have tried to reach that place every summer since 1907 but we always make the mistake of allowing a roadside information booth to make our mistakes.

There are other fine views in New England but we intend to take them in a teaspoonful every hour in the news reels. We always wind up in Georgia crying for the Carolinas.

SUPER-POWER

By Archibald Henderson

Since the days of the brilliant, but alienated, German philosopher, Friedrich Nietzsche, the world has taken a new hitch in its trousers. We all aspire to things hitherto believed to be beyond man. Nietzsche accustomed us to the idea of something beyond man, by his vivid and aspiring image of the Uebermensch—or as Shaw translates it, Superman. The world is striving strenuously along all lines to surpass itself. We are no longer satisfied with the ancient habits and actualities. Everything must be in terms of the transcendant—superman, super-golf, super-power, super-heterodyne!

The ideal of the new age is power: dynamic energy, kinetics. There is believed, on convincing evidence, to be virtually limitless energy locked up in matter. Is it a Utopian dream to prophesy the realization of the harnessing of these illimitable forces for the use of mankind? Shall we ever arrive at this fair haven of energy, this paradise of power?

Sir Arthur Eddington declares that it is no longer the baseless fabric of a dream, but the subject of serious practical investigation by the scientist. There is little hope of getting out of a drop of water the power which lurks hidden there; enough energy to furnish energy of 200-horsepower for a year. But the physicists are learning how to raise matter to an excessively high temperature. It is as yet very far from being high enough. It will take a temperature almost unbelievably high to utilize the hidden, subatomic energy. If we could heat matter to a temperature of forty million degrees we should be able to release and make available the energy of the stars. That triumph once accomplished, man could achieve almost anything the imagination could devise!

At the Cavendish Laboratory of Cambridge University, England, Dr. Kapitza has actually succeeded in producing momentary magnetic fields in which the concentration of energy corresponds to about one million degrees Celsius. The question is to maintain a steady flow of this energy; and to magnify it forty times.

It would be an incredibly dangerous thing for the world to release this energy, without knowing also how to control it. As Eddington amusingly observes: "If we should be able to raise the heat of matter to 40,000,000 degrees—well, I don't really think sub-atomic energy will come pouring out, but just to be on the safe side I shall take care not to be too near the laboratory when the experiment is tried!"

Sub-atomic energy may extend the life of the universe from millions to billions of years; other possibilities of rejuvenation may extend it from billions to trillions. But unless we can circumvent the second law of thermodynamics—which is as much as to say that unless we can make time move backward—the universe must ultimately reach a state of uniform changelessness.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"You make me sick," says she—"always telling people what to do. Do you practice what you preach?"

No, lady, I don't. But I'd like to. For you must admit that I preach some pretty swell stuff.

But you mustn't gather from that confession that I do not mean what I write. You'll never guess how fiercely I mean it, or how bitterly I wish I could be as good as I talk. And perhaps that is why these words which pass through my fingers seem sometimes strangely alive to those who read them. They ARE alive—alive with my own deep longing for the beauty I can paint but cannot live.

Indeed, I doubt if I could write as convincingly of honor and tolerance and courage and self-control if I did or could live them. For no one can reverence truth like a liar—or admire courage as passionately as a coward—or desire tolerance as greatly as one who is beset by petty malice. A really wise man can never know the bitter penalties of being stupid. And it's only the man who has nearly died of thirst on a desert who fully appreciates the wonder of water.

I don't practice what I preach. I can't. I haven't the "makings." But, oh, how I wish I had. And I suspect that applies to most of us. We all want to be better than we are. We all preach that we cannot practice. But that doesn't imply that we should stop preaching.

It isn't hypocrisy to advocate virtues you, in your weakness, have never attained. It is, I suspect, one of the most valuable things we can do. For, even if we can't live nobility, we can dream about it and desire it and campaign for it. And there is real power in dreams and desires. Our world was built on them.

We'd still be formless gobs of protoplasm in primeval ooze if life, the creator, hadn't planted desire in that ooze—desire for life more abundant. Because that desire twisted and tugged, generation after generation, one cell at last became two, grew tails and gills and legs, and finally a brain. But millions of gobs lived tailless lives before one gob finally grew a tail. Yet their dumb desire for tails was quite as important in the process of evolution as that one triumphant tail.

And, by the same token, many men desire truth, but few drink hemlock for it, as did Socrates. Many love God—but few die for Him on the cross. Yet who shall say that the tears of a sinner do not serve God's glory as much as the praise of a saint.

Often, when I'm tempted to criticize others, as you've criticized me, lady, I think of the early Christian martyrs—and what I'd done had I been in their shoes. You will remember that the Christians were offered their choice of worshipping strange gods or being eaten by lions. They took the lions. Well, I'm a Christian, too. But I have a horrible hunch that if the choice were put up to me the lions would go hungry. Yet I'm the world's most enthusiastic admirer of martyrs. But life's that way. And so is most literature.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

There was a hotel in a small town that was doing its best to treat the customers fine. It tried to give them everything they could get in the hotels in the big towns, and the customers appreciated it, too.

Well, the hotel got an orchestra to play in the dining room, and it wasn't a very good orchestra—just some of the boys with their saxophones.

But the orchestra was anxious to please. While a big, rich-looking guy was eating, a waiter come to his table with a note. It says: "Is there anything you'd like to request the orchestra to play?"

The big guy, who was trying to read a paper with his dinner, wrote, "Yes, football!"

If One Dream Died

If in your garden
The rarest rose
From bud to blossom
Did not unclose,
Would you leave pansy
And violet
And pink untended,
In your regret?

If lark and linnet
And whip-poor-will Poured out their music,
Soft notes or shrill,
But one loved songster
Soared far away,
Would that mean s[illegible]nce
For all your day?

Would you cease dreaming
If one dream died,
If one bright hope went Unsatisfied?

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

SEC. 3. THE MOULDINGS OF ORGANS BY USE.

No organism, and especially no higher animal, could work if it remained only a mosaic of independent parts. And so the next step is to give back to the embryo the unity it has so lately lost, to make its parts interlock and co-operate again. But the machinery by which the new adult unity is achieved is quite different from that underlying the unity of the segmenting egg. Instead of mere gradients of activity tying the whole together, we have now coming into play the ubiquitous streams of blood and lymph and the fine branching of the nerves.

H. G. Wells

Of their unifying functions we have already spoken; they provide a common internal environment, a postal delivery system and a controlling headquarters.

Once this stage begins, new agencies can be set to work to put the finishing touches to the animal's construction. One of these is the battery of hormones which regulate growth and development; of these we have already said something. The other, equally important, is the actual working of the separate organs for the good of the tissue-commonwealth as a whole.

It was the German zoologist, Wilhelm Roux (1850-1924), father of the science of developmental physiology, who, half a century ago, pointed out the vital importance of what he called functional differentiation.

Functional differentiation means differentiation brought about through use and disuse, and through the strains and stresses to which growing tissues are subjected. The size of the heart, muscles and glands depends upon the calls made upon them.

In our bones there is a fine internal architecture of struts and stays beautifully adapted for resisting, with the greatest economy of material, the mechanical strains to which the bone is subjected. In its construction the head of the thighbone is like certain cranes; the inner architecture of the heel-bone is not unlike that of a roof, with lines of bone transmitting the pressure from leg to ground, and others at right angles as tie-beams.

All this delicacy of adaptation is called into existence by the actual stresses and strains to which the bone is exposed. If the mechanical conditions alter, the struts rebuild themselves in responsive adaptation. This is seen, for instance, when a broken bone is set crooked, or when two bones which ought to be free to move become united to each other, as in an anky-loosed stiff knee.

Again there exist people born with deformed feet which can never be used for walking. They cannot begin to walk and so the normal stimulations are withheld. The bony structure of their heel-bone remains poorly developed, and what there is of it is more like an ape's than a man's.

The fine structure in our heel-bones is one of the characteristic points in which we differ from the apes; and yet we achieve most of it anew in each generation by walking upright.

Indeed, the whole size and shape of bones is plastic. If a puppy be prevented from using one of its legs, by tying it in a sling, after six months the bones of the unused limb will be only about half the thickness of those which have had to carry weight, as well as being a little shorter.

And when an irregular fragment of bone from some other part of the body is grafted to take the place of a damaged or diseased finger joint, the mechanical forces in the finger will remodel it toward the shape of a finger joint within a year or two.

Then there is the molding of the connective tissues to form tendons. Each tendon in the body runs just in the direction of the greatest tension to which it is exposed, and its size is proportional to the amount of that tension. This beautiful adaptation again is brought about directly by the tension.

If the Achilles tendon in the heel of an animal is cut, it is gradually repaired. New fibres grow in between the cut ends. At first they are quite irregular in arrangement, but gradually they grow in number and all become parallel.

The Achilles tendon's attachment is to the calf muscles, and if this is removed the new formed fibres never grow parallel and remain sparse. It is thus the pull of the muscle which normally both guides the fibres into place and stimulates them to grow until the bundle is big enough to resist the highest tension the muscle can exert.

In the same way, experimentally setting up a pull in connective tissue (as by exerting gentle tension on a silk thread healed into a wound) will bring about the artificial production of tendons—tendons that do not run from muscle to bone, but simply follow the pull.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

LONDON—I suppose everyone who flies from Brussels to the Croyden field in England is heartened in those sinking and breathless moments of fear by Col. Lindbergh's historic achievement. All perhaps but the obese and Teutonic wordling who slept blissfully in our plane from the take-off until awakened at landing.

London as usual was under murky skies upon our arrival, but even through the fog one could discern that the town, like Paris, has gone modernistic. The horse shoe circle of the Savoy has been done over in the mode as are innumerable shops along Piccadilly and the Strand. Everywhere is a rash of modernism.

Far more excellent writers, well, a little better anyway, than this chronicler, have paid tribute to "The Cries of London" and their shrill never loses an appeal. The Strand seems to have an extra din just now for hundreds of the unemployed are res[illegible] to catchpenny schemes al[illegible] curbs.

There was a [illegible] in seeing one tattered and grotesque creature with elaborate gestures mouthing and gulping handful after handful of colored tissue paper afterward passing the hat "for my starving kiddies." Yet an hour of cheerless unemployment debate in Parliament is convincing Britain is "treading water."

Everybody seems to avoid talking directly about the economic crisis, but everywhere depressing poverty rears its hideous head. Such as in front of one of the Trafalgar square lions where a beggar, resembling King George, executes a sinister dance to a mouth organ tune, rattling a spoon and fork with horrid specter-like precision, very slow.

I caught sight of Henry Snell bobbing along Regent street, very swank in his new Savilie Row finery, sporting the latest Locke hat and holding his umbrella at the correct angle. He was every inch the English "toff" but he didn't fool a newsie who popped out to cry "Chicago Tribune, sir!"

London is a leisurly walking town. Before the stores open in the morning streets and bridges fill with strollers. The London merchant coming in from the suburb alights a station or two away from his office door to window gaze and perhaps peep longingly at the wet grass green of the embankment.

Hannen Swaffer, the captious critic, rushing by hesitated long enough to tell of an old lady in 'Ampstead 'Eath who was taken with pains on the appendicitis side. The new district medico was called in, made examination, quieted fears and went his way. That evening the old lady remarked to her daughter: "It was nice of the new vicar to call."

"But, mumsie, that wasn't the vicar that was the doctor."

"O," said the old lady, musing, "I thought he was a little familiar for a vicar."

It may not matter to many of you, of course, but I miss my dog. Due to the absurd six months' quarantine law he was left behind in Belgium with a 7-months-old Cairn Scottie, a new found friend who chews Billy's ears and nips his paws when he tries to nap. Billy merely looks at him quizzically, but never protests. Secretly I believe the Scottie has him bluffed. We shall pick him up next week to resume our motor trip.

The head bell hop at Claridge's is a startling image of the movie actor, Gary Cooper. American flappers who catch sight of him, stop, gasp and look about for an array of movie cameras and a megaphoned director.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Most people are trying so hard to be recognized socially, politically or financially that they don't give the time they should to being worth recognition.

Instead of trying to attract attention of the crowd, why don't you learn to do or be something different from any of the crowd?

Then, if you can do your part well, you will be recognized anyway.

If you are so very desirable as a companion, ally or power you won't have to proclaim the fact yourself.

The world is seeking experts and the world is quick to see through the veneer if there is pretention and not basic worth.

Of course there are some persons who can do things well who are so shy or modest or short-sighted that they don't or won't take opportunities to show what they can do.

But if this is your disposition you should not blame luck or anything else in the world for your failure to reach the goal you long for.

Success is never thrust at you—there are certain ways and means to success when you have the background and the goods, so do your part.
